

ASHLAND DAILY TIDINGS OUT OUR WAY

By Williams

The Income Tax

In one respect the situation as regards the income tax is the same during the days preceding the special election vote as it was during the days that preceded its adoption by the last legislature.

This newspaper gave its support to the income tax reluctantly, when it appeared that the choice lay definitely between a prolonged period of state warrant indebtedness and the adoption of an extra tax.

It ought not to be necessary here to repeat that state taxes on general property cannot be increased to take care of the deficit without a vote of the people, and that any other form of additional taxation must be expected to undergo the same test.

But if any practicable way out of the state's financial plight, which will be prompt in its application and not be destructive of necessary government activities, can yet be suggested this newspaper is still ready to take it up in preference to the income tax.

But opposition unaccompanied by proposed constructive alternative is pure obstruction. If the income tax be defeated, what then? Indebtedness with the final reckoning nowhere in sight, or a standard of government indicative of poverty and lack of enterprise?—Oregonian.

Where?

Sacrificed to the spirit of progress. The whole civilized world is asking the question, "Where are the gallant Frenchmen, Nungesser and Goh and their ill-fated White Bird?"

Every means of searching for the daring Frenchmen who started on their ill-fated journey so filled with confidence, and daily we expect to learn that their lifeless forms or some trace of the great plane may be found—possibly among the icebergs and icy waters of the north. What is their fate?

But whatever their fate may have been, whatever the future may bring forth, their names will be among others, courageous and daring—whose lives have been sacrificed to the spirit of progress and advancement.

Faith in Young People

It's a good thing to read about the present generation and how it is improving. There are so many people who constantly criticize the growing youth of America. Those who want liquor for themselves tell us how the dry laws are making criminals of our boys and girls.

E. C. Wolcott, a big business executive, who is devoting his time to Y. M. C. A. work, said about the younger generation the other day:

The whole crowd of youth is a fine, clean, wholesome, hardworking lot.

There is less truancy and cutting of classes in high school than ever before.

High school boys are making better grades than those of any previous generation.

Only one boy in 1,000 today has to be forced to go to school.

Eighty-five per cent of all boys and girls in crime come from broken homes, and youthful crime is the fault of adults.

There are more boys and girls in Sunday school classes and young people's church societies than ever before in history.

Businessmen are after high school and college graduates to train them in their business.

Notes from the White House roof are being sold to tourists at 25 cents each. Now the Main Street folks can take home some real souvenirs.

Five-year-old burgundy is excellent tonic for young children, says Paris poultry expert. Peps up old hens, too, observer at roadhouse observes.—Bend Bulletin.

Naturally every town wants to become a city, but it is doubtful if the people are any happier or more prosperous when the dream is realized.

SCISSORED SENTIMENTS

Running a department headed "Sayings of the Week" in western newspaper last week collected the following quotations from some of the prominent people of the world today:

It is not necessary in the modern world that two-thirds of a person's existence should be taken up by getting his living.—Miss Margaret Bondfield.

Humor is largely defensive.—Stacy Ammoner.

The future of broadcasting is like the future of crossword puzzles and Oxford trousers, a very trivial future indeed. It will end as a governmental job.—H. G. Wells.

and a sense of opportunity... other over bodies.—Sir Arthur Balfour. We build for an unknown future. Yet the achievements of the leaders of human progress give substance to our hopes.—Bishop of Birmingham. There is nothing like work. Make yourselves useful and you will have a happy life.—Mrs. David Lloyd George.

Editor of Daily Tidings: A few words for the Forum. Should a storage reservoir be constructed in Ashland Creek Canyon?

After a thorough investigation, if for advertising medium only, every voter should awake to their real interest. In Dr. Tregon's visit he expressed himself to be delighted in many points. He said he would not consider settling his interests in a city that was a back number in this age of water question.

SVs are to entertain the 1925 W. O. W. National Convention, 1900 are expected. If the dam project is held up what a black advertisement; if pushed a glorious bright advertising opportunity.
