County Health Notes

Tuberculosis and kindred diseases will be fought more vigorously than ever before in Jackson County this year by means of the Christmas fund. The total is now $17,924 with a number of schools yet to be heard from and 50 letters delayed in sending the money or returning the seals. Mrs. Holloway is receiving returns each day and soon expects to be able to announce that the goal of $1800 is reached, which would place Jackson county in a class with Multnomah and several other counties of Oregon and means that every inhabitant has averaged the purchase of 5 scales each. The two county nurses, Miss Jennings and Mrs. Noblit are finding tragic cases of advanced tuberculosis and some incipient cases which are new to this community, so feel the need of more funds than ever before. These new unfortunate and their many contacts will have the privilege of a chest clinic with Dr. Bellingier of Salem as soon as it can be arranged by the County Health Unit and County Medical Society, and in the mean time are receiving special attention.
 "We know what causes tuberculosis and we know exactly how to prevent it, and yet in spite of this knowledge, we have allowed it to take the lives of more Oregon people since the beginning of the flu epidemic than flu has taken in all these years," says an authority in Health First, the

VALENCIA IS FAMOUS FOR ITS SPANISH FANS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(UP) Valencia is the center of the Spanish fan industry, which employs almost 2,000 laborers in 40 factories, the Department of Commerce reports.
 Most of the work on these delicate products is done by hand and only the simplest machinery is used. Materials employed in the manufacture of Valencia fans include macra, galathea, fine woods, bone, silk, cotton, paper and feathers.
 These yearly exports of the fans are valued at $2,000,000 post-tax. They are sent to the West Indies and South American countries where the fan is an important accessory to the coquette's costume.

 Dear Editor:
 A friend and subscriber to the Tidings tells a good joke on himself relative to an attempt to insure a certain numbered license plate for his car. For reasons better known to himself he preferred No. 1, and wrote to Mr. Koser to learn of the necessary steps to be taken to obtain such. Mr. Koser's reply follows:
 Mr. —, Ashland, Oregon,
 Dear Sir:
 Acknowledgment is made of the receipt of yours of the 6th, requesting that license No. 1 be assigned to your motor vehicle for the year 1927.
 In reply, please be advised that it is not the policy of this department to promise the assignment of any special license numbers. Would state, however, that about December 11, 1926, a drawing will be held for the first license

WHITTLE TRANSFER CO.

Poor Richard's homely maxims are worth following for one exceedingly good reason: they were written by a man who knew whereof he spoke. Starting as a humble printer's apprentice, Franklin had to keep his "nose to the grindstone," but thrift and wise living made him rise to the heights, made him the friend and confidant of kings. He knew how to save as he earned—he knew how to save with a purpose.
 To the man who cannot learn that good lesson, life can offer few lasting pleasures. He can never learn the joy that exists in saving; he can never know the pleasurable anticipation of the benefits the bank account will bring. His years, with never any reserve fund to draw upon, may consist of one period of financial worry after another. The grindstone will have him, wear him down, keep him until he is gone. Happily for the world, the species of man who will not save is becoming almost extinct. Today, Monday, January 17, 1927, is the 221st anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birthday, and fittingly marks the opening of the tenth National Thrift Week. Each year of that ten has found savings bank deposits growing by leaps and bounds, and general prosperity growing in accordance. More and more people are joining the great army of Franklin followers, and saving with a purpose. They are saving for old age, for education, for a home—for innumerable causes.
 They are the successful people—the savings bank depositors! Are you one?
