

ESTABLISHED IN 1876

GEORGE MADSEN GREEN, Managing Editor

PUBLISHED BY THE ASHLAND PRINTING CO.

ASHLAND DAILY TIDINGS

Entered at the Ashland, Oregon Postoffice as Second Class Mail Matter. Subscription Price - Ashland Daily Tidings By Carrier - 1 mo. 50c; 1 yr. $7.50. By Mail - 1 mo. 50c, 1 yr. $6.50

Woman's Opportunity

During the past few years the women of America have contributed in no small measure to our national prosperity by eliminating kitchen waste and conserving in matters of dress. They have also wielded a tremendous influence in teaching menfolk and inculcating in children a spirit that in one generation has changed America from the most wasteful nation in the world to one of the most prudent.

OUT OUR WAY By Williams

Home Hints

ADD MORE COLOR TO YOUR MEALS. It is true many people eat with their eyes, and you are all familiar with the expression, "My! how good it looks." Such an expression heard time after time really makes us wonder why more people do not think of color when they are planning and preparing their meals.

THE GREAT MAIL ROBBERY

STORYLINE. A space of time throughout the United States complete the government to assign the Marines to duty on the coast. The first to be sent were Lt. MacReady and Sgt. Howard. MacReady is told that Howard, the sweetheart of Laura, the daughter of Phelps, head of the railroad, was owner of a stolen bond. MacReady takes a detail of Marines and, though Laura warns him, Howard is captured. He escapes, however, and makes for Davis' home, where he intends to hide.

The Glitter Of Gold

You can't always judge gold by the glitter. Most of us would be much shocked if informed that in our ordinary daily round of work or play we constantly elbow greatness. Witness, for example, one Charles Lindbergh.

Try This One

- GENERAL 1. Who wrote "Will You Love Me in December as You Do in May?" 2. What governors now in office have been elected for more than three terms? 3. What prominent American aviator was formerly a member of the New York Giants? 4. Has any president been elected for more than two terms? 5. Who is the only left handed polo player on an international team? 6. Did Jack Dempsey foul Sharkey? 7. Name the president of the United States Steel Corporation? 8. Name the manager of the New York Giants. 9. Under what name is the wife of Jack Dempsey best known? 10. What two sisters have made a prolonged hit in "Topsy and Eva." ANSWERS 1. The Seventies. 2. A Farm Relief Bill. 3. He has been opposed to it. 4. Debt Settlement. 5. The Philippine Islands. 6. Flood Relief. 7. Speaker Nicholas Longworth. 8. The presidential elections. 9. Democratic. 10. Resident Commissioners.

SAP AND SALT. VIRTUE GETS ALONG EASIER, IN COTTON LINGERIE. What is sweet in the mouth is apt to be sour in the stomach. Where the jaw is overworked, the mind isn't, as Congress plainly shows. Nobody can carry so much hope in his system as a professional loafer. Love is a condition of mind when the intelligence has ceased to function. It's a fool woman who forgets to remove the chewing gum before being kissed. The man who doesn't talk and the dog that doesn't bark will bear close watching. For everyone who misses a train, they are twenty who go to the depot an hour ahead of time. Her Heck says: "Many a man on the jury has done the same thing that the prisoner is being tried for."

TOM SIMS SAYS. A society known as the Irish Jews of America has been formed in Brooklyn. We're waiting to see what the Irish Lithuanians are going to do about this. A section head in New York state inherited $500,000, but finished the day's work after he had been informed of his new riches. Maybe he was trying to get a little publicity. A couple asks for a divorce because "they have equally strong minds." Is it impertinent to ask how two people of equally strong minds ever came to marry? The dispatches from Grand Anse, Quebec, fail to state whether any of the newspaper men were injured by the tablerear thrown by Mrs. Stillman, Sr. There wasn't a line either about whether or not the newspaper men were married men. Our advice to the men of the American Legion going to Paris is to take along a couple of buckets of water. They may want to take a bath.

the well. From inside Mrs. Davis' voice shouted some instruction that Howard was unable to catch. It was all the assurance he wanted, however. He waited until Capt. Davis re-entered the house and then moved forward. He knew that his early appearance would require an explanation. Hunting? The idea was absurd without firearms. The sibilant had to offer would probably sound equally implausible, but he was in too desperate a situation to quibble. His entrance by the rear door was unannounced. They were just sitting down to breakfast. Howard, who had not been inside the place for several months, was amazed at the comfort and cleanliness it possessed. Sofas, cushions, rugs were there in abundance. There was a fireplace, immaculately clean. The kitchen, a part of the general room sectioned off by blankets, was the last word in modern housekeeping except for such facilities as electricity and washing machines. Howard had generally heard that people living far in the country allowed themselves to drift into slovenly, uncleanly habits. If so, the Davis home was an exception. It possessed a glowing tribute to their devotion to such things. "Good morning." He tried to give his words the impression of an every day, matter of fact greeting, conscious all the time that he talked completely. But the Davises took no notice of his embarrassment. "Couldn't get to sleep last night," he explained bravely, "so I got up early this morning for a long hike. But as far as home and thought I'd take the liberty of dropping in." He saw Capt. Davis' head and shoulders as he interrogated at his wife. "That's mighty sweet of you, mighty sweet," Mrs. Davis cooed. "Won't you sit down and join us? We've just about to have breakfast." Howard wanted to decline. Every instinct in his body warned him that he ought not to yield, but he knew that instinct was a stomach that grew without food for fifteen hours. "If it won't be imposing on you," he said, "I'll have it." He was sitting at the table. Not to be outdone in hospitality Mrs. Davis had risen from her chair and gone over to the stove. She opened the door and put another egg on the fire. She cracked two more eggs and announced her intention.

Too Much Money

While the treasury surplus is the largest in our history, Acting Secretary Mills emphasizes the fact that more than one-half of the accumulated funds have come from non-recurrent sources—back taxes and railroad settlements that are not of a permanent character. Without these special items the natural surplus would be 265 millions, a large part of which is attributed to decrease in expenditures. The annual interest rate on the nation's debt has been reduced 67 millions so that next year payments will be about 720 millions of dollars. Treasury officials and the administration favor the application of this surplus to reducing the national debt and affecting a further reduction of these interest charges. Appropriations for the immediate relief of 300,000 victims of the Mississippi floods will make a big hole in the surplus, and no one can predict how long prosperity will be with us. But so long as it lasts every possible dollar should be applied to payment of the debts. Man's mastery of the elements still seems to depend to a considerable extent on whether or not the elements agree to it.—Ohio State Journal. Europe seems to be willing to let America take the lead in trans-Atlantic flying. That's one way we get more tourists over.—Florida Times-Union.

TURNING THE PAGES BACK

ASHLAND 12 Years Ago. H. P. Andrews and wife left on Monday for Los Angeles, to try the southern California climate in behalf of the former. Mrs. R. E. Eastman and daughter Gertrude, former Ashland residents, now making their home in Santa Ana, and who have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Eastman's son H. G. Eastman, returned to their California home yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chittin, daughter Wilma, son Charles Webster and guests, Mrs. Thomson and Miss Charlotte Chittin from Missouri, climber Mount Ashland the first of the week, returning yesterday. R. M. Hedges was happily surprised last Wednesday by the arrival of an auto party from North Yakima—among whom was his niece Miss Ruth Hedges. ASHLAND 20 Years Ago. Miss Grace and Leta Nickerson of Klamath Falls will arrive in Ashland in a few days and will be guests at the homes of Mrs. P. R. Ticker and Mrs. R. A. Schwell. Miss Grace Nickerson was a graduate of the State Normal school in the class of '90. Mrs. J. P. Wolf of the Depot hotel returned Tuesday from a visit of seven weeks at Milwaukee, Wisconsin. E. E. Phipps left yesterday on a visit to his native state, West Virginia. T. D. Jackson of Hot Springs, S. D., is among the new residents of Ashland. His son, John Jackson, and family preceded him here and were so well pleased with the country that they passed the good news along. ASHLAND 30 Years Ago. Mrs. Flo Otto and her mother Mrs. Cowles leave in a few days for an extended trip to Lincoln, Nebraska, via the U. P. R. R. Herbert and Chas. Baldwin came over the mountain from Klamath to attend the circus and visit the city. Charles and Richard Roper have joined the throng of Ashland people out at the Klamath lake. Mrs. W. A. Patrick and family went over to Colistin by Saturday's train to remain for a few days. W. H. Brunk and his family spent Sunday at Colistin.