Commercial Aviation

Lindbergh's first message to the American people when he returned from France was to prepare for the era of commercial aviation which is coming. Although the United States has made great strides in developing air mail European countries are far ahead in the development of commercial fly-

This is not surprising when we consider the difference between the two countries. Europe is small with a concentrated population while America, especially in the west, has large territory to cover and commercial traffic is not so heavy.

Safety is one of the most important factors in the development of commercial aviation and landing fields are one of the most important elements of safety. An airplane survey of the Pacific coast for -the purpose of laying out definite air lines for planes is now under way. Many of the cities between Seattle and San Diego have good landing fields. Those who have not should make every effort to obtain at least the ground for a good field. To neglect to do so will be to get a slow start in a new commercial race which is starting.

Vacations

An eminent physician says persons who fail to take two weeks or a month's vacation once a year are in danger of losing their vigor if not their health. Probably two thirds of the vacation propaganda we hear and read comes from persons who hope to get a dig at our pocket books while we are away from home and have loosened up on the purse strings for a little outing. But Oregon still has attractions enough which are free to satisfy the native lover.

No one can put a fence around the mountains and charge admission. There are still too many shade trees by the side of cool streams for any commercial enterprise to get a monopoly on them. It is still possible to find a deserted place along the beach where the ocean can be enjoyed without the interruption of jazz bands or pink lemonade.

But most people prefer to go back to nature only by degrees.

A formal dinner-dance usually goes well with an outing into the woods. Meals served in a dining room are preferable to those prepared over the camp fire even for those roughing it at the beach. Adding commercial enterprises to vacattions has not ruined them but increased their popularity with many people.

Figures produced by an insurance company show that 17 per cent of the accidents on which paid claims in a year happened in the home. Bathtubs, beds and step ladders were all shown to be dangerous. That may be the reason we hear of so few quiet evenings at home these days.

Two French inventors have perfected a machine which can be attached to the back of a bird and will record everything it does. The device should prove popular with parents of flappers who have difficulty in keeping track of their children.

Coolidge summer camp in the Black Hills is to be near an adandoned gold mine. Since the president is reputed to have made the treasury seem like an abandoned gold mine to a lot of pork barrel legislators he should feel right at home.

Hollywood burglars are reported to have stolen several thousand dollars worth of clothing from motion picture actresses. They probably got away with it by putting the gowns in their vest pockets and slipping out.

Arlington, Illinois, a town of 700 persons is said to have neither a barber shop or a beauty parlor. But how are they to know when even their best friends won't tell them.

A fisherman is reported to have landed a 25pound pike from a lagoon in Jackson park, Chicago. But that isn't the first poor fish that's been caught in the big city.

At Annapolis graduating midshipmen all rate a kiss along with their diplomas. The idea seems to be to get the young officers under fire as soon as
