ALWAYS TIRED AT NIGHT—TRY THIS

A healthy person never feels constantly tired. Being "too tired" continually is a sign of something wrong. When John R. Gordon, Danville, Ill., found himself "always tired at night and burdened with backache," he took Foley's Pills, a diuretic stimulant for the kidneys, and writes: "After a few doses, I felt better, could work with more ease, became stronger and could sleep better." What Foley's Pills have done for others they may do for you. Guaranteed to give satisfaction. (Ask for Foley's Pills. Sold everywhere. No. 4.)

WALTER HAGEN SAYS HE WAS MISQUOTED

BY PAUL W. WHITE, United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP)—It is the hope of British and American golfers that one unpleasant aftermath of the British open tournament has been satisfactorily closed with the explanation of Walter Hagen that he was misquoted by a London newspaper.

It will be recalled that Hagen, in a purported interview, was alleged to have said that the British were "too gosh darned lazy" to be successful at golf.

When this sentiment was cabled across the Atlantic it appeared that there was some mistake somewhere. It sounded too much like the British caricature of American speech to ring genuine. On the London music-hall stage the comedians imitating an American always say, "You're gosh-darned right, I reckon."

In a signed statement upon his return, Hagen described his answer to a question as to what was the matter with British golf as follows:

"I replied that I thought the Americans saved more shots than the British players when within pitching distance of the cup, and especially on the greens where the Americans were always giving the ball a rap for the hole hoping for a birdie. I said I thought American amateurs worked harder at their game than British amateurs and played more golf with professionals than the British and all this helped to improve their game. All of this had been said many times before by British golf writers."

Hagen in his statement made one suggestion that will be welcomed in this country. "I said that it was likely that American players would not go

ANY GREAT NUMBERS TO GREAT BRITAIN NEXT YEAR, AND THAT 1927 SHOULD BE A BRITISH YEAR IN AMERICA AND THAT ALL AMERICAN GOLFERS WOULD BE GLAD TO HAVE 20 OF THE BEST BRITISH PROFESSIONALS VISIT THIS COUNTRY NEXT YEAR. GOLF INSTRUCTED, LONDON, HAS ALREADY STARTED A SUBSCRIPTION TO THIS END."

Hagen has had his troubles before with the British press. When he returned in 1923 he was quoted as saying that he would never visit England again, a remark that his fellow-Americans have said that he never made. He has been back twice since then and probably will go again many more times.

MANY WILL ATTEND LIONS CONVENTION

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—Ten thousand delegates and visitors from many parts of the world will gather in San Francisco July 19, for the tenth annual international convention of Lion clubs.

The convention will continue five days, of which time a generous share will be devoted to pageants and features for entertainment of visitors and San Franciscans alike. A picturesque note will be lent by the uniform costumes to be worn by delegates, white shoes and stockings, white shirt and collar, royal purple ribbon with the name of the wearer's den stamped in gold letters and navy blue coats.

An outstanding feature of the conclave will be a California historical pageant, in which 20 clubs from various parts of the state will each undertake production of some historical incident of its district.

Farmer Complains Airplanes Cause Chickens to Loaf

LINCOLN, Neb., July 16.—A district court has ruled that the nervous chickens of Emil Clatt must continue to suffer from the whir of airplanes above them. Clatt had asked an injunction against a flying corporation, complaining its planes sailing over his farm worried his hens so much that egg production had fallen off 25 per cent.

"LOOT" DISCOVERS SYMPATHY DOESN'T ALWAYS WORK BEST

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—Sympathy, like rouge, can be misapplied; like the Charleston and the "sick friend" gag, it can be overworked.

A worthy agent, it sometimes becomes a means to an unworthy end. The professional side-street panhandler, for instance, Or polecats. Lieutenant Commander William C. Toose, of this city, recently had a bitter experience with a polecat which strayed, whether maliciously or inadvertently will never be known, into his back yard and thence into the garbage can.

The lieutenant's one thought was of self-defense. He ran for the garden hose and filled the receptacle brim-full, hoping thereby to drown the loathsome vagrant.

But the polecat floated to the surface, and Toose turned and fled, for which no man could call him coward.

However, no sooner had the report of this strange encounter reached the public ear than Lieutenant Commander Toose was branded a coward, for quite another reason, in the following letter:

"You may be a sailor, but you are not a man. You are a beastly cad and a coward to try to drown a poor cat in a garbage can. If I had been near you at the time I would have thrashed you and watched you crawl away as that poor cat must have crawled away."

It was signed, "Protector of Animals."

Toose admitted the possibility that the "Protector" believed that "polecat" was some sort of unharmed feline domesticated by the Eskimos. But whether or no, Toose said: "I wish my kindly correspondent had been near me at the time."

It was signed, "Protector of Animals."
