Warm Saturday? Not a Bit Of It

With a mere 104 degrees, Ashland was one of the coolest points in Southern Oregon Saturday. It was hot enough, to be sure, but it was nothing like it was in other points of the state, Portland shattered all heat records for more than a half a century when the mercury there rose to nearly 104 degrees. The highest temperature recorded here yesterday by Federal Weather Observer Louis Dodge was 98 degrees, while the forecast for today is for less than 100 degrees.
