GROUSE SEASON IN ENGLAND NOW OPEN

LONDON, Aug. 13.-(UP) Today marked the opening of the "grouse season" in Scotland—the annul aexodus of the fashionable and the sport-loving to those 2,-400 separate moors or 'shootings' in Scotland where grouse abound. All signs point to an excellent

The King and Queen, it is understood, will go to Balmoral on the 17th; this marks the eclipse of the London social season with "nobody left in town."

American millionaires will be rouse season. With their comfortable purses they manage to rent some of the finest shootings in the country. Many Scottish landowners make far more money from the wild furze-covered moors on their places than they do from their farms and sheep runs.
