White Collar Jobs

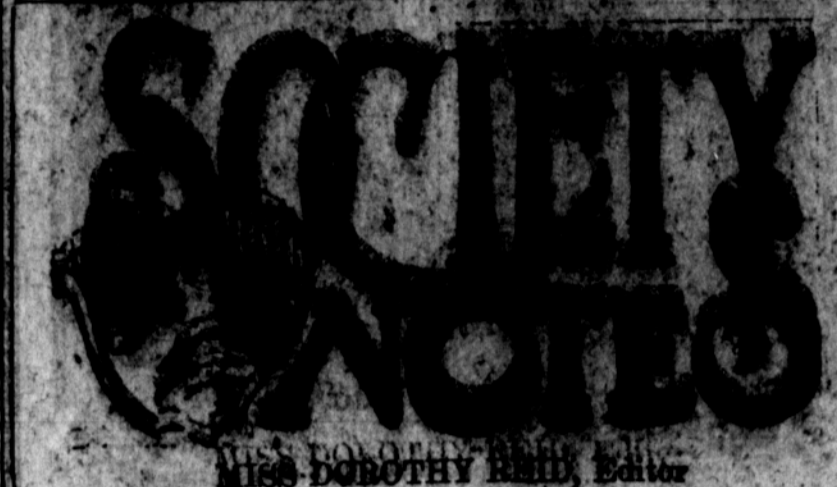

This month another great army of boys and girls will graduate from college and be looking for jobs.

Progressive business men, particularly the larger corporations, prefer the college man with his up-to-date instruction, and the tendency seems to be to make a place for him by turning aside the man of 50 or 60 years.

But does the "kid" realize that this same fate awaits him when he begins to turn white, the eye lose its lustre, or his step has lost its buoyancy?

The college kid will probably find that white collar jobs do not hang on every bush. He must eat and to eat he must sweat. Dad wore overalls and fought his way, inch by inch, to the top, and that is what the college boy will have to do.

Thursday, June 8.—The Ladies Card club will hold their regular meeting in the club room. Mrs. V. Carter and Mrs. John Dodge, hostesses. This meeting will be the last one until fall.

Mr. Miller is a graduate of the University of Colorado in the class of 1917. For four years he served as wireless operator in the United States Navy. At the present time Mr. Miller is train dispatcher for the Southern Pacific railroad company located at Ashland, where he has a score of friends to welcome his bride and where they will be at home after August first.

The Grand Jury

At various times movements have appeared asking for the abolition of the grand jury. The theory is that the grand jury was placed in the judicial system to prevent oppression by peace officers and that since practically all tendency toward oppression had disappeared the expense of the grand jury could be dispensed with.

But the grand jury is a great instrument for contact between the courts and the people. When a man is indicted by his neighbor rather than by someone he doesn't know and never heard of, he has less complaint to make.

This is especially true in the federal courts where officers cover a large territory. At present the grand jury system is written into the constitution of the United States and it is quite likely that it will remain there for a good many generations.

Good Neighbors

A woman in the tenement district of Paris has started a "Good Neighbors" club.

She wants to restore old-fashioned neighborliness and friendship among people living door to door. She wants to be able to borrow a spoonful of coffee for the breakfast cup and a teaspoonful of sugar for supper and have both parties to the transaction to feel right about it.

More power to her. All of us feel that the old time neighbor is fast becoming insubstantial. Neighborliness as an institution is losing round. Communities become too much like hotels. We don't know and don't care to know those who live next door to us.

And this condition is to be deplored.

A man took poison, slashed his wrists and jumped out a third story window in an effort to end his life—and was unsuccessful. He should have married Ruth Snyder.

The sturdy aviator who kidnapped the girl he wanted to marry and carried her away in his plane established a precedent anyhow, and should have some consideration.

Probably the Slig Slig prisoner who escaped and attempted to swim the Hudson was merely trying to establish another record.

We suppose Mellon wants to cut down the size of bills just for a little change.

In driving a car there is one thing to remember. The other fellow may be a fool.

Love for one's community should never be blind.

Flag day is to be observed, June 14.

SCISSORED SENTIMENTS

Judging from the headlines and "snatches" on the first page of the average big city newspaper it is no longer difficult to "break into the news." Instead one must watch his step to keep from being dragged in.—Bandon Western World.
We don't know what to think about this plan to recall Sheriff Taylor. The real question is if you recall Sheriff Taylor will you find a sheriff any better? "If you know a better 'ole," as OF Bill said, may be applicable.—Eugene Guard.
Now that bootleggers must pay their income taxes, large collections are expected, many of the law-abiding bootleggers wishing to keep on the good side of the federal government.—Roseburg News-Review.
We are now approaching the season of the year when the hoary statesman can lay down the burden of regulating the affairs of the world and turn the job over to the spring graduate.—Condon Globe-Times.

Star Sues for Million-or More

Frieda Hempel, internationally known German opera singer, is suing August Heckscher, 79, millionaire financier and philanthropist, "for a million or more." She has cited a pre-marital contract before the supreme court of New York in which she says Heckscher agreed to pay her $48,000 annually for the rest of her life.

Important Books Reviewed—
"Wedlock," by Jacob Wasserman, author of "The World's Illusion." This latest of the Wasserman novels, under its German title translated by Ludwig Lewisohn, "Laudin Und Diebstahl," is the European sensation. The translator says of it: "It is a book on marriage, of monumental power and shattering insight." None of us has gone so deep, it is uncanny. Wasserman has woven into his main theme a story of, to my mind, furiously melodramatic character disguised, of course, by the magnificence of his style and the profundance of his observations and observations. These make the book greater than "The World's Illusion of Gold," previous works. He analyzes in this book the physical and psychical bonds of marriage in a manner far surpassing writers like Theodore Dreiser and others of the realistic school, who have made a specialty in trying to secure understanding of the attempted union between two human beings of the opposite sex. He grows stronger and deeper in his successive attempts at perfect fiction.—The Lariat.

ASHLAND Couple United in Marriage
An announcement was received in Ashland recently of the marriage of Miss Beth Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Johnson on Granite street, and Mr. Lee Finerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Finerman on A street, in San Francisco, California, on December 28, 1924.
Miss Johnson graduated from the Ashland high school with the class of 1922, later from the State Normal at San Jose, California, and has been teaching in Bangor, California, for some time. Mr. Finerman is also a graduate of the local high school and of the University of California at Berkeley. He is now employed in a bonding house in San Francisco, where the couple will make their home.
The bride and groom's many friends in this city extend their sincere wishes for a happy and prosperous future life.
