She Liked Silk Hosiery.
Susan B. Anthony was a woman of simple taste in dress, but her close friends knew of one pretty feminine vanity that she always held to. She had a weakness for silk stockings. Being pressed on one occasion for an explanation of what most women at one time regarded as an unnecessary extravagance, she laughingly exclaimed: "Oh, I just love 'em! They are an inspiration. If I have my silk stockings on when I rise to make an address I feel just as if I am walking among the clouds. They help me to soar away on flights of eloquence. I wouldn't be without them."

DEATH RECORD.
Joseph C. Reavis was born at Pisgah, Cooper county, Missouri, June 1, 1835. Was married to Miss Emily McKinney, Dec. 17, 1856. He removed from his native state to Texas in the year 1870, residing there until the year 1888, when he came to Walla, which was then a part of Union county. Here he resided until his death which occurred Wednesday, October 20.

He is survived by his widow and three sons: Frank of Enterprise, David of Crowell, Texas, and Fred, who is in the Philippine Islands. Two daughters preceded him, Lizzie who died before reaching womanhood, and Mrs. Minnie Hendrickson. Mr. Reavis had been a member of the Presbyterian church for 30 years for many years serving as an elder.

The funeral was held Friday forenoon at 10 o'clock from the Presbyterian church and was very largely attended. The altar and organ were beautifully decorated in autumn flowers and foliage, and the casket was laden with floral tributes. Rev. Samuel Harris, pastor of the Presbyterian church, delivered the sermon and Rev. W. P. Sams spoke on the life of Mr. Reavis and Rev. C. E. Trueblood offered prayer. A choir composed of singers from the various church choirs sang several appropriate songs.

The pall bearers, all old friends, were John Rumble, John Calvin, Ben Boswell, Jacob Wagner, W. W. White and Joe Melotte.

The business houses were closed and the public school was dismissed during the funeral.

THE FRIENDSHIP OF NATIONS.
Yet it is true, as Molinari says, that the saving in treasure and life is but a mere incident of the benefits which will come when there is friendship among the nations and a universal peace. Think of the bodies and brain that will be let loose from the warfare of mankind when fear of war shall have ceased; of the freedom of intercourse and commerce when every flag of every land shall be welcome in every port! Think the advance in government when that which is now the principal cause of government shall have passed away, leaving man free to solve other problems.

The friendship of the nations means the uplift of the masses; it means that burdens and shackles will fall from those who are weary and oppressed. It means that the human hive, undisturbed, will hum with industry, investigation, and the wholly new impetus will arise within him. There will be other and greater poets. Other and greater heroes and a higher uplift toward the true god-hood in man. Nation will join hand with nation until the world will be circled by the nations, each finding what is such an acceleration of human progress that no imagination can picture the outcome.—Charles Erskine Scott Wood in the November Pacific Monthly.

It will be sung in the unions all over the land and in the Sunday schools everywhere.

MAKE THE MAP ALL WHITE.
By Leona Mabel Dufford, Evanston, Ill.

"Tune, The wearing of the Green."
O my comrades, have you heard the glorious word that's going round? There'll very soon be no saloon on all Columbia's ground. There's a wave of Prohibition rolling up from every strand.

And all the states it inundates, straightaway become dry land! By city, state, or county, or by township, or by town,

Just let the people have a chance—we'll vote the dram shop down.

Refrain:—
Till we make the map all white,
Till we make the map all white;
We'll work for Prohibition, till we make the map all white.

Maine is at the head, for she has led for half a hundred years,
And Kansas great and North Dakota stand among their peers;
Georgia next, and Oklahoma, won their place among the free;
Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina, Tennessee;
And Texas, too, and Arkansas, have voted for the right,
And all the rest will follow, till we make the map all white.

The distillery and the brewery and the winery all must go;
The saloons can stay no longer, when the people have said "No"
So we'll sing them out, and pray them out, and educate them out,
We'll talk them out, and vote them out, and legislate them out;
We'll agitate and organize, and surely win the fight,
We'll work for Prohibition, till we make the map all white.

Osteopathy in Women's Diseases.
Congestions, strains and displacements are the basis of most of the sickness that afflicts womankind, the real first causes of disease. Every function of the human machine is dependent upon its appropriate structure or organs. So disturbances of function (disease) are due to abnormalities in structure, to mechanical faults in the anatomy. This is the osteopathic view of disease, developed by long study and the examination of countless cases, and it is now fully established that congestions, strains and displacements are productive of greater ills than any other set of causes.—Osteopathic Health.

INVESTORS and LAND BUYERS

All over the Northwest are talking of Walla County and the wonderfully fertile lands here that can be bought cheaper than similar land anywhere in the Inland Empire. There is no fairer land in all the Inter-Mountain region—and no section with richer and more varied resources. Everything is here. Fertile land for grain, hay, sugar beets, vegetables, fruit; abundance of water, splendid climate, greatest body of timber in Eastern Oregon, unrivaled winter and summer range, great stock country and the mountains full of minerals. ## HOW A HORSE GALLOPS.

The Natural Way and the Conventional Pose in Art.

How does a horse gallop? Owing to the rapidity of action it cannot be seen by the human eye. However, just as the individual spokes of a rapidly revolving wheel can be made visible by a flash of lightning, so the action of a galloping horse can be and has been analyzed by instantaneous photography.

The statuette of Sysonby, the thoroughbred, has been made from photographs taken at the instant when all four legs are off the ground. The back is arched, the hind feet are directed forward, the fore feet backward, so that all are tucked under the animal's body.

When the limbs again touch the ground the first to do so is one of the hind feet, which is thrust far forward so as to form an acute angle with the line of the body and thus serve the purpose of a spring in breaking the force of the impact of the hoof when the horse is going at top speed.

In the conventional mode of representing a galloping horse all four legs are off the ground at once, but the front pair are extended backward in such a way that the undersurfaces of their hoofs are directed skyward, the body being at the same time brought near the ground. This conventional pose appears to have been derived from a dog running, when the front and hind pairs of legs are respectively extended forward and backward, with the soles of the hind feet turned upward.

This pose, it is thought, was adopted to represent the gallop of the horse by the goldsmiths of Mycenae between 800 and 1000 B. C., whence it was transmitted by way of Persia and Siberia to China and Japan, to return in the eighteenth century as the result of commercial relations to western Europe.—Chicago Tribune.

The Earwig.
There is no insect which has puzzled naturalists as to its proper classification more than the earwig. Some have asserted that it belongs to the beetles, of which it is an "aberrant type," others that it is connected with the grasshoppers. Even about its very name there has been endless discussion. Some have thought the name earwig is the result of the creature's supposed habit of getting into the ears, while others are equally certain that it is derived from the original name, which they say was earwing, from the fact that the wing when spread resembles the human ear. At all events, one thing is certain—the earwig as we know it now is a survival of an early type of which almost every other member has become extinct.

GOOD ROADS WORK IN WASHINGTON

of the agitation is to get enough American ships in the foreign carrying trade so that the greater part of $200,000,000 which we are now paying to foreign ship owners to transport our going and coming cargo, will be kept in the pockets of home-folks.

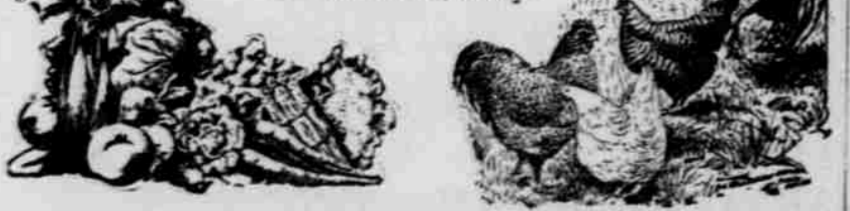

"Votes for Women" is the name of a monthly periodical, launched by the Washington State Equal Suffrage Association. Mrs. M. T. B. Hanna of Edmonds, is the editor and her assistants are Adella H. Parker, Mary G. O'Meara and Rose Glass. The primary purpose of the publication is to draw support to the constitutional amendment for equal suffrage that is to be voted on in this state November, 1910. Ultimately, the magazine is to be made national in its scope.

Governor Hay favors keeping intact the exhibit of Washington State at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, so as to provide a nucleus for display at future world's fairs. There are three in sight now, at which it is recognized the Evergreen State must be suitably represented. They are scheduled for Winnipeg in 1912; the Panama Canal Exposition at San Diego, Cal., in 1915; the Tokyo Exposition in 1917. Gov. Hay says there is enough of the original appropriation of $400,000 made by the state for the A-Y-P left to use to keep up the state exhibit. He wants it preserved at the University grounds in a semi-permanent buildings, where all visitors to Seattle can view it, as in San Francisco where the California Promotion Committee keep a permanent exhibit.

Miss Lizzie Arnold of Bellingham, 16 years old, won the women's championship for baseball throwing in the Post Intelligencer contest, recently. She made a record of 209 feet, 5 1/4 inches. This makes a new world record. Thirteen-year old Mayme McDonald covered the four bases on a ball diamond in 18 1/2 seconds, thereby winning the Dugdale medal. These athletic achievements show that the girls of the Northwest are world beaters.
