THEY FAVOR PROHIBITION

The Christian Scientists of the country have bent not a little wrought up over the story going the rounds that they were opposed to the Volstead act and favored an amendment. Now comes the Christian Science Monitor in its leading editorial and it denounces such statements as wholly at variance with the truth. Among other things it says:

New allies of the antiprohibition forces are trying to make it appear that the Christian Scientists of the United States are divided on the liquor question. It is even asserted in glaring headlines that "Mary Baker Eddy Opposed Prohibition," and the effort is made thereby to mislead her followers. Many Baker Eddy advocated prohibition before she discovered Christian Science. At Lynn, Mass., in 1864, she became a member of the Independent Order of Good Templars, and soon became one of the officers and one of the speakers of the local lodge of this order. Long afterward other members and officers of this lodge had recalled and related that Mrs. Eddy's part in its meetings always was noticeable as being dignified, courteous, effective and impressive.

As a Christian Scientist, Mrs. Eddy maintained the same position. Thus she said: "Whatever intoxicates a man, stultifies and causes him to degenerate physically and morally. Strong drink is unquestionably an evil, and evil cannot be used temperately; its slightest use is abuse; hence the only temperance is total abstinence."

Among the Christian Science churches and their members there is today no doubt as to the position they should hold on this question. The chief executive authority of the church is the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston. This body, on the fifteenth of April last, adopted the following resolutions and caused them to be presented to the Senate Judiciary Committee:

Whereas, A determined effort is being made by the opponents of the prohibition law of the United States to invalidate the operation of that law and to legalize again the sale of intoxicating liquors in this country, be it

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, that as citizens and as Christian Scientists we do hereby pledge our hearty support to the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and to the federal enforcement law enacted under that amendment and be it further

Resolved, That we denounce the endeavor to repeal that Amendment, or to modify, in the direction of greater latitude, the Volstead Act as an effort to re-establish the traffic in alcoholic liquor, and as a menace to the industrial, economic, social and moral welfare of the people of the United States.

The organization of the Christian Science Church provides for complete local self-government. But with one accord the branch churches and individual Christian Scientists, followed the action of the Board of Directors. On the day set aside for this purpose by the Senate Committee, resolutions upholding prohibition were presented from 283 Christian Science churches and 5 societies, together with telegrams from 506 individuals.

Any effort to make it appear that there is dissension among Christian Scientists upon the issue is obviously misleading and must fail.

THE JUDGE MAY BE RIGHT

Circuit Judge Morrow, of Portland, Oregon, recommends the increased use of electricity as a cure for domestic unhappiness that so frequently ends in divorce. He says that a washing machine, a vacuum cleaner, an electric fan, a toaster, and other electrical conveniences and time-savers now so easily procurable, turn domestic drudgery into interest or real pleasure; and so remove the one greatest cause for quarrels.

The Tidings hopes the Owens Valley farmers bring their furniture and chickens and cows with them when they come to visit us.

It will be a happier day when we hear them yelling "fore."

DANCES STILL DISCUSSED AS NOTHING DONE

out of the maze of discussion, came the enlightenment that it was possible the question might be settled by the submission of a charter amendment to the people to vote upon later as to whether or not Ashland would ever have public dances. It was agreed that, whether the referendum was successful or failed, the question could again be brought up at any time by subsequent councils. The charter amendment would more definitely settle the argument.

The petition which has been prepared for the referendum carries a short ballot title which would make the referendum a clearest issue on the Lithian dances in the park, whereas the ordinance passed last Thursday night did not specifically mention the park dances, but was to control all public dances. The councilmen seemed to feel that the short ballot title should agree with the ordinance, although it was the consensus of the councilmen that the real intent of the ordinance was to discontinue the park dances.

With this story, The Daily Tidings leaves the dance question until the next jump or the next change of mind.

While it was stated this morning that the Lithians favored the execution of the referendum as quickly as possible, it was not known this afternoon what action would be taken.

The councilmen indicated that no interference whatever would be made against the Fourth of July celebration and dances in the park.

DIRTY STREAM IN PARK MUST NOT CONTINUE

a muddy, ugly stream that appeared to have coursed through a dirty bed instead of directly from the fastnesses of Mount Ashland.

Then Mr. Jordan and the Tidings representative visited the swan lake. The swans were standing as if in great sorrow on the bank, for the muddy water of the creek had flowed into the lake, making it, too, a dirty, roily pool instead of the clear body of water which it usually is.

Later, the sprinkling system was inspected. Instead of the usual brisk flow of water from the sprays, the flow was much less than usual. This was also caused by the reduction of force, the irrigation water in the park now coming from the canal instead of from the city water system, according to Mr. Jordan.

Mr. Jordan explained that recently the pipeline from the Talent canal was constructed and a flow of water started from the canal into the Ashland creek. At the same time the amount of water released into Ashland creek from the lakes above was reduced. The canal water was turned into the creek in order to keep up the required flow of water for those holding prior water rights below the city. This is the cause of the change in the appearance of Ashland creek.

Mr. Jordan explained that it would be necessary to either extend the present pipeline from the canal along the creek to a point below the park or to relay the pipeline in order to bring it down the hill from the canal closer to the park entrance at the plaza and then make it empty below the park.

He stated it would probably be too late to do this during the present summer, but that arrangements would be made by all means to do this before next summer, so that Ashland creek will not be a muddy, ugly stream.

Ashland creek, as a clear mountain stream, was one of the best advertisements in Lithia park. Mr. Jordan stated, and this has aided in inspiring thousands of tourists in the park to praise our city park and thus give our city valuable advertising. Under present conditions, Mr. Jordan said, the stream will not be of any advertising value, as it presents no beauty nor attraction.

The cost of the reconstruction or extension of the pipeline so as to carry the canal water below the park will be insignificant in comparison to the value of the advertising which comes to the city because of this clear, mountain stream and Mr. Jordan believes, as others do, that this improvement should be made at the earliest possible time. The canal water is essential and will prove of great benefit to the city in case of a water shortage. Mr. Jordan explained, but emptying it into Ashland creek should be so arranged that it will not detract from the beauty of the creek.

horing castles in the City of Ashland. So now, these brave knights and many of their companions were journeying forth to conquer this hated foe. They wore, as armor strong suits of middles and bloomers and happy hearts, and they carried as arms buckets, towels and Bon Ami, for they needed all these things to conquer the forces of Grease and Dirt. For each window which they freed from its parasites they were to receive ten copper armed men for their own private armies.

An hour later when they rode from the gates of her castle, they were followed by fifty of the copper armed men.

Telephone Office Is Modern One

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company is now one of the most modern business offices in the city. The entire building has been renovated and various improvements made. A new roof was put on and the interior of the office repainted and the walls cleaned and varnished. The front part of the office has been made into a standard company office, with walls in gray and furnishings in gray and oak. The work was supervised by J. O. Rigg, paint contractor.

"She's Wild" Is Chiloquin Slogan

"She's Wild" is the screaming declaration of a poster advertising the Fourth of July celebration at Chiloquin, and indications from the Klamath county town is that the celebration will not have many dull periods.

DEDICATE FAMOUS BATTLEGROUND SUNDAY

180 soldiers were buried in one grave in 1873, long since removed. Here Captain Applegate told the beginning of the story which was continued later in the day.

Within a short distance, perhaps a mile, was Capt. J. G. Gossett, erected by his soldiers, bearing this inscription: "Gen. R. E. S. Canby, killed here, April 12, 1873." This was restored, when the monument, which is somewhat in the foreground, was placed.

The monument itself is of boulders cemented together, topped by a bronze of gauze with arrow in wounded side. On the face is bronze tablet: "To Commemorate the heroism of General R. E. Canby, other officers, soldiers and pioneer settlers, who sacrificed their lives on this battlefield during the Medoc War." The monument was erected and dediented by Aurora Parler 159, News Pamphlet of the Golden West, assisted by the Grand Parlor of Native Daughters of Golden West, Native Sons of Golden West and the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons and many interested citizens.

Promptly at 11 o'clock, the dedicatory ceremony of the monument was held by all assembled, and the Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Madras, gave the invocation.

Miss Catherine H. Glover, Past Grand President of N. D. G. W., was accorded the honor of unveiling the monument. In her address, she sketched briefly the purpose of the gathering, welcomed those assembled and paid tribute to the memory and what it signified.

After the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, Mrs. Glover introduced William E. Welch, Grand President of N. D. G. W., who told of the purpose of the organization he represented. He said he was not there to speak of the scene of the last great struggle but rather to tell how California was kept for the settlers and of the sacrifice of the state. This message was but one of a number of memorials to be erected commensurate of historic spots.

E. G. Beamer, Royal Arch Mason, was the speaker, who stated that the Masons had taken in the erection of this monument; that money was required as well as patriotism, and that this was the first time they had taken part in anything but exclusively Masonic, but that we did not live for ourselves alone.

J. D. Waischild of Yreka, son of a veteran of the Medoc War, told of his first visit to this spot with personal reminiscences of the chief actors in the drama unfolded there.

As representative of Linn county, E. G. Scammon gave a brief word in greeting. Mrs. Glover then introduced George E. Lyons of the Forestry Service, who said that to enable those from the south to be present today, a road was needed, and the government had done its part in the accomplishment of that necessity. He stated that in this respect, Mrs. Glover had started the ball rolling; that now this spot, and 40,000 acres more was a national forest; that the monument dedicated was a national monument, and he welcomed the people to this part of the Medoc Forest.

National Chapter of Klamath Falls and representatives of Mount Ashland Chapter, gave the American Creed at this point in the program.

The concluding ceremonies were conducted at Capt. J. G. Gossett's gravesite, when Mrs. Applegate, with Colonel Thompson of Althouse, first speaker, Col. Thompson, an aged veteran of the Medoc and Bannock Wars, a staff officer, began with the treaty of '64, and told feelingly and well, the story, with its background of accurate historic data, vividly picturing the tragic events as they occurred. His address was given closest attention.

Captain Oliver Applegate now mounted the platform upon which the cross rests and called all the veterans present around him. Capt. Applegate was, at the time of the outbreak, Commissary of Subsistence for the Modoc and Flutes at Camp Yainax on the Klamath reservation and was to have charge of Capt. Jack's band in case of their surrender.

The speaker continued the narrative begun earlier in the day at the "Gilliam" grave yard and at the "Cress" Tribute was paid to loyal Indians and particularly to Chief Schonchin, who, through his influence kept half of the Modoc out of the war. He told of the battle of January 17, and of the struggle until the execution of the leaders. In concluding his address, Captain introduced the veterans who surrounded him. Among them Col. Thompson, Jesse D. Walker, John S. Shook, Wm. Sheridan, Veteran Terwilliger and Jim Schonchin, son of Chief Schonchin.

During the program, the Main Band had furnished a number of selections, and "I Love You, California," "Oregon, My Oregon," and "My Own United States," were sung ensemble.

After a picnic luncheon, the train of automobiles began their homeward journey. Those who could stay were asked to do so, and went under the escort of Applegate to visit the stronghold of Capt. Jack's followers.

Of the veterans who gathered was one of Capt. Applegate's aides, Wm. Sheridan of San Francisco. Veteran Terwilliger of Montague was also present and a number of others whose names were not secured.
