SOCIETY

Parent-Teacher Notes

Hand Work for Children

As the Child-Welfare Magazine is published in the interest of both teachers and parents, it will be entirely proper to discuss this subject as a school matter as well as a home matter; and children's affairs must always be discussed for the school, is taking great pains and most of the functions of the home and particularly in this very department of hand work.

The home used to be a hand work place and I make bold to say it was then a much better place for children. What parents can do now is:

- (1) To give schools which want to make hand work a larger part of their schedule and will employ the right sort of teachers, all the support they need.
- (2) To arrange so that their children can carry on hand work at home, applying what they learn at school.
- (3) — To work with the children themselves.

But first of all, let us make a whole-hearted salutation to this magical human hand. We hear all the time in church of the "hand of God," May I say with reverence, here it is! In so far as the thing we call "human society" is not only tolerable but fairly beneficent and happy if it is the hand we must thank first. For it, with its ability to grasp, first branches and then tools, has lifted us out of our low estate, out of the brute condition by progressive stimulation of the brain, until, in a man like Lincoln, you get both hand and brain in the divine unity necessary to a symmetrical character.

The worst poison in society now is the relegation of the hand to a place of slavery instead of a place of honor.

With that much in the way of preface I may say that this article will deal only with the sort of hand work that goes under the casual name of "Manual training." And first as to the schools.

If the people operating schools appreciate the tremendous current of experience, of first-hand knowledge, that flows from hand to brain they will make a generous place for hand work, provide the best teacher they can get and give the subject all the time it needs.

The school shop is as important in the Elementary as in the High School. In the Elementary School it must not be in the least provocative, and in the High School only partly so. It must be a place where the creative impulse has as much free play as possible. Therefore, the teacher must never be a routine man — an artisan only. He must be a real teacher, which means that he must have imagination and a feeling for the significance of things, a sense of the poetry and music that resides, as Emerson said, even in mud and scum. Oh, very hard to find teachers. But never cease looking, and don't look very much in the Teachers' Colleges and training schools. This kind of teacher is rarely found there.

And when it comes to making things out of wood, never make stupid things, — things without some beauty however roughly.

Attention:

Attention of lodges, clubs, church organizations, and of those planning social functions, is called to the fact that items intended for Thursday's paper should be in the hands of the society editor by Wednesday, as early as possible.

For Monday's issue, it would help greatly if all copy could reach her as early on Saturday as can be arranged.

Any changes in notices of meetings of any organization should reach the editor the day before going to press if possible.

With the holidays, social affairs are less numerous; house parties and outings are in the offing, and the editor will appreciate greatly hostesses notifying her of their plans for the entertainment of their guests.

When social news is sent to the office, address it to the society editor, Phone social news, 345-R or address, 122 Church street.

Prompt advance notices or copy from presse correspondents are greatly appreciated.

Westminster Guild Have Supper — Westminster Guild, Martha Gillette Chapter, held a covered dish supper in the Park Tuesday evening of this week.

All sorts of good things were brought by the membership making this a regular feast.

At this, too, the mite boxes were brought with the quarterly contributions.

Tuesday's picnic had in it a bit of farewell, for one of its members, Miss Eva Peley expects to leave this week for Berkeley and the social feature of the affair was to mark the event.

The membership present had a most enjoyable evening.

"KARNAK HAS BROUGHT ME COMPLETE RELIEF"

"And That's What A Strict Diet And Everything Else Failed To Do Before I Got This Medicine," Declares Portland Woman.

"This Karnak has done for me what other medicine and strict diet failed to do," it has given me complete relief from a severe case of stomach trouble when I was just about at my wits ends to know what to do for it," declares Mrs. H. Hansen, of 1273 Boston Ave., Portland, Ore.

"Everything I ate just seemed to lodge right in the pit of my stomach, and the gas pains were just awful," continues Mrs. Hansen. "My stomach seemed terribly acid all the time and I couldn't eat anything without paying for it in suffering afterward."

"I just got so nervous and worried over my condition I didn't know what to do. I didn't dare eat a piece of meat, and dieted on fruits and vegetables for months, but my stomach just stayed upset all the time. Nothing would give me relief."

"Well, this last marvelous low quickly Karnak relieved me of my troubles when I finally began taking this medicine. I have only taken three bottles of the medicine, and I am happy to say that the indigestion and stomach troubles are completely gone. I eat anything I want and don't have the slightest touch of the old gas pains or any other discomfort. My health is just splendid in every way now."

"My husband has started taking Karnak for indigestion now and he thinks it's the best medicine ever made. We just can't praise it enough."

Karnak is sold in Ashland by the East Side Pharmacy and all leading druggists.

For Love of His Absent Son

A year ago 7-year-old Lloyd Hikell disappeared with his mother from the home of his father, S. Hikell of Omaha, Neb. Search proved futile, and Hikell resolved to observe each yearly anniversary of their disappearance by playing host to orphan children. This picture shows him at the first anniversary, when he gave a dinner to 200 homeless youngsters.

What I hear so much from children in the Elementary Schools when I ask them what they do "in manual training" is this, "Oh last year we made a pin-tray and a necktie holder and this year we are making a taborette"

Apparently that's all they have time to do after they have been trained to make a square stick and a round stick and a flat stick and all that sort of thing. The whole thing is degraded to a routine by the "process," by "sloyd" as it is sometimes called, and by a routine person and by a negligible allowance of time. The fine spirit of the start fades and fades as the year goes on and after a few years manual training is actually discredited in the child's mind as something perfunctory, as something far less important than English grammar or anything else that schools bow down before, as the heathen in his blindness, bows before an illusion.

Studio officials say it will be necessary to supply two prints of a motion picture to each theatre, one for the regular projection machine and the other for a subsidiary or "encore machine."

When patrons indicate by their applause that they wish a scene repeated, the regular projection machine will be switched and the operator will turn on the encore machine, which will be kept running behind closed shutters but with one sequence button. When the scene is finished, the regular machine will resume.

NEW GAS FOR AIRSHIPS
LOS ANGELES. — (UP) — A development in aircraft fuel which entirely eliminates danger from fire on airships or airplanes is claimed by Thomas B. Slate, inventor at Ross Field, Arcadia, near here.

Slate is building an all-metal super dirigible, under government subsidy.

The new fuel is solidified natural gas, already used successfully in refrigeration and other lines. In addition to removing the fire hazard from use of gasoline, the fuel is expected to widen the flight range of airships and to lessen fuel expense.
