The Benefit Dance

Ashland is a baseball town. There are many enthusiastic supporters of the local baseball team and every citizen in town must get a thrill of pride at the splendid sportsmanship and the winning ability which the Ashland Nine has made this year.

Such enterprises are frequently however, not as successful financially as a business enterprise, personally conducted might be. But the players generously give their time and effort and talent, believing that the community must recognize the value of clean, wholesome community sport.

So the benefit dance, the proceeds to be devoted to the support of the ball club, has been arranged and every citizen of Ashland should get back of the boys and show them that the community spirit which is backing every worthwhile community enterprise is backing them.

Why College?

"Forget you ever went to college" is the advice handed the technical school graduates of the National Industrial Conference Board after conducting a questionnaire on the subject of the college in industry.

Employers who replied to the board's inquiries said the college graduate is all right but—well, he didn't learn everything in school. The college does not teach him how to handle a gang of men. It does not instruct him in knowing less than the boss. It does not teach him to be an executive in a big and complicated business.

It gives him a lot of theory, employers said, but it does not present him with much experience and experience counts for a great deal on the job.

College lays the foundation. The superstructure the graduate must build for himself. He may start at the roof and go down but if wise he will lay the ground floor well.

Natural Playground

There seems to be found everywhere about Ashland these days an awakening to the possibilities of the place as a playground. Every type of sport is finding unusual interest displayed by the community, and there is a willingness on the part of the community to back all enterprises.

And this is as it should be.

To be sure we can say "Have you been to Crater Lake, or Diamond Lake, or the Lake of the Woods, or the Oregon Caves," but Ashland wants a group of closer home playgrounds and she seems to be destined to get them.

With the addition of every type of vacation attraction Ashland will become more and more sought after by those who seek natural rather than artificial surroundings and beauty.

And just as we got that radio log all completed, and could tell the numerous stations we had gotten, along comes the government and ruins everything with its new regulations.

Now that Lithia Water Bottles will be seen along the roadside, there should be no doubt but that the mineral water will become as popular as the California lemons.

The latest novelty in women's wear apparel is said to be hats shaped like aeroplanes made in honor of Captain Lindbergh. Such is fame.

There is no courage like that of youth. Two 16-year-old girls start out to conquer the world with just one dollar in their possession.

Ashland seems to be selling itself to Ashland folks as a natural playgrounds which is just as it should be.

New faces seen everywhere about town these days mean that a new term has started at the Normal school. Don't forget to be neighborly.

Artists are missing the most beautiful natural subjects in the world if they don't spend the summer in Ashland.

No one has yet volunteered to be a passenger on that new bomb device by which a man may be shot to the moon.

If proximity really breeds imitation we wonder why a flea doesn't bark like a dog.

Editor Tidings:

I was much interested in reading the letter by Mr. Homer Billings as to the voting on the county unit proposition by the people of Ashland and Medford.

It is not what we think the law should be, but it is what the law is that is to guide us in our voting of June 23. The "Educators" who engineered the "county unit" law through knew what they were doing in making the law so that the "educator" vote of the towns would override the vote of the county school districts.

It is my opinion we are not only making a fetish of our public, but a fetish of good intentions of the so-called "educators."

The strike in the schools of Superior, Wisconsin during the past year was caused for the reason a teacher dared express a thought contrary to the thought of the "educators."

If the newspaper accounts were correct the appalling calamity of Bath, Michigan was caused by a man crazed by the abominations of the consolidated school, which bankrupt not only the man who committed the crime, but the whole community.

Other recent doings in the San Francisco schools whereby a boy was barred from the public school for the reason he wore overalls is another example of the depraved thought of the "educators" which would require the pupils to be dressed in prescribed requirements of body and soul to be applicants at the almshouse of charity.

I stand for the independence of the county school district, for the unmatched character building exemplified in "The little red schoolhouse."

I will vote against the county unit scheme as I would vote against the "pestilence that walketh in darkness, the sickness that waste that noonday."

R. A. Easton, Ashland.

FARM NOTES

Dry mash is as a general rule kept constantly before growing chicks after they are 2 to 3 weeks old. The mash is kept inside where it is not exposed to rain and fog, or in covered outside hoppers.

On free range where no running water is present fresh water is given twice daily to the pullets and the vessels or dishes are kept in the shade.

Pullets on free range obtain all abundance of green feed, insects, worms and small grains. They require less food and are less susceptible to disease.

Crank-case oil makes a good outside poultry-house stain. Two coats are given one month apart and this is repeated every two years. It gives the house a good appearance and preserves the wood.

Fowls eat much animal matter in their wild state, such as insects and worms. Substitutes such as green cut bone, fish meal, meat scraps, and animal meal and tankage are fed to chickens.

Chickens are fed all the green feed they will clean up daily for best results in Oregon.

Laying breeds of chickens start laying when six months, general purpose when 7 months, meat breeds when about 8 months old.

Of twin calves, one male and one female, the female is known as a free-martin heifer, and as a rule will not reproduce, says the O. A. C. dairy department. They usually come into heat regularly and take service but do not conceive, having incomplete reproductive organs. At one time it was thought there is no exceptions to this general rule but occasional exceptions are found. Since not more than 5 or 10 per cent bear young a grower is not justified in keeping free-martins with the idea that they will reproduce.

DREAMING

I am sitting at twilight in a darkening room. Thinking, and dreaming in the gathering gloom. And all around me. Smiling and bright. There are shadowy forms in the fitful light.

I reach out my arms as each dear one appears. Dear God, 'tis a time for both memory and tears. I am dreaming. That cannot be. For my loved ones are here all smiling at me.

How lightly they tread in their shimmering array. But like fleeting shadows they are passing away. And I am alone In the dusky room, Thinking and dreaming in the gathering gloom.

In the soft clinging darkness methinks I hear, A gentle rustle, as though angels were near. 'Tis but a dream. All, all are gone. Only memories are left from which dreams are born.

Important Books Reviewed—

"Zero," by Collinson Owen. To begin a new life, to be absolutely oneself again. Do what you please, to start again from Zero — this is the problem the author has set himself. Achieving a great success, socially, financially and as a literary artist. Writing books that are best sellers, plays that hold the stage endlessly — then wiping it all out. Reported killed in a railroad accident, disappearing, entering life with a new name and unknown to all entering a new career. Having everything he wants in the way he wants it — does he achieve happiness and contentment? Nearly everyone some time has wanted to wipe out his whole past earthly account and start from Zero with unlimited ability to shape and create a personality and a life anew—makes a most entrancing vista for enjoyable fiction. How does it all terminate? Leave it to the reader.

Hedda Hovv Tells About Sleaves—

NEW YORK — Many women are wondering whether they should wear long sleeves or short ones during the hot weather. Both long and short sleeves are permissible this year. However, short sleeves or sleeveless frocks should not be worn on city streets. The short-sleeved mode which has come back into style this season is for country or sports wear rather than for town wear.

Dame Fashion doesn't give a wrap for the sleeveless frock without a wrap as far as city wear is concerned. The days when one could go on the streets with arms bare from the shoulder are no more. A person wearing an entirely sleeveless frock on the street today would be considered rather wild. When one wishes a sleeveless dress for town wear, one must have a little jacket, three-quarter length or long coat as an accompaniment. The coat, of course, is kept in harmony with the dress as far as color goes.

The dress with a sleeve midway between shoulder and elbow may be worn in town on very warm days providing one wears wrist-let gloves. Gloves somehow offer an apology for the fact that the sleeves are short. The well-dressed woman wouldn't be liable to appear on the street in a short-sleeved gown without suede or silk gloves which extend just above the wrists. Whether this is cooler than wearing a long-sleeved dress without gloves is a matter for the individual to solve. As you know, one often sees very smartly dressed women without gloves on warm days. The gloves of course, are always evident since they are carried in the hand or protrude from the pocket or pocketbook.

The sports dress of sleeveless type worn with a short jacket is already an established style this season. Jackets may be of the same material as the dress or of velveteen in harmonizing colorful, linen, cretonne or printed material. Three-quarter length coats also may be worn with sleeveless frocks although the full-length coat usually calls for a long-sleeved frock beneath it for some reason or other.

Waffle Supper in Civic Clubhouse—

The members of the Women's Civic Improvement club gave a waffle supper Monday evening, June 20, in the Civic clubhouse on Winburn Way. There was not as large an attendance as had been expected, but all those who came enjoyed a delightful evening. The rooms of the clubhouse were most attractively decorated with huge baskets of cut flowers and pretty bouquets also graced the center of each table. Following the meal the guests spent the remainder of the evening playing Bridge. According to Mrs. George A. Briscoe, president of the organization, who had charge of this affair, the Civic club ladies are planning to give another waffle supper sometime in the fall.

New Auxiliary Organized—

Mount Ashland Temple No. 65, Pythian Sisters, the auxiliary to the Knights of Pythias, has been organized in Ashland by Mabel A. Roberts, supreme representative, assisted by Past Grand Chief Ella G. Wortman and Tallman Temple No. 40 of Medford, with the following named officers: P. C., Grace Selby and Louise Richardson; M. E. C., Myrtle Mayberry; E. S., Mary R. Prescott; E. J., Ida J. Crandall; M. of T., Jennie Wolcott; M. of R. and C., Arlene Dunkenson; M. of F., Alberta Leonard; P. of T., Myrtle Turner; G. of T., Ava Baugh and trustees, Lottie Pittenger, Agnes Sams and Margaret Beagle.

Clubhouse to be Kept Open —

That the Civic Clubhouse on Winburn Way shall be kept open during the summer, is the plan announced by the board of directors of the Civic Improvement club. Beginning today, Tuesday June 21, the building will be open for the accommodation of visitors from ten o'clock in the morning until five p. m. on week days and from one o'clock until five in the afternoon on Sundays.
