COMMUNITY CLUB HOUSE WILL BE COMPLETED SOON

The community club house project of the Civic Improvement club, which has been under construction for several months past, but which has been held up for some little time on account of the lack of funds, is to be completed within the next six weeks, according to members of the club.

Jesse Winburn has agreed to furnish not only sufficient money to finish the building itself, but has promised the ladies to equip the building with all the necessary furniture to make the club rooms centers of culture and refinement. In addition to this, Mr. Winburn has contracted with Mr. Palmer of Medford for a pipe organ to be installed in the auditorium of the building. Mr. Palmer is now in San Francisco to make the selection personally. The pipe organ will necessarily have to be small, but Mr. Winburn informed Mr. Palmer that he should pay as high as $5000 in order to get an organ of sufficient quality and tone to go with the other equipment of the club rooms, if he found it necessary.

The ladies of the civic club consider themselves fortunate in having a friend like Mr. Winburn, and are truly thankful for the most generous gift which will enable them to complete and equip the community center.

Leaves for Corvallis—

Don Wilson, who has been working for the past few weeks at the Plaza confectionery, left today for Corvallis, where he will attend O. A. C. during the coming school year. Mr. Wilson is a native of Idaho, but has been spending the summer vacation on an auto trip to the Mexican border and back. He is a printer by trade and makes his way at college by running a print shop near the college campus.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Rhodes, Mrs. Mary E. Morgan and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stanley spent Sunday picnicking at Lithia springs.

RACING PROGRAM COMPLETED FOR THE COUNTY FAIR

If there were any doubting Thomases with respect to the quantity and quality of exhibits which will be shown at the Jackson county fair, September 13 to 16, those doubts would have been dispelled if they had been present at the meeting of the fair directors Wednesday night. The greatest problem with which they have to contend, is the housing of the products and stock offered for display.

At the meeting, Scott Woolf and Wig Ashpole, committee on horse racing, appeared and stated that we would have a fine string of "gallopers" for the races, and that a number of horses would be here today to work out for the fair. They asked what provisions had been made to stable these "blue blooded runners." The directors had not intended to build barns, owing to shortage of funds, but found it absolutely necessary and will commence work at once on 200 feet of box stalls, 12 feet wide, on the south side of the grounds to accommodate the horses. They will be quartered temporarily in other structures.

Messrs. Woolf and Ashpole say they already have 20 fast horses engaged, including some of the best on the coast, that go from here to the races at the state fair in Salem. They include horses belonging to Baker's of Grants Pass, Parker's of John Day, Or., Murphy's of Ashland, and Holbrook's of Port Klamath.

There will be two or three galloping races each day, races for home saddle horses, and a relay race each day between the famous Murphy and Holbrook string of runners.

The speed program for the fair also includes two motorcycle races, by professionals and amateurs, auto races, and motorcycle polo each day.

The fair association is preparing to have this big program of events put on without any delay in order to get the events in each day by 5:30 o'clock, if possible. The people are sure going to get their money's worth in amusements.

BUICK CAR TURNS TURTLE; THREE PERSONS INJURED

A Buick car being driven by Clyde Gardner of Medford, turned turtle last night just beyond Jackson Hot Springs, pinning all five of the occupants of the car underneath it. Fortunately quite a number of people were near at hand, as the dance at the pavilion had just closed, so that those in the accident were removed from the wreck without any fatalities.

Mr. Gardner, who is a clerk at the Hotel Medford, had just purchased the car, and had only driven it a few days, not yet having obtained his permanent license. In the car with him at the time of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Rippey and daughter, and a bell boy from the hotel.

Mr. Gardner was cut and bruised in several places about the face and body, while the boy escaped with only minor cuts. Mr. Rippey received a scalp wound and other slight bruises, but his wife seemed to have suffered the worst injury of any in the party. She had a bad cut on her forehead and remained unconscious until early this morning, having no recollection of the accident. The daughter suffered a fractured rib. It is thought, but is otherwise unhurt. Mr. Gardner and the boy were taken to Medford while the Rippeys were brought to the Granite City hospital here for medical care. At the time of going to press this afternoon they were preparing to leave for their home in Medford.

The accident was caused by locking the wheels with the brakes, when going at a good rate of speed, causing the car to slide off the pavement, which smashed the left rear wheel and cause the machine to turn over.

JOSEPH S. MILLER DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Joseph S. Miller died here this morning, following a two days illness, at the age of 64 years.

He was taken ill Monday morning, while about his work, and was taken home and medical aid called, but owing to his being unconscious the greater part of the time, it was not realized his condition was so serious until this morning, when the attending physician decided an operation was necessary. He died before the operation could be performed.

Mr. Miller came to this section of the valley 13 years ago, and has been working for the Carson-Fowler Lumber company the greater part of the time since.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters and three sons. Funeral arrangements have not been completed and will be announced at a later date.

Blind Boy Wins Big Honor for Work at Island University

HONOLULU, H. T., Aug. 29.—Scholastic leadership at the University of Hawaii for the college year which has just closed, goes to a blind boy, Henry Bindt, a third year student, in the college of arts and sciences.

Besides attaining an average grade of 93 in all his subjects during the year, thus leading the entire student body in scholarship, Bindt took an active part in college activities, being elected president of the student body for the ensuing year, as well as president of the literary club and president of his class. He was also one of the few students to be chosen as charter members of the newly organized student honor society.

Bindt does his studying by the aid of readers and a dictaphone, using also text books printed in the American Braille system of raised letter writing. He takes no lecture notes, depending entirely on his memory, which his instructors say is remarkably developed.

The honor system was adopted at the University of Hawaii during the last year largely as a result of Bindt's efforts in lecturing to students and faculty on the advantages of the system. The blind boy received his early schooling in the California school for the blind at Berkeley, Calif.

BALLOT MEASURES

A short time ago every voter in the state received from the secretary of state a pamphlet containing a list of measures to be voted upon at the November election. Are these pamphlets, published for the purpose of informing people as to the full text of the measures, read carefully, as they should be, or are they glanced at casually and tossed aside?

Today, perhaps, November may loom up as something that is bound to appear before long, something intangible, but inevitable, like death or taxes, but the days slide by in rapid succession, and before it can be realized, almost, all good citizens find that they must rush to the polls and cast their ballots.

It is a matter of fact that Oregon is known for the large proportion of "joker" containing and fake measures placed upon the ballot, though it can be said to its credit they are seldom passed. In many instances the escape from placing fake measures upon the law books of the state has been very narrow.

Do not wait until election eve before glancing at these pamphlets. Take them. Do not read them, but study them. Satisfy yourself that a measure is for the good of the state, your county, city or yourself. Then go and vote for it. If you conscientiously believe the measure to be detrimental, then cast your vote against it. But in either case, do not go blind to the polls.

If you are not satisfied with your employer, you can leave him. If your employer does not meet with your approval, you can fire him. If the governor is not all that you think he should be, you can divorce him from his office in four years. But—all measures, if they become laws in November, are likely to be on the books for a long time before it is possible to repeal them.

The situation needs studying. It is as much the duty of every voter to study the pamphlet, argue the various measures, and reach a definite conclusion regarding the measures, as it is the duty of every voter to visit the polls election day.

CHICKEN RAISERS LEARN HOW TO CULL THEIR FLOCK

Four poultry demonstrations will be held in Jackson county this week. Prof. H. E. Cosby, poultry specialist of Oregon Agricultural college, will be present to take up principally the problem of culling.

This is the time of year when culling should be done by all who would get the most out of their flocks. The vital points of culling will be taken up in full. All poultrymen interested are invited to attend one of these meetings.

The first meeting was held at the home of Postmaster W. Warner, 519 South Oakdale street, Medford, at 9 o'clock this morning, and this afternoon at Warren Mee's ranch, one mile above the Applegate store.

Tomorrow forenoon a meeting will be held at the White Wing Poultry farm at Phoenix, and an afternoon meeting at E. C. Hamilton's, two miles northwest of Central Point. These meetings will be called at 9 and 2 o'clock respectively.
