Pears Shipped From Medford—Thirteen more carloads of pears and five of apples were shipped from Medford last week to eastern and other markets by local packing houses, the number having been cut down somewhat from the higher daily average, it is said, because of rain and moist weather.

work in which her interest centers. Members and friends are again reminded of the "Pumpkin Sale." It is scheduled for early in October. All are asked to plan for it when they are doing their fall housecleaning. Articles that the housewife does not need, or want, may be of considerable value to someone else. Housewives are also reminded to set aside the jar of glass of fruit or jelly to help out the food sale, which is a part of the general plan.
Wednesday Club Meeting—Wednesday, September 22, the Wednesday Club, the social organization of the Presbyterian church, will have its initial meeting at Mrs. J. R. Robertson on Almond St. at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. George Brookmiller and Mrs. J. L. Harner will be the hostesses for the afternoon. They plan pleasant hours in an interesting program and entertainment. There will be the usual business meeting, but the greater part of the afternoon will be devoted to socialibility. Members are reminded to plan to be present; friends are expected and strangers are cordially invited, also, to these meetings. The Wednesday Club particularly welcomes the stranger; those but newly come to Ashland. Members are asked to bring some one who has not attended before with them, next Wednesday.
Homemakers Institute—It is not too early to remind women of Ashland that the "Homemakers Institute" will be held at Guild Hall of the Episcopal church in Medford on October 20, 21, 22, 23. Many things are planned of interest and profit for those who attend. Those who were present last year know in how many ways these sessions may be made helpful.
Teachers' Institute—An institute or preliminary teachers' meeting was held at Senior High building, Saturday morning. A social hour preceded the regular meeting, during which the many strangers were introduced and welcomed as a part of Ashland's teaching corps. Devotionals were led by the Rev. P. K. Hammond, vicar of Trinity Episcopal church. After a beautiful piano selection, played by Miss Laura Raguse, music and drawing teacher in the schools, Mr. Hammond, addressed the teachers. In the informal address given the speaker traced briefly the educational life of our nation. Beginning with the fact that in the thirteen colonies, prior to the Revolutionary period, there were seven institutions of higher learning, but the public schools were very poor, the progress made from that time until the present was noted. The requirements of a teacher now and that of even fifty years ago were compared. The speaker closed with stressing the importance of the teachers' work and the qualities that make for his success. Superintendent G. A. Briscoe, presided at this institute for city teachers, and introduced in happy vein the speaker, the Rev. P. K. Hammond. Announcements were made relative to the afternoon sessions; the teachers at Washington building meeting their principal there for the grade meeting; those of Junior High, meeting Miss Myers at Junior High and the teachers of Lincoln school meeting Superintendent Briscoe at that building at 2:00 o'clock. Superintendent Briscoe then talked in friendly fashion, welcoming the strangers, offering many helpful suggestions and outlining somewhat plans for the coming year. Baptist Missionary Society—The Missionary Society of the Baptist church met Wednesday afternoon at the church, with Mrs. H. P. Holmes, leader for the topic, "The Education of the Negro." Mrs. Frank Bewick, president of the society, held a short business session. This was followed by devotionals, led by Mrs. Holmes who drew the lesson from John 8:12. The first number on the program was "English Home Mission Schools." These were enumerated by Mrs. H. O. Anderson, who gave a brief description of them and the work they are doing. Mrs. Alta Hansen gave a talk on "Spelman College, giving a detailed account of the work accomplished by this fine institution.

"Negroes Now" by Mrs. Frank Bewick, pictured the advancement the colored people have made in the past few years and work they are accomplishing along many lines. A missionary story, "Billie and His Pal" told by Miss Morehouse, brought out the necessity for trained service in accomplishing the best results. Three talks were given on the Mather school; a. Our charge, by Mrs. Floyd Travis; b. Founders' Day, by Mrs. Sekaworth; c. The New Dormitory, by Mrs. Hopper. These described in detail the church's relation to that institution and the work that is being done there. A vocal solo by Miss Eugenie Hagen, with Miss Morehouse at the piano, was enjoyed very much by the society. Mrs. H. B. Holmes was in charge of the program and also added a very interesting account of the use to which the old John Brown Fort at Harper's Ferry is being put at present. This organization meets the third Wednesday of the month.
D. A. R. Observes Constitution Day—The pleasant Boulevard home of Mrs. J. P. Dodge was the scene of the official observance of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States, by Mount Ashland Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The rooms were beautifully decorated with great masses of lovely dahlias, sent by Mr. Harry Hosler, in honor of the occasion, this being the second year that the D. A. R. have been the recipients of the delightful courtesy. Promptly at the hour the Regent, Mrs. Harriet C. Fielding opened the session, following the beautiful ritual used by the society. At this time, the recently purchased flag was used in salute and the American's Creed was read by Miss Carrie Mitchell. The roll call brought out many interesting items of the "Framers of the Constitution." Reports from the officers and standing committees were made and accepted. Those whose work was finished were discharged with appreciation voiced in a vote of thanks from the Daughters. The minutes of the two called meetings, one of the officers at the home of the Regent, and one at the library, were read and approved. Mrs. Fielding, as the initial number of the program, read the President General, Mrs. Broseau's address, stressing the call by the American Legion for the cooperation of the Daughters of the American Revolution in an educational campaign and a drive for citizens to register and enroll in some party for the performance of civic duties and obligations. In adding pertinent remarks Mrs. Fielding quoted President Coolidge, in two instances, relatives to voting. Conferences are called by the Legion for September 21. A "History of the Constitution" written and read by Mrs. Stella E. Adams, was of deep interest to the Chapter. In the paper, Mrs. Adams cited its great heritage from the heroic past, and told of the great statesmen, back of the builders of the Constitution; gave the condition of the colonies; traced the steps leading to the adoption of the great document; described the Convention of May 25, 1787; its work; its personnel and their attainments. The debates and difficulties and the signing of the memorable document on September 17, 1787, with the history of its ratification, closed a splendid resume of the history of an instrument which will be the subject for definite study by the Chapter during the coming year. Appreciation was expressed for this valuable paper. The Rev. P. K. Hammond, whose address was the feature of the afternoon's meeting, was induced in a few well chosen words by the Regent, Mrs. Fielding. An appreciation of the institution" was the speaker's theme and in a thoughtful and instructive introduction. "People get the kind of government that they deserve," said the speaker. The peculiar condition of the thirteen colonies was graphically pictured. Though widely separated by difficulties of travel, differences in climate and population; the people of differing opinions and nationalities, yet dominant were love of liberty and justice. The outstanding qualities of these colonists were noted, the situation in the old world described and also that in the new (one of growth). Sketching briefly the unsettled state during the war and afterward, the necessity for the Constitution was emphasized. "It was the necessary complement to the Declaration of Independence." "It is a working instrument." In voting the speaker's eloquent appreciation of the Constitution, he quoted the preamble, "From a weak confederation the country under it has become the envy of the world." The Constitution of the United States was compared to that of other countries; leaders also who served under it and under others. Mr. Hammond described the situation as it appears today, with some of the contributing causes; closing, he pointed to America's idealism, its desire for service, its hope and its faith, based upon the principles underlying the instrument. A grand appeal. Grateful acknowledgments were made by Regent and Chapter to Mr. Hammond for his courtesy in bringing his inspiring message. Prior to adjournment for the beautiful social hour which followed, various communications were read. Guests were then conducted to the beautifully appointed tea table at which Mrs. Loris Dodge and Mrs. Loomis presided. The hostess, Mrs. J. P. Dodge, was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Jessie B. Dodge and Mrs. Nellie Loomis.
