- THE DAILY TIDINGS EDITORIAL and FEATURE

ESTABLISHED IN 1876

Sal of regularies Il the

C. J. READ, MANAGING EDITOR

W. H. PERKINS, NEWS EDITOR

PUBLISHED BY THE ASHLAND PRINTING CO.

ASHLAND DAILY TIDINGS OUT OUR WAY

ed at the Ashland, Oregon Postoffice as Second Class Mail Matter

Ukrainian Chorus

We feel that the entertainment committee of he Southern Oregon Normal School are performing a signal service in presenting the Ukrainian Vational Chorus as the second number of a series f cultural entertainments for the school year. This horus is of nation and world-wide fame and we are positive that this attraction will have the united support not only of Ashland but of all Southern Oregon. We understand that a large delegation of music lovers from Grants Pass have already reserved seats. Full attendance will be evidence that the Normal School has the support fo the community in work of this character.

The Busiest Christmas

Evidently Santa Claus is going to have the busiest time he ever had getting ready for Christmas this year.

Christmas club savings alone amounted to about $400,000,000. This tidy little sum will buy quite a few Christmas presents. It means $15 to $20 a family for the whole nation.

That is only a starter for Christmas spending. Most families have other savings. If not, they have their good incomes to depend on and an unprecedented volume of credit. Employment holds up well, at high wages and people can afford to buy in greater volume, perhaps, than ever before. The nation may spend a billion dollars for Christ-

These last weeks of 1926 should provide very good business to wind up a year that already has an excellent business record.

Save Old Ironsides

Secretary Wilbur of the navy department announces that only $225,000 has been collected of the $650,000 needed to save Old Ironsides, veteran of 42 sea battles, from the junk heap.

"Surely this gallant old defender of our young nation is worth saving as a living reminder of our glorious pact," Mr. Wilbur commented. Surely it is. When the collection was started it was the intention to raise much of the money needed by appealing to the school children of the nation. For one reason or another the money has been coming in more slowly than was at first expected. We should prefer to have the fund completed through private gifts and believe that the Legion, the Sons of the Revolution and other patriotic organizations, should take a renewed interest in the matter.

The old frigate Constitution is greatly in need of repair. Unless the work is undertaken speedily, it may be too late. Whatever deficit remains after vigorous efforts have been made to get the money together privately should be supplied by congressional appropriation.

Team Work Wins

Team work won a victory for Notre Dame over Southern California last Saturday. Every cog in that fighting eleven-man machine worked with the ecision of clock work. The score was close. Calimia put forward her best. Her men, likewise, disayed a great brand of team work, but it was thy inferior to that of the "fighting Irish."

Today we heard a man remark that he hoped the time when cities would work like that fightng Notre Dame machine; when every citizen would fill his or her niche as well as did each of those football players.

This citizen dreams of a team of citizens, not eleven, but ten, twenty, fifty thousand, as the case may be, all working together for community victory; all fighting to place their town's colors on the top of the flagstaff.

His dream may be a little far-fetched, but at that we can unite more closely for the betterment of our community. Team work builds cities.

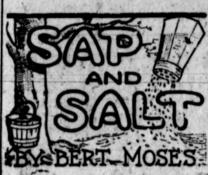

When the quarterback "barks" your signal. be prepared to plug the line for Ashland!

Florida is again ready for the rush. Every cash register damaged in the recent twister has been repaired.

Alonzo Stagg gave each of his Chicago unisity grid players a ticket to the Army-Navy ne, presumably on the theory that everyone is itled to see one football game a year.

By Williams Kiddies' Evening

Morals are local; what is good nere is bad there.

"Glad to see you" is probably the most popular lie ever told.

Some men keep their word for the very good reason that nobody will take it.

Anyhow, the man who claims be self-made takes all the blame to himself.

The hair turns gray before the beard because the beard is about twenty years younger.

The time that most men waste in explaining their falures would, if properly employed, put them on their feet again.

Hez Heck says: "If you want to git a full day's work out o' a man tell him he can have the afternoon

What Others Say

(Baker Herald)

A La Grande store celebrates its thirtieth birthday anniversary by publishing eight pages of advertising in the La Grande Observer. This is probably the first time any eastern Oregon business house ever ran eight pages of advertising in It illustrates the trend of the times in successful merchandising, for such large scale advertising is becoming quite common in many citles, large and small.

(Klamath Falls Herald) The Willamette valley has swollen streams. Up here in the mountains the rain king has been reigning for some time and we are the happiest people in Oregon over (Junction City Times) Down at Portland the peo-

the fact.

ple paid fabulous prices for the furniture in the room which was occupied by Queen Marie while here. When that hotel went to the expense of furnishing the room especially for the queen the people wondered how he expected to get his money back.

Today's advice is to do Christmas shopping late. You may forget some-

If Prince Carol wants the Rumanian throne so badly. why doesn't he come over here and indorse a few chairs? Then he can go back and buy twelve of them.

Santa Claus is coming, but we've seen a lot of stockings lately that were very well filled, thank you.

Now it looks as though they wouldn't cut the income tax after all. And we had counted on that quarter for Christmas, too!

What this country needs is a combination bath tub and telephone-disconnector.

Famous fallacies: "It really wasn't so much his fault. He was an only child, you know."

Story

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

Spud Coon's Resolution "I must tell you," said Duddy to Mick and Nancy, "about Spud Coon's New Year's resolutions.

"Spud Coon had been a very naughty raccoon during the Christmas holidays.

"He had been stealing a great many of France Wells," ablades.

many of Farmer Wells' chickens.
"He had given a number of chicken feasts and had also gone to many parties. "He had always come home very much exhausted and stayed asleep longer than he should have

"Of course, too many parties and too many chicken feasts and not enough rest and good exercise made Spud Coon feel quite poorly. "He got extremely worried about himself, and one evening—it was New Year's Eve, by the way—Spud Coon decided he would go see Dr.

"Now, Dr. Red Fox had been very naughty when he was a little fox, but age had given him a great deal of common sense, and he was as clever as a fox can be, which is pretty clever, you know.
"Spud Coon found him all alone in his office, which was about a mile through the woods from where Spud Coon lived.

"Dr. Red Fox was seated on

He Looked Very Wise.

mously big book, and he looked very wise with his spectacles on "How do you do, Spud Coen? said Doctor Fox, as he looked up from his book. "'Oh, very poorly! I'm afraid I am going to die,' replied Spud Coon. "'Why, what's the trouble?'

in my head, and my legs ache, and I don't know what is the matter with me! "Doctor Fox took his spectacles off his nose and, leaning back on the stump, sighed heavily. "'Well, I know what the trouble is, Spud Coon; you've been eating too much rich food, and too much is bad for you.

"Then you've stolen it and your conscience is troubling you, for you really are a good coon at heart, and no sleep at the right time—not good!

"'You should get up and exercise and hunt for your food and then you'll feel well.

"But if you keep on like this, and Doctor Fox looked very grave 'you'll be all doubled up with rheu-matism so that your joints will get stiff and you will not be able to walk without limping and no on will care for you.'

"Spud Coon felt for a few moments that he could never give up the feasts and the good times and the lazy life, so accustomed to them had he become, and he had greatly enjoyed his lazy and gay life. "But he realized how dreadful if would be to grow old and infirm before his time, so he bravely de-cided that his New Year's resolutions would be to do as Dr. Red Fox had said so he could once more be a good and strong creature."

(©, 1926, Western Newspaper Union.)

Buy Christmas Seals - they stand for education and prevention along health lines.

ACQUITTED OF MURDER COMMITTED BY "WITCH"

ST. POELTEN, Austria, (UN) A court has acquitted Johann Cal., today, where he expects to Lanegger, Maria Muchlberger, "witch" might have committed

On the night of the murder. Lanegger, his body a bruised and Ashland under Postmaster Brunk bloody mass, staggered into the George W. Hoxie, formerly em- for six months past and is recog- home of a neighbor and screamed ployed at the quarry which is fur- nized as a careful and thoroughly hysterically that a "witch" had nishing th estone-crusher with reliable young man who is beaten him and murdered his

> The police, however, gathered sufficient evidence to prove that Miss Carelyne Roper arrived Lanegger knew more about the come Friday evening from San crime than he cared to tell and At the trial Lanegger admitted the parental home in Ashland. Frau Muchiberger and that severnot the "witch." He stuck to his story, however," that the "hob-R. P. Neil was looking after geblin" had entered the house him unconscious. When he awoke evidence indicated that "some- ted the grime.

"TRACKED BY THE POLICE," starring Rin-Tie-Tie, is a

Among the things that have sustained Jimmy Ford through the horrors of war in France are letters from his sweetheart, Ruth Allen. One of these letters upsets him, because it tells of the attention Dan Murtagh, a politician, pays her in Jimmy's absence. In his heartbreak he volunteers for a dangerous raid. A German war dog gives her life to save his. Jimmy, in gratitude, adopts her puppy, and smuggles it home after the war. Jimmy's father, a police lieutenant, swift and joyous action, pur Jimmy's father, a police lieutenant, is mysteriously murdered. Jimmy joins the Force to avenge him; and has an able ally in Rin-Tin-Tin, now full-grown-

CHAPTER 3-Continued But being a "one man dog" put no limitations upon the number of women a shaggy fellow might cher-ish, so Rinty whole-heartedly loved two of the sex—Widow Ford and two of the sex—Widow Ford and Ruth Ailen. The first with dignity, the second with off-hand condescension. Of course for the present Rinty's innate modesty—to say nothing of convenience—kept him from adding Ruth to his list of morning calls; but he had hopes!

Mrs. Ford, though, was on his list, last, but not least. Rinty awoke her now, not by the indelicate process of pulling off the covers, nor the coarse method of barking, nor yet by roughly playing ing, nor the coarse method of barging, nor yet by roughly playing nips, but by gently muzzling the hand she habitually finng lone-somely over the space where her Jim used to sleep in the bed beside her. A compassionate and understanding touch that Rinty had taught himself.

Breakfast in the Ford home. The Breakfast in the Ford home. The widow fussing lovingly over the preparation of toast and bacon and eggs and coffee, while Rinty played alternately valet to Jimmy and pet to the mother, and lazy and fat and wheezy Flaherty shifted for himbalf so far as Rinty was concerned. self, so far as Rinty was concerned.

Rinty placed the cap upon the young blucoat's head.

Not that Rinty and Flaherty were enemies; the beefy man, who was next on the promotion list for a sergeantcy and had already anticipated his appointment by at-taining the "bay window" behind and above which all good police sergeants confront a derisive and disorderly world, really loved the glant dog. Rinty unemotionally tolerated Flaherty—liked him even except for his borssome and undecorous habit of pulling a fellow's hair and wanting to "shake hands" every minute when there was realno social necessity of shaking

It was thus every morning: "Rinty, fetch my shoes," from Jimmy. "Rinty, good boy, here's an eggshell for you," from the widow.
Rinty loved eggshells. Possibly because they sounded so nice in the chewing. "Here, Rinty, shake hands," from Flaherty.

Before Flaherty.

Before Flaherty had more than one side of his face shaved Jimmy and Rinty were fed and spruced up and ready to depart. They always breast—the other last goodbye, the left half an hour earlier than need be—these two pals who shared not only the dangers and innumerable emergencies of the daily guarding of the sidewalks of New York, but the love of Ruth Allen too. Which the love of Ruth Allen too. the love of Ruth Allen too. Which eyes turned involuntarily to the is why they left ahead of time—so framed picture of Jim, the man, in that they might have the opportu-nity of visiting with Ruth for a few cherished minutes each morn-the latter had become the former ing, noon or night, whatever hour to her. The boy was the father Jimmy's assignment took him and the father the boy. The one live Rinty forth. Of course these precious fragments of daily meetings—holding hands there at the top of the frayed carpeted stairs in the dim upper hallway, while Rinty thumped muffled approval on the ancient Axminster—were in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday and Sunday night courting. That is, in so far as those eld-fashioned sweetheart evenings could be accommodated to the varying hours of Jimmy's coply duty. Some months, with Jimmy on night work, Wednesday night would take place on Saturday morning—in the social scheme of Ruth and Rinty and him. Tis a matter of small convenience to be the sweetle of a cop!

On in the other.

Meanwhile in Jimmy Ford's stiff boyish heart there were less grave and spiritual things on tap as he betook himself on swift feet to the attic where dwelt his love. Rinty paced beside him, silently and alertly and with an all-encompassing dignity that befitted his posting digni Rinty forth. Of course these pre-cious fragments of daily meetings Meanwhile in the sweetle of a cop!

The scraping back of Jimmy breakfast table was an electric signal that galvanised Rinty into swift and joyous action, punctuated with short clipped yelps of eagerness and delight. With a bound and a leap he seized Jimmy's blue cap from its hook on the back of the kitchen door. Prancing with an awkward grace that made his actions seem quaintly puppy-like, Rinty then stood on his hind feet and placed the cap upon the young and placed the cap upon the young bluecoat's head. So gigantic was Rinty that he could still have done this stunt had Jiramy been a head taller. Rinty always put the cap on backwards — deliberately — because he loved to hear Jimmy scold; loved to duck the heavy hand that Jimmy swooped playfully at his head—duck it as a fencer or a skilled boxer would, for the next minute his teeth flashed in from the side and closed with a laughing Jimmy's free hand and Rinty was away with a bound to open the kitchen door, a feat that forded him a good deal of pride in the doing, but not much real difficulty, so agilely did his teeth and his padded paws work in harmony with his smart canine brain, the teeth gingerly turning the key and sliding the bolt, the forepaws clumsily, yet efficiently, turning the "Sure Rinty always reminds me of a man with boxing gloves whin he's openin' that door," said Flaher-

"If you had boxing gloves on those hams of yours you wouldn't be able to open doors except with an axe, so that makes Rinty smarter than you," teased Jimmy.

"There's more truth in poetry than appears to the eye," queth Flaherty, who was always repeating proverbs and never set one.

ing proverbs and never got one straight.

as one apart and detached, looking at Jimmy with a fondness and an affectionate intensity that gave her silvery framed face an aura of unearthliness, of premature spirituality. Jimmy felt the strange sano-tification, yet could not fathom it; a more erudite and philosophie stranger might have thrilled at the apparent embodiment of furloughed immortality in the manner in which she fondled and guided and guarded her boy with her eyes. Every soft look a prayer.

Rinty felt it. There his instinct served to bring him closer to the essential and fundamental truth than Jimmy's blundering masculine eason. Rinty knew it for the purest ray of serene mother leve. Consequently he trod gently and consequently he trod gently and with reverent dignity as he padded to the widow after he had opened the door. Up—up—on his hind legs he reared, resting his paws so lightly on the littleshedy's frail shoulders that they never wrinkled even ever so slightly the prim gingham of her house wrapper. Then he timidly licked the creating front wave of her heat the cresting front wave of her hafr, the tip of her ear, with his rough tongue, the while worshipping her with his eyes. Then down and to the door to wait, his romping pro-clivities gradually coming back full blast as he champed through the final minute of Jimmy's departure Rinty looked on and barked with approval while Jimmy kissed his mother. He knew what Jimmy did not know—that the kiss was a benediction, a breathed plea for his safe return. For the widow had not forgotte would never forget so le the heart fluttered within her thin other stark and silent return. Of

(To be continued)

he said, his mistress was dead.

thing or someone" had entered The court acquitted him, be- the house unobserved by either of business affairs in Jacksonville during the quarrel and knocked cause, the judge explained, the two combatants and commit-

TURNING THE PAGES BACK

ASHLAND 10 Years Ago

Walter Smith navigates on ber Company.

Clarence Adams has received letter from William Rinehart of Wasco, Ore., stating that he is closing out his property interests and will move to Ashland to make his home. Mr. Rinehart is quite well to do and will build a fine

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Murphy returned last Thursday from their oneymoon, trip to Portland. They made their home in Medford. Mr. Murphy is proprietor of the Murphy Motor Car company of Ashland.

Mr. and Mrs. Hal McNair of Ashland visited Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown of Talent yester-

ASHLAND 20 Years Ago

Mrs. L. L. Mulit and infant son crutches as the result of catching arrived Sunday from Berkeley, his foot under a log over near Cal., where they have been visit-Hilt in the camp of the Hilt Lum- ing for a number of months with before the board in session there Mrs. Mulit's mother, Mrs. A. Mc- this week, for a position in the the crime. Callen, and family.

> rock material used on Ashland street improvements, has gone to Wolf Creek, in Josephine county for a visit with relatives.

> Miss Mary Downing of Ashland. has entered the Beethoven School of Music at St. Louis to continue her musical studies and perfect herself in the art.

Mrs. Dr. J. S. Parson returned home Sunday from a visit to Oakland, California.

ASHLAND 30 Years Ago

Ray Mathews went to Redding, take the civil service examination upholding his contention that a railway mail service. Ray has been a clerk in the postoffice at bound to succeed in the ambition mistress. to enter the railway mail service.

Francisco and was accompanied they arrested him. by her sister, Mrs. G. C. Carr and little son, who will make a visit that he had an aftercation with Miss Roper is rapidly gaining al of his wounds had been inflictstrength after her recent siege ed by the murdered woman and at the hospital in this city.