Now just to think,
I'm tickled pink,
Our milk's homogenized

Cream in every drop

— and here's the reason

NOBODY likes the milk at the bottom of a bottle because there's little or no cream left in it.
But Alpine is different. There's just as much cream in the last spoonful as in the first. That's because it's homogenized.
This process breaks up the large coarse globules of milk fat, which form the cream, into countless tiny ones. As a result they remain evenly distributed throughout instead of rising to the top as cream does in ordinary milk. That's why there's cream in every drop of Alpine.
A double supply of cream, too. For Alpine is pure, rich milk with the cream retained but more than half the water removed.
Use Alpine in your coffee and in every recipe that calls for milk. You'll get a richer flavor, a smoother, creamier consistency.
Costs less than ordinary milk—keeps pure and sweet indefinitely in its sterilized air-tight container. Get Alpine today.

Yes cream all through
I always knit
I'm not one bit surprised!

For your next layer cake try this smooth, rich Chocolate Icing 1 cup Alpine Milk, 2 cup sugar, 4 squares chocolate, 1 tsp. vanilla. Cook Alpine Milk and chocolate together until smooth, stirring constantly.
Add sugar and cook till mixture thickens. Take from fire and, when cool, add vanilla. Spread between layers and on top of cake.

ALPINE milk
"there's cream in every drop"

"Yes, we use it every day." Many people "right here in your neighborhood
are enjoying the full flavor and wholesome goodness of Gem-Nut Margarine. They might have added "at a saving" but you don't think of that when you're eating it.
Very, very good to the taste.
