

WORKERS START ON TEN-DAY HOLIDAY

MANCHESTER, Eng., July 20. —(AP)—Cotton-mill workers in fourteen Lancashire towns striked this afternoon to indicate that the famous Lancashire "wakes"—the ten days migratory holidays of the Northern millhands—was formally begun.

Not a mill will start up until a week from Tuesday when their employees will have returned having spent the last farthing—all except fifty cents left prudently under the clock at home—every penny which they have saved for the annual "wakes."

The total sum thus saved and disbursed is enormous. Figures published early in July for fourteen Lancashire towns showed that the workers, in spite of the strike and of short hours in the American cotton-spinning section, had saved nearly $5,000,000 for their holidays. Similar figures from milltowns in Yorkshire, Cheshire and other industrial districts bring the totals up to many millions.

This money is collected by weekly subscriptions at every mill throughout the year and is a big item in Lancashire and Yorkshire banking. It amounts to about $15 a head or around $50 a family. It is saved separately, and has nothing to do with the family's ordinary savings account. The banks passbooks plainly label it "wakes money." It was drawn out yesterday on such a huge scale that the banks, as usual, were forced to draw heavily on the London money market in order to finance the "wakes" with clean new banknotes, clean new bills, and clean new silver.

Tomorrow every milltown will hum with the exodus. Trains will be packed to suffocation; charabancs will crowd the town squares, load up and whiff their happy occupants to Black Pool, New Brighton and other holiday places.

Yorkshire sends thousands flooding eastwards to Scarborough and Bridlington and Whitby. Other charabancs invade the South, down as far as the Isle of Wight. Other parties, pooling their resources, make a bee-line for the Continent. Couples go off happily on their own, much to the interest of English playwrights who have more than once found the Lancashire "wakes" a fruitful theme for drama. A motor-bicycle with side-car or even a "peach-patch" behind, complete with the grand exodus.

Authorities agree that very little money is spent for drink during the "wakes" though the crowds are rather noisy in trains and charabancs and might give the stranger a contrary impression. The money has to be spent with some care lest it give out and the holiday makers forced to return home prematurely. The great aim of those who participate in the "wakes" is to come home on the very last day—without a penny.

Why pay a small fortune for pipe tobacco?

THERE'S NO NEED to slap a mortgage on the old homestead every time you buy pipe tobacco. No sir! Not now, when Granger Rough Cut adorns the shelves of tobacco-shops everywhere.

A few years back, good tobacco did cost a fortune. In those days Granger, too, would have been expensive. But today, thanks to large-scale buying, new machinery and more economical packing, it's possible to sell this extraordinary tobacco most reasonably.

All ripe old Burley... the choicest pipe tobacco known to man. Mellowed by the same recipe that made Jim Wellman famous back about 1870. It's cut especially for pipes, too... in large flakes that burn slowly, and so (underline this) it smokes cooler... by several degrees!

Cool... spicy... mild... and mellow! No man ever smoked any better pipe tobacco. Not on this planet, anyhow!
