

How Henry Ford Was Injured

The scene of the crash in which Henry Ford was injured and a realistic illustration of how it happened are pictured here. Coming over the River Rouge bridge, near Dearborn, Mich., Ford's coupe was crowded off Michigan boulevard by a larger car. The coupe jumped the curb, went down the embankment, and crashed into the tree as shown in the picture.

Oldtime Gunmen Are Outclassed

DENVER, Colo., April 5.—(AP) The toughest outlaw who ever notched a six shooter in the gun slinging days of the old west was a tame customer compared to the modern gunman.

In fact he wasn't one fourth as bad as the sleek killer of today, who shoots and then yells "hands up," in the opinion of Colonel W. N. Breckenridge, who wore the two gun badge of authority as sheriff in Tombstone, Ariz., during its toughest days.

"In those times," explained the colonel, "they only killed when they had to. And they didn't shoot in the back. They generally gave the other fellow a chance to draw."

Colonel Breckenridge, now in his eighties is in Denver for the first time since as a lad of 16 he drove in with a mule train from St. Joe.

The same year he first visited Denver he enlisted in the army and took part in the historic Indian fight at San Creek, under Colonel Livingstone.

"They call that battle a massacre," he said, "but in those days killing Indians was like killing rattlesnakes. They were dangerous and cruel and the white men thought little of exterminating them."

It was after his discharge from the army that he drifted into Arizona, and later became sheriff of Tombstone, when the town was on the boom.

"The pay was good there and the town was full of gamblers," the old frontiersman reminisced. "Most of the gamblers were on the square. It was a business proposition and the fees the gamblers paid were turned over to the town's schools and kept them running until the mines closed."

"But Masterson was one of the dealers—square as they made them and a fast man on the draw. He always let the other gent draw first, and then killed him."

Many of the men who were called criminals in a sense were the cattle rustlers, the colonel said. "A lot of them though," he continued, "were just young fellows who stole cattle over in Mexico to sell on this side of the border and figured they were in a legitimate business."

"If they were cornered and had to fight they were at least square about it, which is more than can be said of the present time gangster."

NOT ADVERSE TO RELIGION
LOS ANGELES, April 5.—The modern college youth is by no means adverse to religion. He merely desires that it be presented a little more sympathetically, tolerantly and intelligently than his ancestors did, according to Dr. Bruce Baxter, chaplain of the University of Southern California.

"It is a distinctly religious appeal, without camouflage or adulteration is made to the present student generation the response is sure," Dr. Baxter said.

Voluntary chapel has proven a success, Dr. Baxter believes. Outside attractions, such as musical programs, do not bring the students to chapel, according to his opinions on the subject.

"Students must know before entering chapel that they are going to get religion in an undiluted form," he said. "Modern students have no desire for special features as a drawing card for religion."

PRINDLE, Wash., April 6.—(AP)—The faithfulness of a dog is fine at times, but on occasions it is a nuisance, according to a certain bootlegger of this district.

This particular scowlaw was scowlaw was very clever and defied the efforts of men from the Portland office of Deputy Prohibition Director Newell. They knew the woods concealed a still but not even a trial could be found.

One day a dog ran into the timber and the agents followed it. He led them to a 75-gallon still and a large quantity of liquor and mash.

But the operator never returned although the officers waited four days.

Normal to be located at Ashland. Finally, perseverance and intelligent industry succeeded and we have our present Southern Oregon Normal school as a reality. It seemed wise and necessary that we have a capable man to lead after our interests in securing the appropriation for a dormitory. Mr. Falley, to Salem for that purpose and he remained during the entire session. The appropriation was secured but vetoed, as you know.

I wish to assure you that it was the consensus of opinion of a large number of our most public spirited and best citizens, that it was the wise and proper thing to do. When the lumberman's, the hardware man's and the druggist's organizations have someone in Salem to watch legislation and when other state institutions are hungry for appropriations, the work of looking after our Normal's interest at the legislature is one of our duties in the future and I feel that this expense should have a place in our budget.

Community Problems
It may be out of the ordinary and contrary to precedent, but during the past year the community problems have forced themselves upon my attention and I am impelled to speak of a few at this time, not as recommendations for the incoming board of directors and officers but as suggestions merely, with the hope that they will provoke more thinking on the part of others.

When competition between towns on the coast is as keen as it is today in attracting the tourist and in selling the commodity to the home seeker as a desirable and profitable place in which to live, advertising offers a very important part. When we stop to think of the enormous advertising program of large and successful business and take due consideration of the fact that practically all cities of our size are spending more for advertising than we are, it is very apparent that judicious and consistent advertising should have an important place in our plans for the future. I feel we should spend more for advertising than we have in the past.

Today we are not enjoying the tourist trade that we should. The tourist travel to Ashland means more prosperity. Not long ago a prominent garage man told me that the repair part of his business was practically supported by the tourist. A few miles out of Eugene we are told by an automobile billboard to turn to the left at Grants Pass and take the Redwood highway etc. Coming from the south we are well aware of the effort which is being put forth at the Klamath Falls junction to direct the tourist to Crater Lake via Klamath Falls.

Speaks Plainly
Speaking plainly, friends, it is evident that we must get busy if we attract and secure our share of the tourist trade.

In my trip north I find the tendency is toward the city camp ground out of business either by lease or by sale to individuals. The demand is increasing for cabins. I was one who favored the erection of the conspicuous and elegant electric sign at our Plaza directing the tourist through our beautiful park to our famed state camp. It is very apparent that hundreds of tourists will be automatically directed to our auto camp to be turned away for lack of cabins.

State Cooperation
Earnest, consistent effort has been made the past year in cooperation with the State Chamber in its land settlement program. This work has met with some success but not as great as we had hoped for. To my mind, the greatest problem which confronts us as a community is the securing of more settlers on our irrigated lands. More settlers means greater production and that involves the problem of marketing. The farmer's problem is essentially a marketing problem. This should require much thought. There is a trade of an adjacent district which is gradually going to our sister city. I can offer no solution at present to these problems of securing settlers.

Of the numerous major activities suggested during the past year the sanitarium appeals to me personally, as the most desired.

I have mentioned some of the most important problems which will come to the Chamber of Commerce the coming year for thought and discussion.

Much could be said about other activities which will be before us and which will require our attention. Namely the Golf Course, the Shippen industry, the Federal building, industries tile, brick yard, etc., but time does not permit further discussion.

To see the future of Ashland is bright, but I sincerely believe that the time has come when every one of us must put aside our personal differences, if any, and all join together. The Chamber of Commerce should have the support of every man and woman in Ashland for we are all closely related in our community problems. What affects one affects all. A good motto is "one for all and all for one." The spirit of this motto will spell "community success."

WATSON OBITUARY

The funeral service for George A. T. Watson was held yesterday from the Dodge chapel at 2 o'clock.

George Watson was born Nov. 17, 1874 at Peckham, London, England and died in Ashland after a lingering illness, April 3, aged 52 years, 4 months and 17 days.

He came to the United States with his parents at the age of three years, and to Ashland in 1900, and was married to Miss Kate Emery in 1903. One son, Kenrick Emery Watson, was born to them and with his mother is a resident of Ashland.

Mr. Watson was a man of sterling character and had a host of friends, he was a member of the Presbyterian church of this city and a valued member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks No. 944, Ashland. The exalted ruler, Wm. M. Briggs, and the officers of the Lodge conducted the funeral services, and the Rev. Hugh T. Mitchell, of the Presbyterian church delivered a very sympathetic and appropriate sermon. Karl P. Nims sang two hymns, accompanied by Miss Georgie Coffee. The flowers were many and beautiful and a large attendance of the friends of the family were present.

George Watson was a good man, and will long be most highly remembered.

DELEGATES REGISTER FOR BOYS' MEETING

Much interest in the conference is being aroused among local boys.

Hi-Y club registered as delegates to the Older Boys' Conference at last night's meeting. Much interest is being stirred up among local boys over the coming conference which will be held in this city starting Friday afternoon at five o'clock and continuing through until Sunday noon.

Quite a number of registrations are coming in to the local Y. M. C. A. office according to Secretary W. P. Walker. Cards for eleven delegates from Klamath Falls arrived in the mail yesterday, this being the first time delegates from the Falls have ever attended such a conference, according to a statement in the letter received. "Everything is in readiness for these fellows when they arrive, but we still need a few more rooms to house these delegates," stated Don Spence, chairman of local arrangements. The conference will be held in the Presbyterian church and delegates will be registered there and assigned to their rooms early Friday afternoon. The first session will be at five o'clock and this will be followed by the banquet at 8:30.

New Principal is Named At Eugene

EUGENE, April 6.—(AP)—Harry B. Johnson, principal of the Astoria high school, has been elected principal of the Eugene high school. This action was taken at a special meeting of the school board. Johnson succeeds J. G. Swan, who accepts a position in Tillamook county.

Gentlemen: I have been a sufferer from Eczema for twenty-one years. During that time I have tried scores of sure cures, which were neither sure nor curative. I have been so speechless, to springs and hospitals with no relief. I was Mr. Wilkine's first patient in Portland. I had two treatments—so effective that I bought an IONA-CO. I am absolutely divorced from Eczema at last.

Teesdale, Eugene. E. TEESDALE.

ECZEMA is considered by physicians to be an extremely difficult disease to cure. It is caused by lactic acid—that is, unoxidized waste tissue. And since this waste cannot be eliminated through the intestines and kidneys until it is oxidized, the system attempts to get rid of it by passing it through the skin. Naturally, the skin breaks down under the extraordinary duty imposed upon it; and the result is the unightly, mortifying eruption of Eczema. The IONA-CO, through magnetization, increases the oxygen-transferring ability of the body. And with an increased supply of oxygen delivered to the cells, the wastes are oxidized and eliminated through the intestines and kidneys. Thus the burden of waste is removed, and the redness, itching and burning disappear. Equally successful results are produced by the IONA-CO in the treatment of Dandruff—which is really a form of Eczema and not a germ disease.
