Livestock Exposition Premium List

The preliminary classification, or premium list, of the Pacific International Live Stock Exposition, to be held in Portland November 4 to 11, inclusive, this year, has just been issued. It is impossible to speak exhaustively of all the good things which the book contains, but the following are of particular interest:

The closing dates for entries are noon, October 10, for all breeding classes, and noon, October 20, for fat classes.

The same beef classes are offered liberal premiums, amounting to $15,850, for Shorthorns, Herefords, Aberdeen - Angus, milking Shorthorns and Red Polled cattle.

In the dairy cattle division a new class has been added to the Holsteins, Jerseys, Guernseys and Ayrshires, for a goodly amount of money is offered this year for Brown Swiss cattle, said to be the oldest breed of purebred cattle in the world.

The sheep and hog divisions are as large and strong as ever. Heavy horses are represented by the four great draft breeds, with more money for each than last year. The fat cattle, sheep and hogs are well supplied with cash premiums.

There has never been such a showing as that of the boys' and girls' club classes, $3525 being offered for awards. The breed associations have been generous with the boys and girls this year. E. A. Stuart, president of the Pacific International Live Stock exposition, has offered trips to the Carnation stock farm, Seattle, Wash., for the 20 boys and girls making the finest display of dairy cattle. The cost of these trips will approximate $500.

The Western Winter Poultry show held at the Pacific International last year for the first time, will be on again with a larger and more beautiful exhibition of poultry and rabbits than ever.

The Manufacturers' and Land Products show will occupy a prominent place in the Exhibits building, and is expected to be particularly fine in exhibits of fruits, grasses, grains and root crops.

The Dairy Products show promises to be not only very attractive, but of untold value to both the dairy manufacturing industry and the consuming public.

Those interested in this great exposition, representing the entire Pacific slope, may see a copy of the premium list, which is on file in this office for the benefit of our readers.

MRS. A. H. RUSSELL GIVES TALK TO SUNDAY SCHOOL

A pleasant feature of the Sunday school exercises of the Presbyterian church yesterday was the talk by Mrs. A. H. Russell, one of the earliest pioneers of southern Oregon, now a well-preserved woman of well past fourscore years. Mrs. Russell described the first Sunday school in Ashland, started by Mrs. Haworth, who gathered the few children of the settlement in her home Sundays to train them in the great eternal truths of God's word. When the school numbered a dozen or so, it was too large for her tiny house, so the school board gave permission for the Sunday school to meet in the little school house.

Then a few grown folks began to attend. Mr. Russell was chosen superintendent, and he demanded an assistant. Mr. A. G. Rockefeller being chosen. So the two men conducted the school on alternate Sundays, taking turns in cleaning the school house, building fires and ringing the big hand bell to call to service. Then came the building of the Presbyterian church, and the union Sunday school was housed in this church for many years. Mr. Billings being superintendent until the time of the separation of the union school.

Mrs. Haworth later went to China as a missionary, and doubtless she this has passed on, but that this pioneer woman had faith and courage to build a lasting institution is evidenced by the large and enthusiastic Sunday schools of Ashland today.

Mr. Fee has always thought well of Ashland and said while here that he intended to make an effort to bring the special train which will carry a large number of the traffic agents, south over the Espee, and have them make a stop at Ashland for a day and show them what lies at the foot of the Siskiyou mountains.

RATTLESNAKE KILLED AFTER STRIKING AT CHILD

After striking at little "Sonny" Freed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Freed, Friday afternoon and then disappearing down a knot hole in the porch flooring of the L. L. Smart home, a rattlesnake appeared in the doorway of the house, a rattlesnake wearing seven rattles and the proverbial button, was shot and killed by Mike O'Hair Saturday afternoon in the yard of the home on Main street.

The reptile was seen several times yesterday and when first observed was coiled under a cage containing a canary on the porch. Neighbors would hardly believe that the snake could possibly be a rattler.—Colusa (Calif.) News.

The Freed family are well known in Ashland and only left here a few weeks ago to locate in Colusa, Mrs. Freed is the daughter of Mrs. W. J. Keeton.

SHALE OIL MACHINE TURNS OUT HIGH QUALITY CRUDE

Quite a number of Ashland people attended the demonstration this afternoon at Mack's garage on Pioneer street, where the Hartman Syndicate is extracting crude oil from shale.

This oil is of very high grade, showing a test of almost 50 per cent gravity, which is exceptionally high for crude oil. Another interesting feature is the high percentage of lubricants that it contains, lubricants being in far greater demand than either gasoline or kerosene.

Some of the city's most prominent citizens have been at one or more of these demonstrations and express themselves as being greatly interested with the project. Demonstrations are given every afternoon, beginning at 3 o'clock and continuing two or three hours. Every person in Ashland should see this demonstration, whether they would consider buying stock or not.

SHALE RETORT IS NOW READY TO BE SHIPPED HERE

EXPECT TO HAVE IT INSTALLED ON DEAD INDIAN BEFORE SNOW FLIES

Order Will Be Placed in Seattle This Week for Pipe for Gravity Line, and Work on New Road Starts Wednesday.

That the Hartman Syndicate is losing no time in getting under way with the work of developing the proposition of extracting oil from their shale holdings in the Dead Indian country, was evidenced this morning when they closed a contract for the completion of the roadway which they have had surveyed to the camp at the head of Antelope valley. The teams will be put to work by Wednesday, and the work pushed as rapidly as possible.

Mr. H. Hartman, head of the syndicate, received the following telegram this morning:

New York, August 21, 1922. Hartman Syndicate of Pacific Coast, 29 First St., Ashland, Oregon. Can you send at once 50 copies of Ashland Daily Tidings August 14, to John M. Hoen, 1639 Broadway. Have two hundred and fifty ton retort ready for Pacific coast. Will leave for L. A. shortly and will come to Ashland, and if satisfactory, will help erect first plant. Answer. E. W. Hartman, 125 Riverside Drive, New York City.

Mr. H. Hartman said that if the rail strike did not interfere with the shipment he hoped to have it on the ground in time for installation before the snow flies, and barring some unforeseen accident, expected the plant to be in operation by next spring. After they were under way, he said, the workings would be an all-year-round proposition, with which the snow would not interfere, as there would be no hauling of freight from the plant in the hills, the oil being piped to the tanks on the railroad by gravity. He will leave the latter part of this week for Seattle to place the order for a large quantity of pipe.

There was no demonstration of the retort yesterday, but a large party was taken out to the holdings on Dead Indian, and spent several hours examining the deposits of shale that have been opened up, and all appeared satisfied that there was enough shale in the mountains to last for the next hundred years, and that it is of exceptionally high grade.

Among those who visited the demonstration rooms yesterday, was W. J. West, cashier of the First National bank of Weed, who is heavily interested in the Hartman Syndicate. He said he had made a thorough investigation and was so well satisfied with the prospects that he intended to increase his investment at the earliest possible moment. He was accompanied by Mrs. West and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Borst, of Fullerton, Calif. Mr. Borst is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. West, and he made a reservation of quite a large block of shares in the company. They spent the day here as guests of the Hartman family, and made a trip around the high drive and through the valley, leaving for home late in the afternoon.
