BULGARIAN EX-CZAR IS GETTING LONELY

BY FRANK REA
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

ROME, (UP)—Heavy clouds are hanging over Europe and Gods infinite benevolence only can avert fresh scourges," said Ferdinand of Coburg, the once powerful czar of all the Bulgarians, now a white haired and a curved figure living in the greatest obscurity in a local hotel, to a party of newspapermen who had come to interview him.

"What do you want to talk to me for," he said, "I am a lonesome old man whom the world has already forgotten."

The ex-czar receives few or no callers and those who succeed in approaching him, owe their success to a capuchin monk, Father Celestino, who acts as a private secretary and reads religious books to Ferdinand, whose sight is getting gradually poorer. The ex-king, who used to surround himself with gorgeously dressed army officers and beautiful ladies, now has as every day companions, besides Father Celestino, a number of monks and priests

Trio of Women To Hunt Whales

SAN FRANCISCO, May 29.—(UP)—"That's she blows," the battle cry of the whale hunter, is being rehearsed by three San Francisco women.

They are Mrs. C. T. Pederson, wife of the master of the motorship Patterson; Mrs. M.G. Bartlett, wife of the chief trader aboard the Patterson, and Mrs. O. Winsvold, wife of the chief engineer.

The women are joining their husbands on a cruise to the whale hunting grounds of the Arctic Ocean.

Whale hunting, a novelty to other women, is an old story to Mrs. Pederson. She has accompanied Captain Pederson on a number of journeys.

If nominated and elected, I will devote my time to the duties of the office; will help to keep state expenditures down to the least possible amount commensurate with good government.

Automobile licenses and gas taxes will be a matter of careful consideration by the next legislature; and if it is possible to work out a better method of taxing automobiles, I am sure it will be done by the combined efforts of the Roads and Highways committees of the Senate and House, whether I or someone else represent submit my candidacy to the convention

I learned afterwards that, before seeing me, Mr. Cowgill had been to a majority of the county central committeemen and secured the promise of their support under the representation that I had told him that I would not be a candidate for renomination. I have no recollection of having told him I would not be a candidate and I feel sure that his enthusiasm for the honors of the office caused him to misconstrue something that I may have said about being tired and glad the session was over, just after the legislation adjourned.

Under such circumstances I did not think it fair or prudent to
