TRIPLE PLAY AND HOMER THRILL FANS

Fearpickers Fail To Register Single Run—Hughes and Robbins With Heavy Teamwork Prevent Opponents Scoring In Second Inning.

Ashland Boas defeated the Fearpickers from Medford 3 to 0 in a baseball classic played Sunday at the Jackson Hot Springs park.

Hughes and Robbins in the second inning pulled a triple play which is scarcely seen more than once in a lifetime.

With two Fearpickers on bases, and Adolph up to bat, and no outs, everything seemed to be settling pretty for the Boas to score.

Adolph knocked a difficult fly into the right field which Hughes at first base caught, putting the batter out, then threw to Robbins who put Markle out at second. Robbins returned the ball to Hughes who tagged the first base putting Bishop out.

The whole play was made in the quarter of a minute and was done with such perfect teamwork and speed that the crowd scarcely realized what had occurred.

In the first five innings of the game neither team scored although on two occasions the third out for the Boas occurred when two bases were occupied.

In the sixth inning Robbins, first to bat, died at first base when he grounded to Boston who threw to first. Miller made a second out when he hit a long fly to Beebe in the left field. Hughes bunted and reached first safely. While Force was at bat, Hughes stole to second and when Force grounded and reached first base successfully, Hughes reached third. Davis was next at bat and hit a three-bagger scoring Hughes and Force. The third out was made by "Dolly" Gray who died at first.

A third run was scored in the seventh inning when "Duke" Marlow, who had failed to register when a pinch hit was needed, with the bases empty knocked a homer far into the left field. The crowd was noisy in its approval.

Hikes From Florida To Washington

"Hoofing" it through from Florida to Spokane, Washington, an eighty-year old traveller, B. F. Nusbaum weary from 93 days on the road on his long journey, spent Sunday in Ashland.

"I was born January 1, 1847, and I'm the youngest old man you ever saw" said the old man whose bristly white hair belied the age lines of his face. In spite of his advanced years, the old man moved briskly and declared he enjoyed the long hike.

"I lost everything I had in Florida during the storm there a year ago," he said.

He does not get offers of "lifts" so frequently as a young man might because motorist don't think of an old man travelling so far, he said.

During the 93 days he has been on the road he has worn out three pairs of shoes. He carries very little baggage with him and spends his night "wherever dark may find him."

Travelling over the many hundreds of miles, the old fellow said he never had seen a more beautiful spot than Lithia Park. He spent most of the day there yesterday.

COUNSEL FOR DEFENSE AND STATE READY

Alleged Slayer Outwardly Cheerful As Ordeal Comes—No Change In Legal Array—List Of 100 Special Jurymen Called For Duty On Grounds.

Hugh D'Autremont, alleged train dynamiter and train robber, went on trial today for the second time, charged with first degree murder, held responsible for the death of Charles O. (Coyle) Johnson of Ashland.

John Collier associate counsel for the defense declared the whole trial a farce because Jackson county had no county seat. He said the state law directed the county seat to be moved to Medford February 7 of this year and the other day the supreme court upheld that law and a codicil added that Medford be the county seat after July 1.

Judge Thomas denied the motion made by Collier for blanket dismissal.

Hugh appeared looking pale, listless and downhearted.

Three men were in the jury box this afternoon, tentatively accepted, their qualifications to serve on the D'Autremont case unchallenged by either defense or state attorneys.

Those tentatively accepted were E. M. Wilson, Medford; E. M. Dennis and M. P. Carney.

Eleven tentative jurors had been excused.

Through intensive questioning of Larry J. Shade, as to whether or not he would vote for the death penalty on circumstantial evidence, the prosecution indicated that the life of the youthful suspect would be sought.

BULLETIN

GOTTBUS, Germany, June 6.—Counselor Donald C. Poole of the U. S. Embassy telegraphed Ambassador Jacob Schurman that Clarence Chamberlin and Charles Levine will arrive in Berlin tomorrow.

June 5.—(UP)—Safely across the ocean, Clarence Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, in a little monoplane, "Columbia," were heading south by west over Europe Sunday night in quest of a new distance flight record.

The flyers who hopped off from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., at dawn Saturday and followed the sky trail blazed by Capt. Charles A. Lindbergh a fortnight ago, were reported off Lizard Head on the southeastern tip of England at 3:33 p. m. Sunday.

The Columbia was some hours behind the time of a trans-Atlantic flight made by Lindbergh in the "Spirit of St. Louis," but was heading for some distant European capital—believed to be Berlin—in a daring effort to eclipse the young soldier-flyer's achievement.
