THE REST OF US AND PORTLAND

Sectionalism, whether among communities or among interstate regions or among states, is a product of provincialism - of restricted viewpoint and intolerance.

These gentle ruminations are inspired by a fresh outcropping of the age-old jealousy between some of our Oregon communities, expressed through their newspapers and Portland, whose voice in the matter at present in issue is The Oregonian.

In the sober consciousness of the state there is the knowledge that progress in Portland means progress in all Oregon. Portland knows full well that its progress is in proportion to the progress of Oregon.

This newspaper believes the majority disposition throughout the rest of Oregon is one of cooperation with Portland, and that the majority sentiment is one of friendliness toward Portland.

Why cannot all Oregon cities and communities adopt the motto made famous by Dumas' three guardsmen and d'Artagnan: "One for all and all for one." - Eugene Guard.

Don't tell the truth if your legs are in poor shape to run.

You can't get rich in politics without losing your reputation.

Look out for your customers, and your customers will look out for you.

In paying too little, you are just as apt to get stung as in paying too much.

You don't get much credit out of using good judgment unless you use it at the right time.

Whither Away, Old Thing?

PORE OLD DAD

(Contributed by the Hotel Ashland)

Ye kin sc'ace pick up a paper And it 'poets' corner' greet. 'Cept ye'll see or pirty poem 'Bout the mother, saintly sweet;

True, our mother watched above us Till her dear ole eyes wud ache, But ole dad he humped to feed us

Do not take one line from mother When ye write the soul-sweet song But if thar's a word for father Now and then it won't be wrong.

Pore ole soul! He's bent and wrinkled, An I kin 't would make him glad

If, while you are praisin' mother Somethin's sed for pore ole dad!

Most men have equal rights. Most of the arguing is done over their refusal to have equal wrongs.

Even if a man isn't his brother's keeper, there are times when he thinks his brother needs one.

WASHINGTON - Senator James Couzens of Michigan has a passion for publicity in affairs of state.

A lot of his fellow senators with Couzens would keep his passion under better control. It embarrasses them greatly when he lets it overmaster him, as it did when he got that income tax publicity law enacted at the last session of Congress.

True, they repealed it this session, but it was most unpleasant while it lasted. It also gave Jim a reputation, among all "regulars," as a dangerous character.

session, but it was most unpleasant while it lasted. It also gave Jim a reputation, among all "regulars," as a dangerous character.

Couzens is in a pretty state of suppression just now. The "regulars," on both sides, being banded together to hold insurgency in check, are strong enough, incidentally, to prevent the Michigan senator from running amok again with that publicity bug of his.

But, all the time, they know the urge is seething inside him to tear the lid off from everything governmental, and it worries 'em.
