SIX ENTER IN CONTEST FOR GOVERNORSHIP

Three Women Among Those Who Would Displace Miriam A. Ferguson

TEXAS HAS PRIMARY
Long Star Voters Go to Polls Today in Bitter Nominating Fight

BY S. A. BARKER
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)
DALLAS, Texas, July 24.—(U. P.)—Texans will ballot today in a two-party primary for the first time in the state's history. Virtually a complete ticket headed by two gubernatorial candidates is in the field on the republican ticket by virtue of the 140,000 votes cast for Dr. Geo. Butte in 1924. State primary regulations require that more than 100,000 ballots must be cast by a party before a succeeding primary may be invoked. Try to Beat "Ma."
While the two-party primary is an innovation in state politics, chief interest centers in the efforts of democratic candidates to eliminate Governor Miriam A. Ferguson and her husband, former governor James E. Ferguson, from the state political horizon. Six democrats including three women, seek to occupy the governor's chair in 1927. Outstanding among the opponents of the woman governor, who seeks reelection over the endorsement of the State Democratic Executive Committee, is Lynch Davidson, millionaire lumberman of Houston and former lieutenant-governor, and Dan Moody, youthful attorney-general. Moody is 33.
Two other women, Mrs. Kate Johnston of San Antonio and Mrs. Edith Wilkins, Dallas attorney, with O. F. Zimmerman, evangelist, complete the list of democratic gubernatorial aspirants.
Better Campaign
While many of the issues of the campaign have been based on the administration of the state's first woman governor, political utterances of the last few weeks have made the campaign an arraignment of "personalities."
In the center of the hectic campaign, as has been the case for the last fifteen years, "Farmer Jim" Ferguson has borne the brunt of the effort to return his wife to office. Thrown on the defensive, Ferguson has fought back savagely at charges hurled against his wife's administration, centering about her refusal to call a special session of the legislature to establish the status of $80,000,000 worth of disputed state road bonds and alleged machinations in administration of

"POKE" NININGER IS UNMASKED; HIS BOY SPILLS BEANS

Truth of Fishing Trip to Crescent City Given By Veracious Son

"It was great fishing and we had wonderful success," boasted "Poke" Nininger upon his return from a week's vacation trip at Crescent City last night. "Yes," echoed Mrs. Nininger. "Amos was the envy of everybody over there with his success at both deep sea fishing and surf fishing."
So far so good. The Nininger team-work was showing splendid results.
But young Logan Nininger isn't an inveterate angler like his dad. He hasn't learned the value and utility of fish stories. In other words, Logan "spilled the beans."
"What success did your dad have at fishing?" he was asked. "Fine," responded the boy. "He got the biggest fish over there and it only cost him a dollar. We met a fish boat just as it reached shore and dad bought the biggest one they had."
But that wasn't all. The youngster proudly boasted about the three crabs he had procured. Only the crabs were already boiled and they cost the fish about as much as the "big fish Amos caught."
Logan, undoubtedly, is due for a torrid session tonight when his dad learns of this frightful exposure of his fishing trip.

Green is federal prohibition administrator for Northern California and Nevada. An investigation of his regime resulted this week in publicly branding him as a liquor law violator and announcement was made that a federal grand jury would be summoned to sift charges against him.
When the accusation was first made Green insisted he was the victim of a "frame-up" on the part of those whom he had prosecuted.
But upon his arrival here he went into conference with federal authorities, during which he is said to have admitted the various charges. He admitted drinking and said he generally kept a good stock of liquor in his rooms where he frequently entertained parties of friends.

GRANTS PASS PLAYS LOCAL TEAM SUNDAY

Ashland Ball Club Expects Hard Fought Game Here Tomorrow

MOHLER WILL PITCH
Southpaw Hurler Ready to Lead League Leaders to Another Victory

Sunny Mohler, with his India rubber southpaw hurling arm, is scheduled to start on the mound for Ashland tomorrow when the local club lines up against the revamped Grants Pass club at the Jackson Hot Springs diamond. Phil O'Brien probably will do the receiving for Ashland's southpaw ace, with old reliable Emory Davis and Bill Force as catcher ready to step in any time.
With its new line-up Grants Pass is now one of the strongest teams in the league and figures to give the local a real battle from start to finish. The new catcher, Collins, has made a remarkable difference in the playing of the Grants Pass club, and with Michaels hurling to somebody who can handle him, the Cavemen have a battery which is always threatening. The fact that Grants Pass topped Medford from the top of the heap and helped Ashland to ascend indicates the strength of the club.
The local club will present its usual line up in both the infield and outfield, and expects to strengthen its hold on the league leadership.
It is hoped that the fans will turn out in full force for tomorrow's game as only one more game will be played on the home field after this Sunday, and whatever encouragement the boys get tomorrow will be just that much aid in helping them to maintain their present winning gait.
The game will start promptly at 2:30.
