Cowboys Hurt in Winnipeg Rodeo

Riding bucking bronchos is a dangerous occupation, as these two unusual photographs, taken at the Winnipeg rodeo, show. Power Kila, shown in the upper picture, was badly injured when the horse fell on him a couple of seconds after the picture was taken, and is now in a hospital. Below, Bobbie Bourie is shown in the air after being thrown by Tumbleweed. He, too, is in a hospital.

Would Pay Loss Of Men Who Were Fleeced by Crook

"Say, where are these men who got bilked a dollar each by some crooked shoe salesman?" inquired a friendly voice at the chamber of commerce offices this morning. "If I can find them I want to give them a dollar each just to prove there is one honest shoe salesman on the road who sells direct to the consumer."

The speaker was R. E. Clark of Portland, northwest manager for a Boston shoe manufacturing company.

Upon reading a few days ago where 50 or more Ashland men had been fleeced by two salesmen for a mythical shoe concern, he came to Ashland to make an investigation and give the men $1 each just to show them, he said, that his firm at least is on the square.

Old Human Skull Found by Woman

LONDON, (UP)—A human skull, said to be 40,000 years old, will be one of the principal exhibits before the meeting of the British Association, which opens at Oxford on August 4th.

The skull was recently unearthed at Gibraltar by Miss D. A. E. Garrod during excavations there. It was found several feet underground. Numerous Mousterian flint implements were found on the spot.

Discovery of the fragment will probably lead to the identification of another skull which was discovered in the vicinity in 1840 and which is believed to be a remnant of the Neanderthal race. The earlier skull is expected to be accepted as proof that the race existed throughout Europe.

The race is said to be African in origin and the first indication of its wide scope at an early date was found in the Neanderthal Valley. Although these skulls have the raised eyebrow bone, similar to those found in skulls of apes, the race is accepted as human.

PICNIC PARTY IS HUGE SUCCESS

Some of the party enjoyed Crater Lake lodge, others went down to the water and a few drove around the rim. The various attractions enroute were visited both going and coming and the entire party arrived home, tired and happy on regular normal school time.

On the Rear Rides Extra Mileage

Every day more cars are flashing the CTC from the tire cover on the spare. It is the hallmark of a tire built in a different and better way.

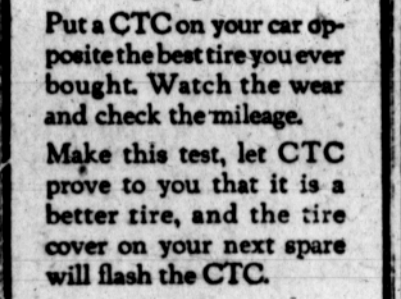

Proof of the superiority in CTC construction is found in the extra mileage these wear-defiers give.

Put a CTC on your car opposite the best tire you ever bought. Watch the wear and check the mileage.

Make this test, let CTC prove to you that it is a better tire, and the tire cover on your next spare will flash the CTC.
