

BEAR SHOT WHILE CHARGING HUNTER

Earle Snyder and Walter Mische, two young men from the Bellevue district, had quite an adventure with a bear last week while hunting on Chiniquap mountain, in the Green Springs country. Snow had fallen in that section and the boys started out early to follow the tracks of a bear which they finally located in its bed under the trees. A shot brought the animal out, when it charged at Mische in a most ferocious manner. Several other shots from Snyder's gun finally brought Bruin to the ground and saved his comrade from the enraged animal. The bear was a good sized black one.

Biggest Hog Shipment Marketed

The largest individual hog shipment ever received at the Kansas City market, consisting of 949 hogs which averaged 230 pounds apiece, a total of 265,720 pounds of pork on the hoof, recently was received from a Livingston county, Missouri, farmer. These porkers had rail service de luxe, as the 16 cars they occupied were handled as a special livestock train. The extra attention accorded this shipment was worth the trouble, as only three hogs, or about three-tenths of 1 per cent were lost.

WAR DEPARTMENT WILL SELL SURPLUS CANDY

WASHINGTON—The war department is about to dispose of 1,300,000 pounds of surplus army candy. The quartermaster general has directed a partial distribution of the surplus candy stock, about 1,300,000 pounds being distributed in the New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Atlanta zones to be sold in the army retail stores.

The prices at which the candy will be sold over the counter or delivered on mail order will be as follows:

Chocolate, 15 cents for half-pound package; 30 cents for one pound.

Caramels, half pound, 15 cents; one pound, 25 cents.

Stick, assorted, half-pound, 15 cents; one pound, 25 cents.

Lemon drops, half-pound, 15 cents; one pound, 25 cents.

LONDON—Fined $5 for traveling without paying his fare, Harold Fisher had no money, and the court refused to accept a pair of boots in payment. A policeman in court, saved him from jail by buying them. So Harold paid.

SUIT IN EQUITY—SUMMONS.

In the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, in and for the County of Jackson.

Mary B. Denmore, Plaintiff, vs. Ruth Denmore, Defendant.

To Ruth Denmore, the defendant above named.

In the name of the State of Oregon, you are hereby notified that Mary B. Denmore, as plaintiff, has commenced a suit against you in the Circuit Court of the State of Oregon, in and for Jackson county, in pursuance of an order made and entered in said cause by the Honorable Judge of said Court on the 22d day of August, 1919, you are hereby summoned and required to appear in said cause, on or before six weeks from and after the date of the first publication of this summons, which first publication will be on the 8th day of October, 1919, and answer the complaint of the plaintiff filed therein, and for want of answer thereto, on or before said date, the plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded and prayed for in said complaint, viz:

I. That the defendant may be required to set forth the nature of her claim of interest in and to Lots One and Two in the Mathews Addition to the City of Ashland, in Jackson County, State of Oregon, and that all adverse claims of the defendant may be determined by a decree of said Court.

II. That by such decree it be declared and adjudged that the defendant had no estate or interest in or to said lands or premises; and that the title of plaintiff is good and valid.

III. That the defendant be forever enjoined and debarred from asserting any claim whatever in or to said lands or premises adverse to plaintiff, and for such other and further relief as to the court shall seem just and equitable, and for plaintiff's costs of suit.

Dated Oct. 8, 1919.

New York Editor Throws Ashland Many Bouquets

Following is a story written for the Tarrytown Daily News by its managing editor, Walter Odell, describing his visit to Ashland when he was here in August with the National Editorial association. A paragraph containing the article was sent to Mayor C. B. Lamkin and this is what the visitor says of his stop in this city:

Every day has been a wonder day since we hit this great northwest country. We have just left Ashland, a pretty little village of 6000 inhabitants, 99 per cent of whom are Americans. It is a fine residential town, a town any American can be proud of. It is noted for its things, its sulphur springs, lithia water and the fact that it has only two policemen, one at night and one during the day. Tarrytown please copy. And for three years on the Fourth of July, when they have a big celebration and 25,000 people crowd into the village, not one arrest has been made. The mayor of the town says this record has been made because the town is the purest American town on the continent.

When we reached Ashland after a long trip back from Crater Lake, to which I will refer later, we were dusty and tired, and when our host suggested that we go to the sulphur baths, for which Ashland is famous, we jumped at the suggestion. That bath was one of the bright spots of the trip. First, we had a drink of sulphur water from a spring, but I can't say that I like it. In fact it tastes something like a rotten egg, and that's about the last thing I want to taste. However it has strong medicinal properties and hundreds come here to drink and bathe in it. We went to the Helman baths. The water is as clear as a crystal. The sulphur water runs into the tank continually and is warm. Pure spring water is mixed with it and it makes a fine plunge. The sulphur at first bothered my nose, but I got used to it. I had a dandy swim followed by a shower of ice cold water. I felt like a new man when I got dressed. Then we drove up to town and in the city park the women had prepared a wonderful dinner. The tables were set under the trees and it was a beautiful scene. We had chicken and biscuit covered with gravy, scalloped potatoes, salad, pickled, jam and jelly, peaches, plums, apples, ice cream with strawberry fruit, coffee and bread. And everything was served hot. The enterprising electric company in its village furnished the women with two large electric stoves and connected them up for the occasion.

Here is an interesting fact for President Pierson. Electricity is furnished in the homes for three cents a kilowatt for the substantial kilowatts and there is a substantial reduction on consumption above this figure. Everybody uses electricity. Of course the company gets its power from the fine streams that abound in this country. I saw one that developed 5000 horsepower. All these towns have the prettiest light standards, and in Ashland and Medford they have strings of lights across the river.

"Improvements of the last few years in the construction of tires has made the old-time mileage guarantee to all intents and purposes a thing of the past," declares H. G. Enders. "The tendency today is to judge a tire by its actual performance, considering the conditions under which it is run."

"In the old days, the days of the 'Merry Oldsmobile' and kindred cars with their maximum speed of twenty miles per hour, the tire industry, as applied to automobiles, was, of course, never than the automobile itself. It was quite in order then that the tire manufacturer should evidence faith in his product by guaranteeing it to go a certain distance. If he didn't have faith in his product, who would?"

"With the automobile confined to its then very limited use, and the roads in practically the same condition everywhere, the stress on tires was slight compared to the heavy use they are put to today. Under those conditions a manufacturer could readily guarantee a given mileage."

Conditions changed.

"Now, however, conditions have changed," says Mr. Enders, "that it is unnecessary, as well as impossible, to state with any degree of accuracy the distance in miles a perfect tire will run. It is unnecessary because tires are made by reputable manufacturers and are so constructed to-day that with proper treatment they will withstand rough usage far exceeding the demands of the former mileage guarantee. That it is impossible to guarantee a perfect tire will run a given number of miles is true, because the life of the tire is dependable not wholly on its own merits so much as on the conditions under which and how it is run."

"The utility of the present day automobile and the correspondingly greater demand on tires, has made it impossible to state how many miles a tire should run, just as it is impossible to predetermine how many walking miles your next pair of shoes will render. No mileage guarantee accompanies a new pair of shoes or any other article dependent on wearing conditions for its life. Under ordinary conditions a pair of shoes will last a reasonable length of time, but their use and appearance is greatly impaired under changed conditions, and the same is true of tires. Under adverse conditions three thousand miles might be a remarkable showing for a tire, whereas the same tire would run twenty thousand miles under more favorable conditions."

"The Savage Tire company guarantees their tires to be free from imperfections in material and workmanship. That guarantee is unconditional, irrespective of the mileage obtained. If a tire is found defective in any way it is unequivocally replaced. For this purpose a standard of 4500 miles for regular tires and 6500 for D type tires has been established as a basis on which to work."

Want Better Tires.

"Not content with making ordinary tires, the last two years have been devoted to producing a tire that will excel anything on the market. Reports from all sections of the country where their tires have been in use under every road condition on the cars of users everywhere, give evidence of their having attained that object. Such an ideal cannot be realized without giving time, effort and expense—and these were given unsparingly. The results prove that."

"They are working on a policy that requires not only last year, this year or next year to be marked as particularly successful, but each succeeding year must bring with it consistent and persistent development. As applied to the products of the Savage Tire Co. 'Built to excel' means just what it is intended to imply."

"Much interest is manifested by motorists in the big super-size D type being produced by the Savage people. Comparative tests under severe conditions have demonstrated that this new departure in construction is in a class by itself. In rough usage on heavy machines and stages it has met with signal success."

Goggles for horses have been invented to protect their eyes from dust.

Linton—Associated Oil Co. is spending over $100,000 on improvements on plant here.

"Business is certainly picking up rapidly in Ashland," remarked a well known merchant Saturday. "I can see an improvement along my own line of business and can feel it among my contemporaries. The unusually good fruit crop this year with unprecedented prices has much to do with the prosperity reigning in this valley, as well as the highway construction that is a great boost to this city. Ashland has never been any busier and has been doing more business than it is doing now within my knowledge and indications point to a steady and healthy increase."

The Social Realm

Card Party

The Ladies of the Maccabees are arranging for a card party to be held in the Trinity parish house Wednesday evening which will be a fine social event.

Missionary Meeting

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church held their meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph Billings. A large number were present and a particularly enjoyable and instructive meeting resulted. Mrs. Carroll Pratt presided. Mrs. Hammond was leader. Mrs. John Helman gave the "Crusade of Compassion." Mrs. Billings gave the introduction to the new book for this year's work. Mrs. Pratt had charge of the "Mystery Box," and the following assisted her: Mesdames McCracken, Clark, Herbert, Engle, G. F. Billings. After business the hostess served refreshments.

Entertained at Dinner

Mrs. B. R. Greer was hostess at a four-course dinner at her home on Upper Granite street Saturday evening. Places were laid for eight and were designated by attractive place cards, representing characteristics of the guests. The house and dining table were beautifully decorated with pink roses, massed in beds of green. After dinner the guests gathered in front of the fireplace in the Greer living room where a most enjoyable evening was spent until a late hour in the radiance of the huge log fire.

Former Ashland Girl Married

Announcements have been received in Ashland of the marriage of Miss Margaret Burns Hodgson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hodgson, former residents of this city, to Warren Evans Hall, which took place at the home of the bride's parents in Gooding, Idaho, Wednesday, October 1. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Douglas, pastor of the Gooding Methodist church, in the presence of the family. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hodgson, and is a graduate of San Jose, Calif., normal of last year where she met the groom, who was in the United States service at Camp Fremont. There the romance began that ended in the marriage of Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Hall will live at Gardiner, Mont.

Surprised Their Teacher

The members of Miss Rose Patterson surprised her at her home last Saturday afternoon by coming in a body with their luncheons and spending the afternoon with her picnic fashion. A goodly company of little girls were there and spent a delightful time playing games of all sorts with their teacher, who proved a most gracious hostess, even if she was not aware of the party until it had arrived at her home.

Roast Dinner

Trinity guild will serve one of their roast dinners for which they are famous next Thursday evening in the Parish house on Second street. The dinner will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock.

PARENT-TEACHERS MEET

The Oregon Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher association holds its annual state convention in Medford October 8, 9 and 10. The Parent-Teacher circles of Ashland have extended an invitation to this convention to hold the meetings of Thursday, October 9, in our city. Mrs. Frederick Schilke, state president.

Fifty delegates are expected from the northern and eastern parts of Oregon and twenty-five from Jackson county. A morning and afternoon meeting will be held in the auxiliary club rooms in the Chautauqua pioneer hall. Luncheon will be served these delegates at the Ashland high school. This luncheon will be prepared and served by Miss Neal and her class of girls in the domestic science department.

A fine program has been arranged by the state officers and it is urged that all our people make an effort to attend either one or both of the days' meetings. Meetings are open to all, whether you are a member of the Parent-Teacher circles or not.
