VALLEY VIEW NOTES

Jim Is "Big Wolf Medicine" Now

Cruelty To Animals

Cold, alone, half frozen, two abandoned puppies were found along the roadside the other evening. They were lost, wandering aimlessly through the tall grasses, enduring a physical torture which was probably more directly due to indifference than to cruelty.

Abandoning puppies and kittens along the roadside to starve or undergo other physical torture before death relieves them, is an act reprehensible beyond words, and one which might be compared with that of the dog poisoner who does his nefarious business under the cover of darkness and in secrecy.

If a pet is not wanted, a few cents will buy chloroform, or provide some other painless method of ending their lives without letting them endure physical torture.

Abandonment should be one of the crimes humane societies investigate and for which punishment is meted out.

Don't Destroy Farmers' Market

It is difficult to see where any change in our rates of duty on manufactured articles, would help the farmer.

In the first place, everything used exclusively by the American farmer is now on the free list.

Secondly, if we permitted a flood of cheaply made foreign goods to come into our market the first result would be to throw hundreds of thousands of high priced American workers out of employment.

Now, as the American citizen who depends on American prosperity for his job consumes nearly all that our farmers raise, we would be destroying for the farmer the market in which he sells four-fifths of his products, in an effort to try and help him in a free trade market in which at best he is only able to sell a small fraction of what he produces.

Real Mining A Great Industry

One of the most noteworthy second-stage mining operations in the United States is being completed at Goldfield, Nevada, where the tailings dump of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines is to be treated for its gold content. The dump contains 3,000,000 tons, averaging $1.67 a ton, and the plant is to treat 1,000 tons a day—a ten year contract on what was once utter waste.

This operation will make employment for hundreds of men; and it is as safe and sure as running a sawmill or a grist mill. More so, indeed, for its product has a fixed and not a fluctuating value; its supply is definite and subject to neither underproduction nor overproduction, according to the caprices of climate.

Bonanza ore finds are thrilling; but most of our mineral supplies are produced by steady plugging of which one hears little. Mining has been black-guarded as a fever, passion, a hallucination. As a matter of fact, mining is one of the soberest and sanest of all business, and one of the most necessary for the progress of mankind.

There are scores of great mining operations going on quietly like the Goldfield recovery, paying wages and taxes, and building states on sober business principles. They do not always get into print; but they count powerfully in the industrial scale, and the food they use makes the difference between profit and loss for many farming communities.

When a man is drowning he thinks of all of the bad things he has done. While he is living he thinks of all of the good things he is going to do. After he is gone other men go and do them.

An unsolved puzzle to many folks is just how women's figures can look 32's one year and 38's the next.

And now that the water question is settled we must turn our attention to the income tax.

Another prize won by the Joy family—Dick the orator again takes a leading place.

Slim Lindbergh should have a fair assortment of badges when he comes home.

Black Hills, North Dakota will be proud of its summer boarders this year.

Civilization it would seem is the art of making life a complicated affair.

Anywhere is the place you would like to be instead of where you are.

Scientific Research Shows Ventilating of Theaters Poor

Pittsburg.—The American people are losing 3,000 tons of weight every night during the two hours they sit in the 20,000 moving picture theaters of the United States whether or not they are watching fast and furious scenes or quiet, serene tragedies, according to figures compiled from an investigation by F. C. Houghton, director of the air research laboratory of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers in the Bureau of Mines here.

This weight loss is equal to 40,077 pounds per minute and totals 16,835 tons in a year, Houghton said. Of this tremendous tonnage of weight lost, which results from normal metabolism or a burning up of the tissues, 361 tons are lost each night through 18,500,000 mouths and 2,045 tons through the pores of the skin. The average loss of weight by an audience in the average movie theater each night is 327 pounds, he added.

These figures are based on findings of Houghton and the United States Public Health Service which has been conducting hundreds of physiological tests with the co-operation of the United States Bureau of Mines.
