THE SCARF
 I'll weave in a shining scarf
 Such vibrant things as them—
 Wild, sweet rapture of a bird
 And star-strewed silences.

How can the strands elude me
 When they are real as pain?
 Miss as sheer as gossamer,
 A sunset's vivid stain.

You who scorn my handiwork
 With beauty overrun,
 What will you have to color
 dreams
 When life is done?

I've flitted bits of loveliness—
 All tenderly laid by,
 To fold across my quiet breast
 When I die.

LUCREZIA BORGIA
 Tragic Opera in three acts by Gaetano Donizetti
 Text by Romani after Victor
 Hugo's drama

The heroine, whose part is by far the best and most interesting, is the celebrated poisoner and murderer, Lucrezia Borgia. At the same time she gives evidence, in her dealings with her son Gennaro, of possessing a very tender and motherly heart, and the songs in which she pours out her love for him are really fine as well as touching.

Lucrezia, wife of Don Alfonso, Duke of Ferrara, goes to Venice in disguise to see the son of her first marriage, Gennaro. In his earliest youth he was given to a fisherman, who brought him up as his own son. Gennaro feels himself attracted toward the strange and beautiful woman who visits him, but hearing from his companions, who recognize her and charge her with all sorts of crimes, that she is Lucrezia Borgia, he abhors her. Don Alfonso, not knowing the existence of this son of an early marriage, is jealous, and when Gennaro comes to Ferrara and in order to prove his hatred of the Borgias tears off Lucrezia's name and wenchhood from the palace gates, Rustighello, the Duke's confidant, is ordered to imprison him. Lucrezia, hearing from her servant Gubellia of the outrage to her name and honor, complains to the Duke, who promises immediate punishment of the malefactor.

Gennaro enters, and Lucrezia, terror-stricken, recognizes her son. Vainly does she implore the Duke to spare the youth. With exquisite cruelty he forces her to hand the poisoned golden cup to the culprit herself, and, departing, bids her accompany her prisoner to the door. This order gives her an opportunity to administer an antidote by which she saves Gennaro's life, and she implores him to fly. But Gennaro does not immediately follow her advice, being induced by his friend Orsini to assist at a grand festival at Prince Nevrone's.

Unhappily all those young men who formerly reproached and offended Lucrezia so mortally in the presence of her son are assembled there by Lucrezia's orders. She has mixed their wine with poison, and herself appears to announce their death. Horror-stricken, she sees Gennaro, who was not invited, among them. He has partaken of the wine like the others, but on her offering him an antidote he refuses to take it; its quantity is insufficient for his

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Monday morning Mr. Forsythe called on several of the leading characters in the debate which took place Saturday night between Ashland and Klamath Falls.

Dick and Adena Joy are the Ashland debaters and won a unanimous decision in the battle of wits and words.

Frank Pemberton, the faithful timekeeper gave a talk also.

Mr. Allison, the debate coach, made a few remarks, commending the student body on their boosting spirit for the team. Now that Ashland has the Southern Oregon Championship, the Joys will debate some other schools, probably from the Willamette Valley, to decide the championship of Western Oregon. The winners of Western Oregon and Eastern Oregon will then debate for the Oregon championship.

Dick and Adena debated on the affirmative side of the question last Saturday and will have to debate on the negative side one week from this Friday. They have just a short time to prepare an entirely new run of argument, but with the able aid of their coach they are well on their way to win for Ashland the Oregon championship again this year.

ENGLISH TRAINS SLOWER THAN 75 YEARS AGO

BISHOP'S STORTFORD, Eng. (LP)—Disgruntled over train service from Bishop's Stortford, a committee handed the directors of the road a timetable of the road issued in 1882 showing that the road gave faster train service 75 years ago than it does today. From the schedule he listed the early and the present services as follows:

	1882	1932
	Min.	Min.
London to Cambridge	85	85
(fast)
Hartford to London	70	75
London to Bishop's Stortford	103	111

HIPPO NAMED PETER IS CHAMPION EATER

NEW YORK, April 11 (LP)—The biggest appetite on record is that of Peter, a hippopotamus in the New York Zoo. Daily, according to Farm and Fireside's survey of animal appetites, Peter consumes 150 pounds of hay, 15 loaves of bread, 5 heads of cabbage, and 50 pounds of corn stalks.

The survey reveals the strange fact that in poundage the hippo eats about twenty times as much as a lion whose ration is ten to 15 pounds of raw meat a day. The average plow horse eats about 30 pounds of hay and grain a day, or about two and one-half times the lion's poundage. This same humble horse daily consumes five times as much food as the hungriest leopard. The leopard, a great scrapper but a slight eater, is satisfied with five to six pounds of food a day.

Shopping in Ashland—Mrs. A. C. McMahon and son, Fred of Edgewood, Cal., are spending the day in Ashland shopping and visiting with friends.

Visitors From Talent—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reed of Talent were in Ashland yesterday looking after business affairs. Mr. Reed is a well known farmer of the Rogue River valley.

SHORT TALES BY 'SPROUTS' FULL MOONING

A California (Long Beach) Mother speaks: "Only a mother who has passed through such nights of fear of croup, hearing that hoarse, croupy cough constantly, can appreciate our feeling of gratitude toward Peter's Honey and Tar Compound. It stopped Junior's dreadful cough the first night he took it and it was a great relief to see him drop into a quiet sleep." Good also for whooping cough, measles, cough and heavy wheezy breathing. Sold and recommended everywhere.

Marionettes

Although the Marionette show appears to be a new form of entertainment it is in reality the puppet show developed in the earliest days of theatrical art revived for our entertainment today—right here in Ashland, by the way!

There are, indeed, many century-old ideas which are looked upon as modern. The idea of thrift, for example. Thrift has been the making of Nations (and individuals) and lack of thrift their undoing, from the beginning of time and Nations.

If you are inclined to take advantage of the experience of past ages you will practice thrift in your every-day life by accumulating a surplus fund in a savings account.

Corn Bread is Made This Way In Alabama—Try It

IDA BAILEY ALLEN'S New Book I (see coupon below) is full of surprise dishes for the alert housewife.

Try this recipe for corn bread—and learn for yourself why the Modern Housewife prefers Mazola for shortening—as well as for frying and salad dressings.

Mazola is equal in richness to butter—it costs less and you use less—and regardless of the climate, it stays sweet almost indefinitely.

SOUTHERN CORN BREAD

2 cups corn meal	1 tablespoon Karo
2 tablespoons Argo or Kingsford's Cornstarch	1 egg, well beaten
1 teaspoon salt	2 tablespoons Mazola
1 scant teaspoon soda	2 cups sour milk or buttermilk

COMBINE the ingredients in the order enumerated. Beat well, pour into a medium sized dripping pan oiled with Mazola and bake thirty minutes in a hot oven, 375 degrees F.
