CONSERVING FORESTS

The popular notion that the great forests of the West Coast were on the way of the other forests of America-headed for depletion, and only a matter of years when they would have disappeared, is exploded in an article by Henry Schott, Director West Coast Lumber Trade Extension Bureau.

Mr. Schott explains that the lumbermen of the West Coast are actually operating and planning their business and their installations on the basis of an industry not for the next twenty, forty or sixty years, but for all time—to maintain a permanent supply of lumber for the United States.

The policy under which the West Coast lumbermen are operating is to harvest the ripe forests and have the lumber go into useful purposes when it is at its best, and to grow a new crop just as the grain farmer of Kansas or Iowa operates in his grain fields.

The question arises why such facts were not brought to the attention of the conservation enthusiasts. That's for the lumberman to answer. Finally the responsibility for his neglect must come back to him.

Only recently have they come to the realization that it is a matter of duty to defend their industry and to challenge and refute statements so often based upon unconscious misinformation or ignorance.

As they have cooperated in conserving and protecting the forests against fire, they are now uniting to protect their industry against groundless aspersions.

Instead, the lumberman now brings the facts to the buyer. He is cooperating.

EATING FRUIT IS BENEFICIAL

The benefits derived from eating fruits are undoubted. Fruits are a natural and healthy stimulant to digestion. They act upon the digestive organs somewhat like green vegetables, but they have the additional advantages of containing acids and of appealing to the aesthetic sense.

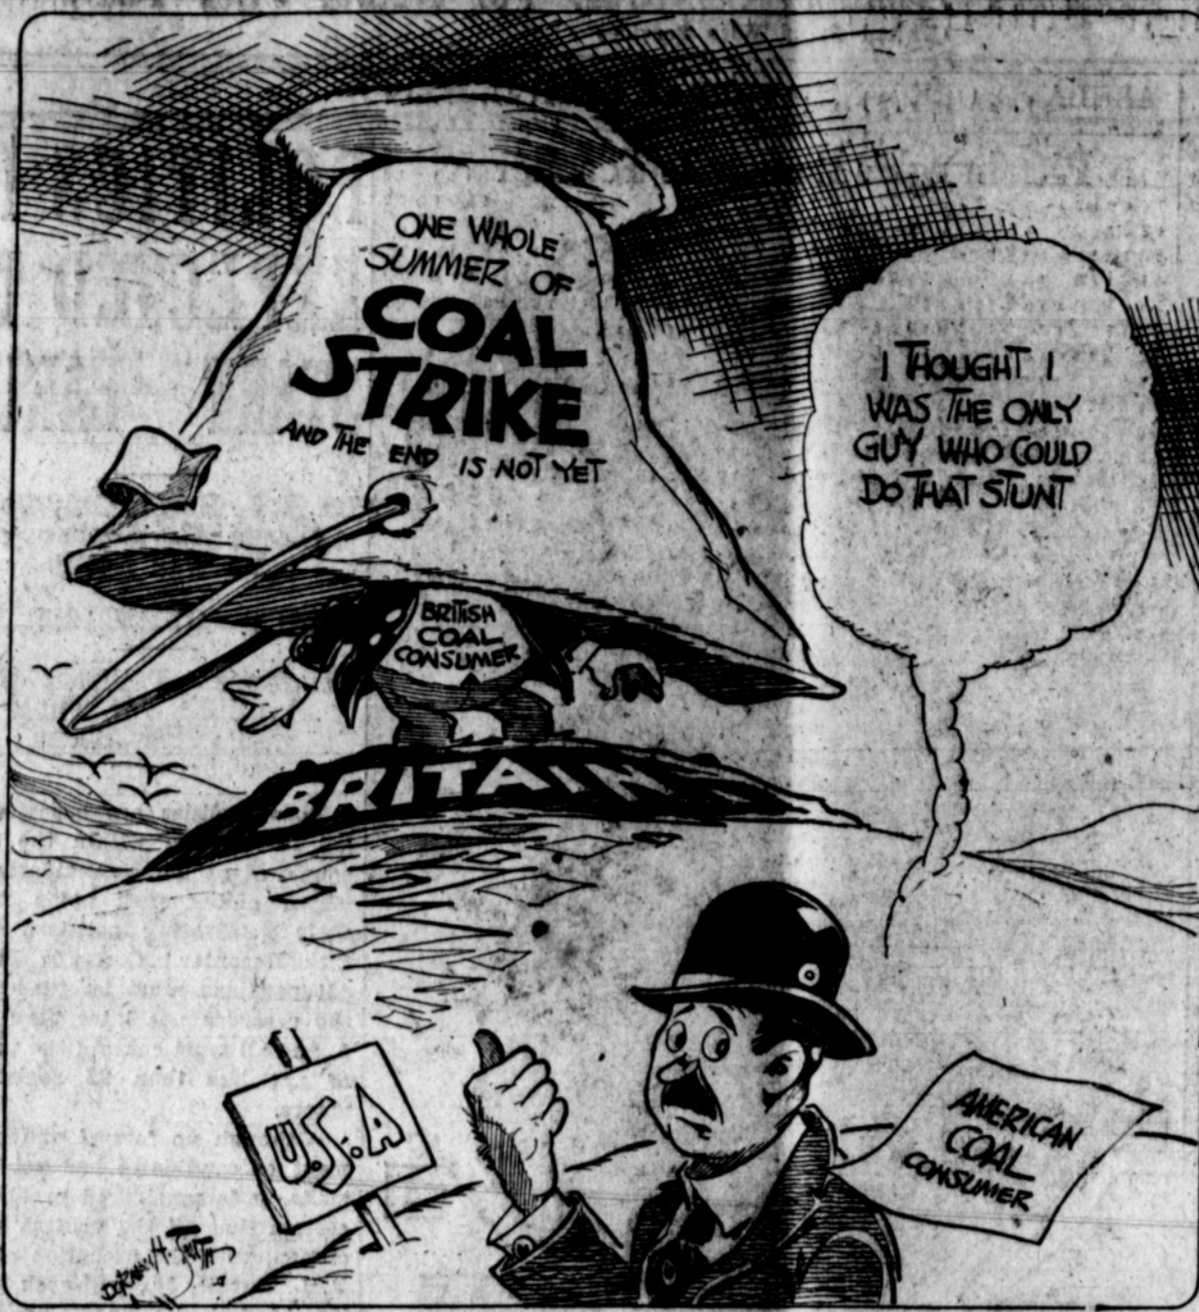

Children's physicians recommend that all babies of the age of six years should be given a small amount of mild fruit juice or tomato juice daily. This is particularly necessary in cases of infants' fed on cows' milk or prepared milk foods.

Fruit is one of the so-called protective foods and it should be used in some form daily. Fresh fruits, because of their large content of water, are always cooling, refreshing and appetizing.

When we chew fibrous fruit, such as raw fruit, it is said that we exert a pressure of 100 to 150 pounds on the teeth. This insures a good ventilation of the lungs, and in children, particularly, tends to develop better teeth and jaws.

Too much attention to diet, exercise, rest, etc., makes bad business for the underlaker.

Stealing Our Stuff

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART NEA Service Writer

Washington — Notwithstanding the congressional campaign, which gives politicians in their home states and districts something to think about, Washington will begin to wake up, congressionally speaking, about the middle of September.

There always is a great deal to do at a "short session" of congress, which convenes this year on Dec. 6, and not much time to do it in.

Actual legislation can't start in the absence of a special call by the president, of which there's little prospect—until the specified date in December, but committees can be getting things in shape to work rapidly in the scant three months before the law ends the 69th Congress "sine die."

The administration is particularly anxious to get things "snuggled down" next winter, because of apprehensions — of course not admitted, but felt, beyond any question — that it will lose control of the Senate at the November elections.

It so, the coming "short session" of the dying Congress will be its last chance to get its policies acted on as it wants them acted on.

Once acted on thus, the administration assumes that matters will "stay put" for the ensuing two years, inasmuch as it doesn't expect to lose control of the House of Representatives, too, however much it may be worrying about the Senate.

The Senate alone can't do any repealing. Even in the somewhat improbable event of a completely Democratic Congress the president can veto anything he dislikes, and it's unbelievable that the Democrats will make gains enough to override a presidential veto.

From Medford — Mrs. J. J. McMahon and son Robert of Medford were in Ashland last week visiting Mrs. McMahon's mother, Mrs. Bolton.

Gets 4 Point Deer — Wm. Curtis returned to Ashland Thursday with a 4 point deer. He has been hunting at Elk Creek.

From Talent — Mrs. C. W. Long of Talent was an Ashland visitor Wednesday.

SAP AND SALT

A sweet disposition is a sure cure for homeliness. Men listen to gossip as greedily as women spread it. Travel is a costly habit invented by railroads and hotels. Men like to be called "different," while women crave to be called clever.

A good deal more than stateroomship is needed to keep a country off the rocks. It really seems that many people get more enjoyment out of being fooled than out of being satisfied.

Left for Poughland — Mrs. Ruth Reed left Thursday for Portland to visit with her brother, whom she has not seen for eleven years.

FRINGE IMPORTANT ON EVENING GOWNS

BY HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK — (UP)—Fringe is most important for evening gowns and wraps this season. We find three tiers of fringe of five-inch width acting as a flounce effect at the bottoms of several smart velvet evening coats. Usually the fringe matches exactly the color of the velvet and it slips downward, slightly at the rear of the garment, extending upward toward the front.

The tendency to raise the waist line upwards in front is typical in many instances on Fall gowns. Where the rear of the gown has the deep blouse, the raised waist line is repeatedly used at the front.

The brimmed hat must be of drooping type to be considered smart, at present. Small, medium and wide brims are all being used in felts and velvets and brims are invariably slightly drooping.

From Klamath Falls—

Ms. and Mrs. Jackson F. Kimball of Klamath Falls were in Ashland Monday attending to business matters, and returned to their home on Tuesday.
