WHAT CONSTITUTES ADVERTISING: All notices, orders, where an admission charge is made or a collection taken is advertising.

NOT REPRESENTATIVE: According to information which has come to The Tidings, the county court is planning an exclusive exhibit of pears at the Oregon state fair this fall, just as was done a year ago.

While we are willing to agree with members of the county court that the pear orchards of this fertile and favored section are deserving of special honor, yet we do not concede to the pear growers or to the county court the right to feature this one industry at the annual state display to the exclusion of all others.

For our part we would rather see a Jackson county exhibit which will be truly representative of every section of the county; an exhibit which can be furnished by rich and poor alike; one which will give the state fair visitor an opportunity to get a better understanding of the varied farm resources of Jackson county.

Last year it developed upon the Talent Irrigation District to furnish a complete exhibit of the farm resources of this county, and indications are that this same district will again be called upon to give state fair visitors complete information regarding the productiveness of Jackson county soil again this year.

It is the belief of The Tidings that it would have been much better had the county court voted to arrange for a complete county-wide exhibit, in which the famed Rogue river pears would be featured, but which would likewise do justice to all of the county's diversified farm industries.

THERE IS NO FOOL'S PARADISE: It is a noticeable fact, that ease of living and prosperity often bring discontentment, while adversity strengthens the character and offers an incentive to accomplish seemingly impossible results.

And so it is with nations and states. The United States which is probably the most prosperous country on the globe, and which has had the most free and democratic form of government for 150 years, is constantly attacked by political theorists who would exchange our governmental structure for a dangerous mess of pottage.

When we were struggling for freedom, necessity forced us to devise and adopt a constitution which would protect the individual from oppressive officialism. In our day of prosperity and power we listen to schemes that would undermine our constitution and detract from the liberty of the individual.

We have seen North Dakota swing toward a socialistic form of government where the state competes with its own citizens in business, thus destroying personal opportunity and initiative. We have seen Iowa encouraging paternalistic experiments which run contrary to the law of second economics, and promise to create a fool's paradise by legislative edict.

INDUSTRIALIZING THE WEST: What the industrial opportunities of the Far West are and how to go about disclosing them was the subject of a course of lectures given by E. W. McCullough, Manager of the Department of Manufacture of Chamber of Commerce of the United States at the Western School for Commercial Secretaries, Stanford, July 25 to 31.

The transition of the country from an agricultural to an industrial nation and the decentralization of industry following the westward trend of population are the major aspects of the subject to be dealt with by Mr. McCullough. How this general movement effects western cities and towns, what opportunities they offer for industrial development, how their advantages and disadvantages may be brought to light by scientific surveys, and the services that may be rendered to industry through cooperative effort were dealt with more in detail.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON — Whether or not President Coolidge is a candidate for renomination in 1929 depends on the coming congressional elections.

If the administration is vindicated at the polls next November that is, if a majority of the Coolidge kind of Republicans are elected to the next senate and lower house—he can be renominated by wanting to be, and nobody doubts that he will!

If the Democrats and insurgent Republicans—a strong wave of insurgency in his own party will be worse for him than some Democratic gains—get even the senate, to say nothing of the house, away from him, it will be a pretty convincing sign that the country has turned him down.

May Not Try
In that event it will be doubtful if he can be renominated, no matter how hard he tries, and the probabilities are he will say he prefers not to be a candidate again.

Political Washington assumes that President Coolidge, if eliminated himself, will try to throw the nomination to Secretary of Commerce Hoover. Hoover will hardly be much more satisfactory to Republican insurgency than Coolidge is.

Still, a retiring president, even though he retires against his will, is in a position to be very helpful to his choice of a successor. In such a situation in 1928, Hoover's chances will depend on how strong Republican progressivism is then.

If the progressive group in the party makes a formidable showing in the fall, Senator William Borah's presidential prospects will immediately improve. With regard to Borah as a particularly safe bet yet, Washington's impression is that he may develop into one on short notice almost anytime.

Lowden Strong
As a farmer's candidate Frank O. Lowden is spoken of here as the likeliest selection. Should the corn belt prove, in November, to be in a frame of mind which absolutely demands placation, it is believed here that Lowden will be quite a likely choice.

Many Witnesses Will Be Called

SEATTLE, Wash., July 21. — Names of seventeen new witnesses in the Wallace G. (Bob) Gaines murder case were announced by the state yesterday afternoon, and the list served on Gaines' attorneys.

INDIANS PROVE TO BE GOOD FARMERS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 21. — (UP)—The once accepted belief that the only good Indian is a dead one, and that "modern civilization is creating a vanishing race, the Indian," certainly does not apply to the majority of the Ute and Uncompaghe tribes in Utah.

A blue ribbon prize trophy for prize boys or alfalfa dangling from the hand of a brave has supplanted the scalp as a symbol of glory.

Approximately 1300 Indians reside on the Ouray Ute reservation in Utah and when a federal agricultural agent from Washington who has just completed a survey of their progress checked his figures he found they have 25,000 acres of land now under cultivation, virtually all irrigated.

The chiefs of these tribes and their squaws are, setting an example for their people, too, he found.

Chief Red Finger Nails has purchased a home and garden in addition to his farm so his children can attend school throughout the term next year.

Chief Little Snake Pete Mountain Sheep has obtained several thousand chickens to add to his farming activities.

Chief Grasshopper, undaunted by poor seed crops last year is planting on a wider scale this year.

At the recent Ute basin agricultural exhibit the Indians carried off as many blue ribbons as the whites.

The Indian boarding school at White Rocks with an enrollment of 141 has an average attendance of 98 per cent, equaling, and in many cases bettering that of white schools throughout the country.

OUT OUR WAY By Williams

The value of reputation

The value of a man is what he does, the worth he shows the world. He may be ever so good inside. If he doesn't prove it, he's worthless.

The value of a watch, a skillet, an automobile, is what it does, the worth it shows its user. It may be of highest serving power. If it can't prove it, it's useless. The reputation of any product is the known proof of its worth. The value of that known proof is that you can recognize it.

When you buy an advertised watch or skillet, you buy value with a reputable manufacturer's name behind it. You don't have to wait till you use it to know it. The qualities which made it advertisable have proved the worth for you. You need only ask for the product by name. Fastened securely to that name are quality, service, satisfaction.
