TAXATION GOVERNS FUTURE FORESTS

Forty years ago President Cleveland admonished the nation to pause and consider the future of its timber. Every President since then has had something to say about preserving the forests. If the forests were suddenly wiped out, our land would be uninhabitable. No substitution can be made for the forests.

Vegetation and timbered growth are essential to the storage of water. They hold moisture in a natural reservoir and allow it to run off gradually. Thus, they prevent periodical floods and dry periods.

"It is essential that our watersheds be protected not alone by sane and economic logging practices, but also by a well developed and farsighted planting program," says the Aberdeen, Washington, Daily World. "Cutover lands must be replenished and protected. Fire destroys the young growth, and burns out the natural elements in the soil which are necessary to growing trees and vegetation."

The burden of taxation causes many timberland owners to cut forests which they would rather hold—but if they hold them under present tax laws their value would be confiscated in tax payments.

Also, many owners of cutover land would like to hold it with young growing trees on it, or replant it; but with heavy annual taxes this is impossible, for its entire value is wiped out in tax payments.

For this reason it is imperative that a taxation method be worked out, which permits a tax payment when the timber is marketed, and not continuously while it is growing.

INSURANCE COMPANIES FIGHT ARSON

It is a sorry commentary on the honesty and good faith of the average business man of America, that whenever trade in certain lines becomes unprofitable, the number of fires in such occupancies at once increases.

This, however, is the experience of underwriters over a period of many years. It is the results of omission as well as those of commission, for there are passive as well as active incendiaries. Both are being dealt with by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, the service organization of the major stock fire insurance companies of the country. The passive class is being subjected to education, and the active perpetrators of arson to investigation and prosecution.

Contrary to loose statements sometimes heard to the effect that underwriters do not care about reducing the national waste by burning, they are spending much thought and money upon preventive measures of all kinds. The criminals who burn for profit are given due attention for they frequently endanger life and are responsible, altogether, for an appreciable portion of the total fire destruction. The part they play in swelling the fire toll should be realized by the public, especially by citizens who perform jury service, for their depositions add materially to burden borne by the public.

UNSELFISH IDEALISM

The local newspaper in the United States is each year getting on a firmer foundation and becoming more and more useful to its home community.

It is the home newspaper which boosts the town, year in and year out, which takes the lead in every enterprise which has for its purpose the upbuilding of the community.

We frequently hear it said that the old-time independent spirit of the newspaper is gone, that its editorial policy is now subservient to the business office. Yet this is not true. There is more unselfish idealism in the average local newspaper than in any other business enterprise. It frequently speaks out in the way which it believes will be for the good of the nation and of the community, regardless of what the consequences may be from a business standpoint.

The local newspaper is the principal booster of the community, and it does its boosting often without hope of material reward. Unfortunately is the community which does not appreciate nor supports its local newspapers. Wisconsin State Journal.

The musical game was an original one, (by Mrs. Denton) and the prizes to the fortunate winners were the "sweetest ever."

A dramatic company composed of the guests put on a one act play in two scenes that literary brought down the house. The costumes, scenery and settings were in keeping and elicited unbounded admiration for the originality in conception and the successful production. ### FEDERATION SONG

Words by Miss Grace H. Chamberlain.

Across the hills and valleys,
From office and from home,
The Federated women
Of Oregon have come.
They represent twelve thousand,
And they three million more,
Whose message for advancement,
Is heard from shore to shore.

They stand for law enforcement,
They strive for better ways,
For health and public welfare,
For beauty in the days,
They share the gifts of spirit,
They give of brain and hand,
They are the inspiration
Throughout our glorious land.

God grant us strength and wisdom
To bear His torch of light,
To keep our hearts still singing,
However dark the night,
God grant us in our struggle,
To hold fast all that's good,
And make us worthy members
Of earth's great sisterhood.

(Note—This song was awarded a prize of ten dollars, and adopted as the club song.)

ALFORD STANDS ON HIS FART LEG

County Commissioner Geo. Alford was in Ashland yesterday from his farm at Phoenix, and in response to a question from a News writer, replied that he had been making no campaign to secure the nomination for reelection, his farm and official duties claiming all his time.

Alford, it will be remembered, came out for reelection only after urgent solicitation on the part of many residents of the county and it appeared that he would have no opposition within his own party, he declares that he bases his claim for reelection solely upon his record of the past, realizing that the experienced gained from his first term better enabled him to serve the county during a second administration. Welfare Club Announcement
An announcement which should have been made at last week's meeting of the Welfare Club is that the June meeting will be a picnic in the park with members of the families guests for the summer and supper.

The club will meet about four o'clock in the park. Another announcement that was of interest, is that the club has been working upon that the club has been working upon and are offered for sale.

Junior C. R. Picnic
Saturday afternoon the Presbyterian Juniors held their annual picnic. It was three weeks only this year so Betty Mergler could meet with them once more.

The group of merry boys and girls kicked up some of the beautiful paths in the park, played games, was "kodaked" and, at 2:30 p. m., gathered around the picnic basket and Miss Hays served brick layer cream and cake.

At this time the camera man asked them to smile again.

Betty Mergler, the Juniors are losing Vera Grace Plummer and Louise Brommer, when school closes.

The snaps are for a little book of memories for the girls to take to their new homes.

This group of Endeavorers has had a very successful year. "Over the Top" in all their pledges and the social life and work for "Others" has been a very happy time for them all.

News From the Health Association

The crippled children's clinic held last Monday, by Dr. Dillhurst and Dr. Seung of Portland proved a real success.

The first Baptist church where the clinic was held was a scene of sadness, however, for pathetic figures had been brought from all over the county.

One child of six could not walk; another had never even sat up or talked, others were not developed mentally, but all were set on the road to improvement by those specialists who outlined
