POSSE FINDS LOST ANGLER FROM ASHLAND

L. C. Hendrickson, Local Plumber, Has Harrowing Experience

LOCATES OLD CABIN

Spends Two Days and Two Nights In Rough Lost Lake Country

After being lost in the rough and densely wooded country in the vicinity of Lost Lake since Sunday afternoon, L. C. Hendrickson, 56, a plumber employed by the Provost Hardware company, was found by a searching party yesterday afternoon.

Despite his harrowing experience Mr. Hendrickson suffered no ill effects from his enforced stay in the woods, and will be able to return to work within the next day or two.

Hendrickson has been doing some plumbing work at the shale oil field for the Pacific Lumber and Shaleries. He left alone early Sunday morning on a fishing trip to Lost Lake.

He fished down a mountain stream which empties into the lake, and started on his return to the state oil camp in mid-afternoon.

On the trip down he had failed to notice that the stream branched off near a 50-foot waterfall, and when he reached that point on his trip to camp he became confused and followed the wrong branch.

He was hopelessly lost when night overtook him. He slept out on the ground near the stream and ate berries.

He wandered about the precipitous hills and underbrush all day Monday seeking to find his way out, and just at dusk he came upon a deserted cabin in which he found a cache of food.

From the cabin he started out Tuesday morning walking a mile or two in each direction, leaving notes pinned to trees in case searching parties should be beating the underbrush for him.

He was engaged in this work when a searching party of six men from the shale oil development work found him. They escorted him back to camp yesterday afternoon and he came on into Ashland last evening to rest up from his adventures.

The searching party from the shale oil fields had looked for him all day Monday without success. The posse started out at daybreak Monday when he failed to return from his trip. They again took to the woods yesterday and located him a few miles from where he had been fishing.

Lost Lake is about five miles from where the shale oil development work is being carried on but is a treacherous country for those who are not acquainted with it.

CITY MANAGERSHIP FOR ASHLAND GOES OUT OF EXISTENCE

Council Repeals Ordinance and Accepts Malone Resignation

Ashland's city manager form of government met a quiet and painless death at the hands of the city council last night. On motion of Councilman Taylor, the council, without a dissenting voice, voted to accept the resignation of Clyde Malone as city manager. A few minutes later the ordinance creating the managership was rushed through under a suspension of rules, and Ashland had returned to the councilmanic form of government almost as speedily as it had taken up the managerial form.

Embodied in the motion to accept Mr. Malone's resignation was a resolution, also introduced by Mr. Taylor, voicing the appreciation of the council for the time, thought and energy which Mr. Malone had given in an effort to make the city manager form a success.

Councilman Burdick declared the council had simply agreed that the old order was more economical than the city manager form.

He denied there had been any friction between the council and the city manager. At least, he said, he knew nothing of it. Councilman Taylor declared that in his opinion the system could not be a success unless the people themselves approved it. He quoted statistics to show that city managers appointed by councilmanic ordinance instead of by the vote of the people, had not been able to carry out their work properly.

Federal Official Says Many Millionaires Are Being Made

CHICAGO IS CENTER

Windy City Declared To Be Headquarters for the Bootleg Industry

By Earl J. Johnson
CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—The traffic in malt, crockery, stills and other accessories of the home brewer and kitchen distiller has created a new class of American millionaires, according to Ed Yellowley, "ace" of Federal Prohibition administrators, who is in charge of enforcement in the hard drinking Chicago area.

Fortunes Made Daily
New fortunes are being founded every day in this industry which now embraces many of the niceties of other and more legitimate enterprises. Yellowley has learned as a result of a special investigation on which he hopes to base wholesale prosecutions among the local dealers.

Chicago is said to be the center of the industry and here Yellowley intends to set the pace for similar campaigns throughout the country. Here are some of the high lights of what the "ace" says he has discovered:

Intensive Salesmanship
That many dealers and manufacturers may employ "go-getter" salesmen who demonstrate and install the small beer or whiskey plants much after the fashion set by the washing machine salesmen.

That customers are instructed in the art of making and bottling their product, a part of the "service" include printed receipts for the various drinks.

That many of the more wary dealers evade the law against selling stills by delivering them "knocked down like mail order garages and small cottages."

CITY COUNCIL MAY SPEED UP BIG PROJECTS

Bond Issue for Improved Water System May Be Sought At Once

STREETS NEED FUNDS

$5000 Wanted At Once to Improve Our Highways Other Matters Up

Improvements, extensions and additions to Ashland's municipal water system will cost approximately $500,000, it was estimated by Mayor Johnson and members of the city council last night, and this is the sum the people probably will be asked to authorize in the forthcoming bond issue.
