DEATH SENTENCES AVERTED FOR THREE

New Trials Are Ordered For Men Under Death Sentence

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 21.—(AP)—New trials for three men, under sentence of death—Henry J. Ferkemes, notorious "midget terror," and two of his gang, and Mrs. Elmer Sweetin, convicted of helping her preacher lover kill her husband, have been ordered by the supreme court in a number of surprising reversals. For two years Ferkemes has kept Cook county jail in continual ferment by his plans for escape. On account of his presence in "murderers' row," extra guards have been patrolling the corridors and exterior of the aged building.

Only a few months ago saws and files were found in his cell. Ferkemes and his companions, Daniel McGeeghan and John T. Plannery, were convicted of the murder of an official of a building and loan association during an $8,000 holdup in 1924.

After the three had been sentenced detectives found, concealed in secret caches in the floors and walls of the Ferkemes lodging enough dynamite to blow up

AGED WOMAN IS THE CENTER OF GOSSIP

With Black Eye and Body Bruises, She is Minus Dood to Property

INDEPENDENCE, Ore., April 21.—Mrs. M. E. Stansberry, aged 83 years, is the center of gossip and court action pending regarding the possession of her home.

dozen city blocks, together with minute floor plans of a score of the largest banking institutions in Chicago.

She was suffering from a black eye and body bruises, and Mrs. Hattie Hewitt of Montessano and son Ed Stansberry of Pendleton, her children, had the deed to her property. Gossip assumed that the beating was responsible for the transfer but her children say that her injuries are due to a fall. The aged woman will not talk. Action has been started to set aside the deed.
