ADDITIONAL TELEPHONE CIRCUITS ESTABLISHED

Increase of Fifty Per Cent in Facilities is the Result

Additional long distance telephone circuits have just been put into operation direct from the Pacific Northwest to San Francisco.

The new circuits—One from Portland, another from Puget Sound—provide an increase of 50 per cent in facilities for conversation between Oregon and Washington in the north and California in the south.

Improvements and new construction carried forward since the middle of last year now make available a total of three talking circuits for regular service from Seattle to San Francisco and three more from Portland to San Francisco.

The above announcement by Myra Otterdale, manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, was accompanied by the statement that in addition to increasing facilities for connections between north and south the quality of speech transmission will be decidedly improved. This improvement results from the new and late equipment installed at various points along the route bringing into operation the latest development in the art of long distance telephony.

Important units of transmission terminal equipment have been installed in telephone buildings at Tacoma, Portland and Sacramento. This work, recently finished, is associated with the additional circuits and is essential in making them serviceable.

At Eugene, Oregon, and also at Roseburg other transmission equipment has been provided to contribute to the evenness of the quality of long haul telephone conversation.

In Medford, Oregon, the new building just finished and dedicated a few days ago contains important apparatus. At Redding, California, a building and equipment similar to that at Medford were also recently completed.

Extensive outside work has been carried on during the past year between Tacoma and the Columbia River in Washington and between Portland and California points. This included the placing of new wire and rearranging other wires already in place so as to connect and make possible the unification of numerous stretches of heretofore short distance circuits into unbroken through channels for conversation.

North of Tacoma the three circuits which extend to Seattle are continued on wires enclosed by Tacoma - Seattle long distance "toll" cable completed by the company in 1925.

From Sacramento south the six circuits terminating in San Francisco are enclosed in the new San Francisco-Sacramento toll cable completed late last fall.

"These added facilities," said Miss Otterdale, "furnish additional significant evidence of the growing Pacific Coast unity and spirit of closer contact between the states and cities of the west."

La Grande — W. C. Becktell will start $225,000 new six-story fire-resistant hotel.

Heppner votes $20,000 bonds for new auditorium and gymnasium.

Printing Costs of Debates Are High

WASHINGTON, April 11—(AP)—Talk on the floor of Congress during the short session which closed recently cost the taxpayer $240,000.

This was the cost of printing some 6,000 pages of the daily Congressional Record at $40 per page. It doesn't take a member long to speak $40 worth, and when the debate waxes hot and furious a page is filled very quickly.

The Congressional Record ran longer than usual, and thus cost slightly more this session because of the filibuster at the end, when members talked day and night.

The record not only is filled with speeches and debate, but numerous long articles of one sort and another are inserted at the request of members, as well as comprehensive government reports with many figures. Magazine and newspaper articles which already have had wide circulation are re-printed in full, all at the expense of the government. Occasionally a member protests against this practice on the ground of economy, but he gets little attention.

Besides speeches which were made on the floor, the record carries many which never were made. This occurs in the House, where members are allowed to "revise and extend" their remarks when time is called on them. Three bulky issues of the Congressional Record had to be issued after Congress adjourned to care for this material.

One of these issues carried an

$3-page speech by Rep. Blanton, Dem., Texas. A good deal of this space was devoted to a re-print of testimony in a congressional hearing which already had been printed. The cost, at $40 a page, is $3,320, which is more than most government employees get for a year's work.

A speech by Senator Heflin, Dem., Ala., attacking the Catholics, ran for 37 pages, which is $1,480 at $40 a day, which is about the average of the government clerk's yearly salary.

The Congressional Record carries only debate in the two Houses. Beyond that are the voluminous committee hearings on various subjects, which occasionally run into volumes, as in the oil investigation.

Whaling Ship to Help in Science

LOS ANGELES, April 11.—Searching for the answer to the riddle of living matter, Professor Max S. Dunn, of the chemistry department of the University of California at Los Angeles, has enrolled a famous whaling ship in the cause of science.

The whaler Lansing at present is on a cruise off the Mexican coast and, at the request of Prof.

Dunn, certain glands of captured whales are being preserved for laboratory study. A specially constructed barrel built to Prof. Dunn's specifications is being used to preserve the glands.

Prof. Dunn's study into the source and structure of living matter deals particularly with the composition of pure proteins. The scientist is proceeding from two directions.

It is his intention to divide the proteins into their constituent elements or amino acids, and to ascertain their composition. Then, as the second phase of his study, Prof. Dunn hopes to duplicate these constituents by use of purely chemical materials and to bring them together to round out something that has virtually the same chemical components as living matter.

The Lansing was averaging two kills a day off San Clemente island but heavy firing by the battle fleet in winter maneuvers drove the whales southward and the Lansing has followed this movement to a point off the Mexican coast.

We wouldn't care to be vice-president, but we do envy Charley Dawes afishing down at Panama.—Weston Leader.

INTIMACY

There is nothing like the newspaper for intimacy.

It comes home from work with you, or it is waiting at the door to greet you in the morning. It enters your home as a member of the family.

In no other medium does advertising make an appeal so personal, so intimate, as it does in the daily newspaper.
