THE MEANING OF STOMACH SYMPTOMS

By A. C. Stokes, M. D. Member Gorgas Memorial Inst. (Written for United Press)

CHICAGO, UP.—The stomach is the fire-box for the human engine. It is in the stomach and the first two feet of the small intestine that the major part of digestion is performed. In this area the food is prepared for absorption into the circulation.

The stomach is connected with the other portions of the body by an abundant supply of nerves. These nerves telegraph back to the stomach any disturbance which may occur at any portion of the body, whether it is the brain, kidney, lung, appendix, or gall bladder.

The substance of this telegram usually is, "there is trouble in your body—get rid of the fuel that you have in the stomach and intestines and do not take any more until the trouble is adjusted, at which time we will inform you." This telegram translated into words usually means stomach sickness, nausea, vomiting, and no desire whatsoever for food.

When the disturbance has ceased, the fact will be conveyed back by desire for food and ability to digest it. These symptoms arising from disease outside of the stomach are called reflex symptoms. That is, word is sent from the point of disturbance along the nerves to a central point and back to the stomach.

It is not an exaggeration to say that 90 per cent of all stomach symptoms are reflex—that is, caused by disease outside of the stomach. There are, of course, diseases of the stomach itself. These diseases have in most cases definite symptoms that a physician will recognize.

To illustrate this idea: if the appendix is pulled while the patient is not under an anesthetic the patient becomes sick at the stomach and vomits.

The beginning symptom of most contagious and infectious diseases is sickness at the stomach and vomiting. Illustrations of this kind are, influenza and cholera. In these cases eating of food of any quality, nor usually, has anything to do with the sickness at the stomach.

At these times and under these conditions, nature is turning all her efforts toward the eradication of the disease, and does not wish to be burdened with the extra load needed for digestion of food. The body is nourished from food already stored among the cells as fat until the progress of the disease ceases. The appetite then returns and the individual desires food again.

SHORT TALK BY THOUGHTFUL MOTHERS

An Indiana mother tells this: "We find nothing to compare with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs and colds. My little lad had trouble with his bronchial tubes from his third year, but since we started giving him Foley's Honey and Tar we have been able to control it. We know there is nothing to compare with Foley's Honey and Tar Compound." The very name tells a story. Good also for croup (spasmodic) and troublesome night coughs. Ask for it. Sold everywhere.—No. 2.

A Spectre of Death

Ten men died here. They were trapped when a shark jumped the cage in a tunnel in which they were working at Oakland Calif. But chance placing of an electric light cabinet, the cage in background created an illusion suggesting an even stranger tragedy. It's the illusion of a great, shadowy shark rising out of the muddy pool, as if in the act of gobbling up the ten human beings.

Normal Rookies Lose Quint Game

The Southern Oregon normal school second team was defeated, 24 to 13, in a basketball game with a Central Point team at Central Point last night. The normal school had several of its third string players in the lineup, and it was not the same second team which defeated Battery B here last Saturday evening.

SOUTH IS DAMAGED BY FLOOD WATERS

One, Lander Ellis of Gladys, W. Va., died a short time later.

Williamson, W. Va., in a narrow valley between high hills was flooded without warning by a sudden rise in the Tug river during the afternoon. Business houses were damaged. A wall of water roared down the valleys of the Cumberland and Kentucky rivers and the inhabitants of the lowlands fled to the hills.

Two men were drowned when the skiff in which they were escaping capsized, others in the boat reaching safety.

Near Danville, Ky., the Dix dam was splashing over the spillway and residents of the vicinity fled in terror.

Dungeon Drives Prisoner Insane

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Dec. 21. (UN)—After spending eight months in the San Quentin chancery, James Allen, sentenced to prison in March, 1923, when 19 years old, has been pronounced insane and committed to the state hospital at Ukiah.

According to prison authorities Allen was an incorrigible convict and repeatedly caused trouble. During the prisoner's stay in the underground dungeon he was fed on bread and water and given a substantial meal only once a week. He was released only for a day or two at a time, being returned to the dungeon after a short interval.

ROOT TRUSTERS TO PURCHASE PROPERTY

ing to the board, after sufficient has been deducted to erect a suitable monument in honor of those who made this gift to the city possible, will either be used to purchase additional land for the park or assist in carrying out which has just been announced. The members of the park board and the city council yesterday pledged themselves to see that every improvement necessary to bring the new addition up to the same high standard that is maintained in the balance of the park would be made just as rapidly as possible. The three members of the board of trustees who decided upon this gift are: H. V. Carter, President of the First National B. B. Dodge, president of the Citizens Bank, and W. J. Moore, president of State Bank of Ashland.

Editor's Note: In connection with the above gift to the city, many other substantial contributions have been made during the years that have gone by. The

I want to take this means of expressing the season's greetings, to the people of Ashland. I trust that the true spirit of Christmas will prevail throughout the city.
