Found Bottle—
Almost 19 years ago some person put a message in a bottle, sealed it and tossed it in the Rogue. On Feb. 4, the bottle was recovered and the message returned to the Courier office. The bottle contained a small slip of paper, with the date given as July, 1908. It was evidently thrown in the river at this point. On last Friday, Geo. Duffield, who lives at Galice, found the bottle in a pile of driftwood about a mile below the Argo mine. The note merely said, "Write to the Rogue River Courier."—Grants Pass Courier.

Many Entries Are Made for Ski Race

PORT KLAMATH, Feb. 12.—(Special)—With requests for entry blanks coming in from Bend, Mt. Hood, Truckee, Portland, McCloud and other coast cities, indications are now that at least twenty will be entered in the Fort Klamath-Crater Lodge ski derby, to be staged on Washington's birthday. With the recent announcement of the prize list which is headed by a cash prize of $250, to go to the skier who completes the forty-two mile course between here and Crater Lake Lodge and return in the shortest time, officials of the race have been swamped with requests for additional information, entry blanks, and requests for reservations from those who expect to visit this historic community on Washington's natal day.

Snow conditions continue to improve according to John Mablin, caretaker at the Lodge, who has just recently made a trip over the proposed trail. Continued thawing weather, as well as rains and snow in the mountains, has tended to settle the snow, and give it a firm foundation. This makes conditions ideal for skiing, and it is freely predicted that some excellent time will be made when the contestants finish the newest classic in Oregon's sportdom.

Announcement of the officials will be made within a few days, as tentative arrangements have been completed to secure judges from various parts of the state to assure impartial treatment to the entries.

FIRE THIS MORNING

The local fire department was called to the Lefler home at 940 B Street this morning about 10 o'clock, where they extinguished a small blaze which had started on the roof. No heavy damage was done, and the fire was quickly put out.

Income Tax Troubles Disappear

Mr. F. A. McGuin, Public Accountant late of Portland now residing at the Lithia Springs Hotel, can aid you if you are having troubles with your Income Tax of this or other years. He has had over fifteen years experience in the preparation of the returns of some of the largest corporations, partnerships and individuals in Oregon and may be depended upon to give satisfaction in all lines of accounting.

The preparation of Income Tax returns is particularly the job of the accountant as he can from experience advise you of the proper methods to be followed in your record keeping whereby at the end of each year the figures necessary to making a proper return are produced automatically. He may be consulted at any time by appointment and all matters brought to him will be treated with confidence.

The Flag

Lesson No. 1 (October Lesson)

The word "Flag" is from an Anglo-Saxon word fly or float in the wind. Some say from the German word "flackern" (to flutter.) The need arose back in primeval times for a sign to distinguish families and tribes and finally took the form of national ensigns from which we derived our flags. The American Flag is one of the oldest national flags in the world. It is said that the idea of combining stars and stripes came from Washington's coat of arms. It is also said that the first mention of a star ever made in connection with our Flag, and the original source of the idea was a poem published in 1774 in the Massachusetts Spy. Our Flag has been carried through six memorable conflicts with other nations but it has always gone into battle for the cause of liberty. Our banner represents to us and to the people of the world the principles for which our government stands. Henry Ward Beecher said, "Where you see a Nation's Flag you see not the Flag but the nation itself."

CORDIALLY,
(Mrs. Chas.) LOUISE V. BRAND,
National Chairman.

traffic often is stopped for days at a time because of heavy snow falls on the right of way. The chief operating expense of the line, according to its annual report, is caused by the necessity for almost constant use of snow removal equipment.

HERE ARE PROVISIONS OF McNARY BILL

- Major arguments sounded against the bill were:
- 1—It proposes to handle the surplus by increasing its volume, instead of either reducing production or increasing consumption.
- 2—It ignores the consuming public.
- 3—It proposes that the government shall handle a surplus ranging beyond $1,500,000,000 annually with guarantees against losses.
- 4—It is a price fixing scheme.
- 5—The equalization fee is unconstitutional.
- 6—It will injure the industry of animal husbandry.
- 7—It establishes a state of socialistic control.

When the Moffat Tunnel is completed, all of these difficulties will be eliminated. Trains will travel on almost level ground until they come to the entrance of the tunnel. There they will start climbing a gentle grade
