JIMMY, THE OFFICE BOY SAYS.

Dear Readert-

I wanted to tell you about Mrs. Susie Allen's doughouts Saturday, but I was so busy taking proofs out to the advertisers and trying to keep out of the way of the city editor, who was sore about my writing to you. that I didn't have time. Saturday morning, while I was resting up a bit, after selling a man a three months subscription to the paper. Mra. Allen came to the door and motioned me to open it, she having her arms full with a big bag of the doughnuts I'm telling you about. The office bunch and the fellows in the print shop got all the doughnuts that I didn't so I don't know just how many there were, but there was plenty. I left my first doughnut on the city editor's desk while I took some copy to the composing room and when I got back, the doughnut was gone. Of course I couldn't accuse him of taking it because he had told me that he liked personal items for the paper better than anything else. Maybe the doughnuts weren't personal items but as my Uncle Jim says, I got a lot of personal satisfaction out of them. Mrs. Alles said she gave some to the fellows at the post office, too. It's a good thing Mrs. Allen didn't come to the Tidings office first, because the post office bunch wouldn't have had any luck at all if she had. JIMMY.
