OLD NORMAL SCHOOL GRADUATES TO BE WELCOMED

The Lithia Franchise

The Daily Tidings after a study of the proposed franchise granting the use of the Lithia water in the city's springs to private interests for commercial bottling and distribution, sees no particular objection to this plan.

In fact, this should prove very beneficial to the city, as it will provide besides a financial income, a wider distribution of this famous medicinal water, which means that thousands of additional users will be influenced to visit the source of this water.

However, there is one point which should be strongly entrenched in the franchise—so firmly written as to be so plain that there will be no question of its clearness and extent of its application if the occasion for its use arises.

This point is to make certain that the city can at any time use ALL of the Lithia water it may need for sanitarium, drinking fountain and other purposes it may deem necessary or future events may make advisable.

Ashland's greatest asset today is its Lithia water—which is being only partly capitalized—and it is practical certainty that in the future a large sanitarium will be constructed here which will bring thousands to the Lithia water health fount. Without any intention of disparaging the present proposed plan nor to question in any way the sincerity of the men proposing to finance this enterprise—which we believe to be a public-spirited movement—nor to throw any doubt as to the clearness of the contract—for frankly we would not attempt to pass upon that phase—we agree with the councilmen that it is a question which should be carefully considered before any franchise is granted.

The New Normal School Building

1909 New Normal Has Grown Rapidly

When the urgent need for increased normal training facilities in southern Oregon was recognized by the legislature in 1925, it was quite natural that Ashland, site of the old Normal School, should be chosen for the institution.

It is to honor the first class of full term graduates from this institution which brings together members of the alumni association of the old school tomorrow.

The beautiful new structure was erected at a cost of $175,000 and is maintained by a millage tax.

On June 21, 1926, the Southern Oregon State Normal School opened its doors for its first session in a summer school of 12 weeks with an enrollment of 210 students, representing 20 of the counties of Oregon and five other states.

Under the able direction of President J. A. Churchill, and the faculty members the enrollment of the school has constantly increased.

The school campus occupies 24 acres.

Campus activities about this new school are in direct contrast to those of the old normal building. The automobile has replaced the horse and buggy, and the flivver the bicycle.

Members of the faculty of the institution included the following: Marion Ady, art; Helen C. Anderson, English and Dean of Women; Verne V. Caldwell, psychology; Margaret O. Cason, supervisor of teaching; Pearl Durst, librarian; Beatrice Hall, health and education; Virginia Hales, physical education; Leona G. Marsters, music; Lillian Nicholson, supervisor of teaching; Marie Churchill, English; Marie Hanson, penmanship; Walter Redford, geography; Elizabeth Cook Richardson, English; Bertha Stephens, supervisor of teaching; A. C. Strange, education; Arthur S. Taylor, mathematics and history; Clara Augusta Trotter, supervisor of intermediate grades; Wayne W. Wells, science; Eva L. White, supervisor of primary grades, Kathryn M. Vincent, registrar and Marlon E. Wilson, supervisor.

This school carries on the work of the old institution—so dear to the heart of every alumni and ex-student. It is with the greatest pleasure and happiness that the members of the graduating class are to be welcomed into the union association of the old and the new schools.

PLAN TO FORM A PERMANENT ORGANIZATION

Irvin E. Vining To Deliver Principle Address At Formal Afternoon Program In New School Auditorium—Classes To Talk At Picnic Dinner In Old Gymnasium.

When the alumni of the old Southern Normal school meet tomorrow it will be the first reunion held for many years.

Fred Homes, who was president of the old association which discontinued annual reunions, following the closing of the old institution, was re-instated when plans were made for the big event of this year. Assisted by an able committee he has completed all details for the affair.

Every visitor will register. Those invited include not only alumni but also all former students who could be located.

The informal meeting at 10:30 o'clock is to be followed by a business session at which a permanent and strong union organization of the Alumni from the two schools is to be effected.

During the dinner hour, four minute speeches are to be made by representative members of each class. The basket dinner will be spread in the old gymnasium. Coffee and ice cream are to be supplied by the new Normal School.

At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon Prof. I. E. Vining, masterful orator, former faculty member of the old institution, is to be the principal speaker. This program is to be one of great merit.

Friday old graduates began arriving in the city and there is a feeling of keen anticipation felt by those who will enjoy the red letter event tomorrow.

pleasure and happiness that the members of the graduating class are to be welcomed into the union association of the old and the new schools.

Some Of The Old Grads Who Spent Happy Days at Ashland

Names bring back memories and an effort was made to secure a complete list of graduates from the Old Normal School—but records of those school days are scattered—there is little to be found of all those students who spent happy hours in the old institution and who tomorrow will experience the joy of reunion.

The following list is incomplete but still contains the names of more than 300 who were graduated from the old institution during the years of its existence:
