the voters that the "B" in Brennan stands for beer. Colonel Frank Smith, his republican opponent, is just getting started after losing a month in a hospital where he underwent a major operation.

LaFollette is Busy

Young Bob La Follette has returned to Wisconsin and is spreading the word that if the voters want to do what his illustrious father would wish they must nominate Governor John J. Blaine to succeed Irvine Lenroot in the senate. The pre-primary campaign in Wisconsin hinges on Senator Lenroot's fight for American adherence to the world court.

Sold in North Dakota

North Dakota, where Senator Gerald P. Nye was nominated to succeed himself, requires little coaxing by the young editor, New York, however, is making numerous speeches in the state, often neglecting his own interest to attack the farm relief policies of the Coolidge administration.

Col. Smith W. Brookhart, the successful republican, and Claude Porter, the democratic senatorial nominee, would be able to do the corn grower the most good in Washington. Porter has the aid of Senator Daniel Steek, who defeated Brookhart two years in a senatorial recount.

Evenly Divided

Three democrats and three republicans are out for the senatorial nomination in Missouri. They seem to have succeeded in reducing the fight to an out and out battle over prohibition. Harry F. Hawes is carrying the wet banner against Judge Ewing B. Cockrell and Willis Meredith in the democratic party. In the republican contest Blodgett Priest is the wet and Senator George H. Williams and David M. Proctor are the drys.

Bourbons Strong in Indiana

The democrats are taking the lead in Indiana while Senators Watson and Robinson, the long and short term republican candidates, rest after the congressional session. Evans Woolen the short term democratic nominee, is making vigorous attacks on "iniquities" of the Fordney-McCumber act, and his running mate for the long term is conducting a "get acquainted" tour of the small towns and rural districts.

ASHLAND WINS FROM KLAMATH IN FAST GAME

batsman reached first base as Davis mowed them down regularly. In the fifth one runner, reached first on a base on balls, this being the first man to hit the path.

Outfield Runs Wild

Ashland gathered but seven safe blows off Davidson. Five of these were garnered by the Ashland outfield, O'Brien, Marlow and Logan. Marlow and Morgan each got two safe blows, while O'Brien counted for one. The outfielders all shone brilliantly, making several circus catches during the course of the afternoon's entertainment.

Davis let Klamath down with five hits, two of which were infield hits which the runners beat to first base. At no stage of the game was he in distress and he was taken out in the ninth only because Klamath had some left-handed hitters swinging their bats and Captain Watts wanted Mohler's southpaw arm to mow down the portside batters.

Mom and Pop

By Taylor

Klamath into camp, Grants Pass was making it a runaway game with Medford, winning from the erstwhile league leaders, 14 to 1. The locals are now a full game ahead of Medford and are out in front to stay.

Small Crowd

The crowd yesterday was disappointing. It was the smallest crowd which has attended a game here in more than a month. With Ashland now practically assured of winning the championship in the newly organized Southern Oregon league it is hoped that the fans will rally to the support of the team and give them the encouragement they deserve.

Next Sunday the locals will meet Grants Pass on the local Hot Springs diamond. By winning two straight from Medford, Grants Pass has come out of its slump and promises to make it interesting for Ashland here next Sunday.
