

WALLOWA.

By the Enterprise Press.

The soil is deeper, fairer, in Wallowa,
Old Wallowa;
And the air is purer, rarer, in Wallowa;
The streams are ever clearer,
The blue skies are ever nearer,
And the bird songs always dearer,
In Wallowa.

Oh, the hills are green and rolling, in Wallowa,
Old Wallowa,
And the mountain shoulders bowing o'er Wallowa;
Pine forests quiver lightly,
And the stars shine ever brightly,
While the gay moon swoons on nightly,
In Wallowa.

The peach bloom and the apple, in Wallowa,
Fair Wallowa,
Dot the green with pink and dapple, in Wallowa;
Here the virgin soil is crying,
Here the mineral is lying,
Here the spirit never dying
Of Wallowa!

Henry Clay's Eloquence.

It was the remark of a distinguished senator that Henry Clay's eloquence was absolutely intangible to definition, that the most labored description could not embrace it and that to be understood it must be seen and felt. He was an orator by nature. His eagle eye burned with patriotic ardor or flashed indignation and defiance upon his foes or was suffused with tears of commiseration or of pity, and it was because he felt that he made others feel. A gentleman after hearing one of his magnificent efforts in the senate thus described him: "Every muscle of the orator's face was at work. His whole body seemed agitated, as if each part was instinct with a separate life, and his small, white hand, with its blue veins apparently distended almost to bursting, moved gracefully, but with all the energy of rapid and vehement gesture. The appearance of the speaker seemed that of a pure intellect wrought up to its mightiest energies and brightly shining through the thin and transparent veil of flesh that invested it."—St. Louis Republic.

Cleanliness in Persia.

The Persian spends hours in the "hammams" (Turkish baths), which are very handsome buildings decorated with tiles and embellished with numerous exhortations as to the value of cleanliness. The smallest village in Persia has its "hammam," and bathing is almost a religious function. When the hot room and massage are finished the Persian is shaved, and the whole top of his head is likewise shaved, though the hair over the ears is left and allowed to grow down to the neck. This strange coiffure has a religious meaning, for the two locks on each side of the head are meant for the angel of death to hold when he carries the believer to paradise. All Persians dye their hair with a mixture of henna and vesneh, and the hair dyeing is the last part of the bath, but tea and smoking are indulged in afterward, and the frequenters of the "hammams" find them very pleasant lounging places.—Chicago Journal.

A Whale's Breathing.

An eminent naturalist says concerning the breathing apparatus of the whale: "The windpipe does not communicate with the mouth. A hole is, as it were, bored right through the back of the head. Engineers would do well to copy the action of the valve of the whale's blowhole. A more perfect piece of structure it is impossible to imagine. Day and night, asleep or awake, the whale works its breathing apparatus in such a manner that not a drop of water ever gets down into the lungs. Again, the whale must of necessity stay a much longer period under water than seals. This alone might possibly drown him, as the lungs cannot have access to fresh air. We find that this difficulty has been anticipated and obviated by a peculiar reservoir in the venous system, which reservoir is situated at the back of the lungs."

Is the Universe Running Down?

It is absolutely certain that the machinery of the solar system is running down. The earth, with its mass of three thousand trillion tons, moving through space a thousand times faster than the express train goes, is being retarded by the friction of the atmosphere and tides to the extent that it loses about an hour in 16,000 years, a very slow process, it would seem, but one that will inevitably bring the earth to a standstill ultimately. And what is true of the earth is true of all the worlds and suns. Sir Isaac Newton maintained that the motions of all bodies in space suffer retardation and that their velocity is steadily becoming less and will finally cease. Solar systems, like everything else, have their time to be born and their time to die.—New York American.

How Scott Bore Adversity.

Once when I was staying with Mr. Ruskin he took delight in showing me his Scott manuscripts. He took down "Woodstock" from the shelf, and, turning the leaves over slowly and lovingly, he said: "I think this is the most precious of them all. Scott was writing this book when the news of his ruin came upon him. He was about here, where I have opened it. Do you see the beautiful handwriting? Now look as I turn over the pages toward the end. Is the writing one jot less beautiful? Are there more erasures than before? That assuredly shows how a man can and should bear adversity."—London Graphic.

Failed to Catch the Tune.

A professor in an old Pennsylvania college was conducting a review in Latin. Of a sleepy looking youth he asked the question, "What construction is that at the top of page 12?" "I don't know," was the prompt reply. "Why not?" thundered the professor. "I have been harping on that construction all term." "I know you have, professor," was the soft reply, "but I haven't caught the tune yet."

Embarrassing Question.

Police Justice—Have you any way of making a living? Vagrant—I beg' yr honor. I kin make brooms. Police Justice—You can? Where did you learn that trade? Vagrant—I decline to answer, your honor.—Home Herald.

Orders All the Time.

First Commercial—Yes, I am just back from a three months' trip on the road. Second Commercial—Get many orders, old man? First Commercial—You bet! I took my wife with me! Make each day a critic on the last.—Popo.

Our Few Real Needs.

As civilization and culture make people more prosperous and more comfortable they are prone to forget how few and simple their real needs are. We need sleep, but not much of it, and most of us are asleep exactly when we ought most of all to be awake. We need food, but it is not necessary that food should be cunningly disguised with a thousand devices to tickle the jaded and surfeited palate, for the main trouble is that we eat too much and not too little. We need clothes to wear, but the one suit of fur that lasts certain animals all their lives is so beautiful that some men spend their whole time in search of it. We need heaven and the sense of a higher power directing our lives and our destinies, but we spend most of our time refuting and denying the possibility of anything bigger or better than we are. We need the love of friends, and therefore it is the more strange that we should spend our time not in improving ourselves, but in decorating our bodies, filling them with food and hustling them about over the earth in search of ever fresh sensations.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Poor Fish.

This melancholy tragedy happened in Holland. A fisherman who caught a salt herring placed the fish in a tub full of salt water. Every day he took out some of the salt water and replaced it with fresh. In a few days he had the herring living in fresh water. But, not content at stopping here, he decided to try another plan. Every day he took a little water out of the tub until none was left, and the herring was still alive. The next course was walking. In a month or so the herring had developed feet and learned to walk, and he accompanied his master on his journeys. One day as they were crossing over a narrow bridge the herring caught sight of the water. Reminiscences of former days flashed through his head, and he resolved to try the water. But while still gazing at it he fell in, and before his master could aid him he was drowned.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Verdict.

The lecture was over, and the gentleman who did the talking strained his ears as he followed the audience out of the hall to gather in, so far as he could, what sort of an impression he had made. As he drew near to the doorway two old gentlemen who were making their way out just ahead of him rendered a verdict. "Well, Banksie," said one of them, "what did you think of it?" "I've heard worse," said Banksie. "Did you think it was at all illuminating?" asked the other. "In an old fashioned way, yes," replied the venerable Banksie. "I don't quite catch your point," said the questioner. "Why, it was illuminating, but it struck me as having more gas than electricity about it," explained the critic.—Judge.

The First Telegraph Line.

After the formal opening of the first telegraph line built for commercial purposes between Washington and Baltimore Professor Morse and his associates offered to sell the invention to the United States government for $100,000, but the price was considered too high. The government had appropriated $30,000 toward the construction of the Washington-Baltimore line, but after a short period of operation the postmaster general, to whom President Polk had referred the matter, wrote: "Although the invention is an agent vastly superior to any other devised by the genius of man, yet the operation between Washington and Baltimore has not satisfied me that under any rate of postage that can be adopted its revenues can be made to cover its expenditures."

The Onion.

The onion has been so long in cultivation that its original form is not definitely known. There are so called wild onions that grow in the woods. Nobody ever tastes them but once, and there is about the taste no suggestion that cultivation or anything else could ever make them grateful to the human palate. In all probability the onion is a native of western Asia and adjacent parts of Africa, since it is mentioned in old Egyptian writings and the Pentateuch.

Tart Repartee.

Of Sir William Harcourt, Disraeli once said in his affectedly cynical way, "He has the three essential qualifications of success in politics—a fine person, a loud voice and no principles." To this when it was repeated to him Harcourt rejoined, "Leaving out the first two qualifications, it might almost be applied to 'Dizzy' himself."

An Autobiography.

Mrs. Chugwater—Josiah, what is an autobiography? Mr. Chugwater—It's the story of a man's life written as he thinks it ought to be. Couldn't you tell that from the word itself?—Chicago Tribune.

A Success.

Byker—I attended a successful sleight of hand performance last night. Pyker—Really? Byker—Yes, I lent a conjurer a counterfeit half dollar, and he gave me back a good one.

One Better.

First Child—We've got a new baby at our house. Second Child (contemptuously)—We've got a new pa at ours.—Presbyterian Standard.

This being called me, whatever it is, consists of a little flesh, a little breath and the part which governs.—Marcus Aurelius.

ENTERPRISE AND WALLOWA COUNTY.

Enterprise is the growing, lively county seat of Wallowa county. It is centrally situated in the county. It will draw from the vast land and stock and general agricultural and mineral resources of the county, sufficiently to become eventually a big inland county seat.

It is a city of generous, busy hustlers. It is rapidly building up with stone buildings. In time it will be known as the "Stone City."

Millions of the best building stone, soft and free from lime and hardening on exposure, lie within half a dozen miles of Enterprise.

There is water power enough flowing right through the center of the city to run all the spindles and wheels of a great manufacturing center.

Enterprise is surrounded by as fine wheat land as lies out of doors.

It draws from some of the best fruit land in America.

When you come west, come to Enterprise and look Wallowa county over—on the O. R. & N. railroad from La Grande.

Heckling Humor.

A parliamentary candidate was holding a meeting in Auld Reekie at which the heckler was much in evidence, and the embarrassed candidate failed to give a single answer which was judged to be satisfactory by the audience. Toward the end of the meeting an elector rose and quietly asked, "Sir, would you tell us what might be the name your second initial stands for?" The unfortunate candidate, greatly puzzled at the purport of the question, asked in what way the information could interest the audience. "In this way," explained the interrogator—"we should be able to see if you could answer one question!"—London Tatler.

An Easy Cure.

A correspondent for a local paper writes that his sister sent him four fun lines which are guaranteed to cure any case of strenuousness in the family. The lines are to be repeated three times heartily in the face of any domestic difficulty. Here they are:

The dog is in the pantry;
The cat is in the lake;
The cow is in the hammock.
What difference does it make?
—Nautilus.

More Interesting.

"Were you interested in that account of the Washington man who suddenly disappeared?" "Well, I'd have been more interested in an account of a man who gradually disappeared."

Two Signs.

"To snuff a candle out accidentally is a sign of marriage."
"Yes, and to turn down a lamp intentionally is a sign of courtship."

One thorn of experience is worth a whole wilderness of warning.—Lowell.

Eminence.

The road to eminence and power from an obscure condition ought not to be made too easy nor a thing too much of course. If rare merit be the rarest of all things it ought to pass through some sort of probation. The temple of honor ought to be seated on an eminence. If it be open through virtue let it be remembered, too, that virtue is never tried but by some difficulty and some struggle.—Burke.
