HERE'S the beautiful and impressive entrance to the new twelve story building now occupied by our friends

Hart Schaffner & Marx Good Clothes Makers

whose fine clothing we handle so much of. We're glad to show you this handsome illustration; it speaks well for the merchandise we sell; it is a monument to a continuous policy of maintaining the highest standards of good quality in clothes-making; all wool fabrics, when cotton-mixed cheapness is the rule; the best of tailoring; the most perfect styles and models; the highest type of fine clothes made.

We're glad to be identified with such goods, and you ought to be. Honest merchandise, with an honesty you can be sure of, is like an honest man; we are all benefited by associating with such merchandise and such men.

You'll find this store the home of Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes, and of much other merchandise of a similar sort; good quality always.

The Merits of Manure.
Satisfactorily and let us hope that you see and use of them, as it may be, that you were made one of them there are many people who "know" they know a great deal about manure and who are very ready to express opinions of it.

A large collection of such folk were brought daily appearing in a large public exhibition in one of our large cities, recently. They were required to give a definition of the word "manure"—and here are a few of the answers:

- "A better than anything of the kind ever was used by man."
- "Physical remedy prepared by putting one to sleep." Equally so far from truth as No. 1.
- The treatment of diseases by rubbing." One who does not rub like many others, this man knew only that the hands are used in rubbing. He guessed the rest—and guessed badly.—Right Way.

We, and Mrs. James Hayes of 45-47 1/2 Street returned Sunday from a five weeks' sojourn down on the Pacific.
