Perry Blanchard left Saturday for La Grande to visit Mrs. Blanchard who recently underwent an operation in the hospital of that city.

Virgil Brines, M. F. Casteel, Cladue and George Myers, all of Day Ridge, were in town the latter part of last week, attending the wool sale, and to other business matters.

James Gibson and Al Daniels, both of Cove, passed through Enterprise Friday on their way to Innaha. They go to look over some prospective homestead land in that district.

Miss Alice Procter of Elgin arrived in Enterprise to visit her sister, Mrs. Charles Hug, Friday evening. With her Mr. and Mrs. Hug's son, Master Procter Hug, returned. He had been visiting his grandparents at Elgin.

Hiram Meek and son of near Wallowa transacted business in Enterprise Friday. Mr. Meek paid this office a genial visit, and helped talk over "old times" in Ohio. Mr. Meek has 200 acres of land near Wallowa, where he has lived for 19 years.

C. F. Johnson and little daughter left Saturday morning for La Grande where Mr. Johnson spent the Fourth with his people. An aunt, Mrs. Bailey, of Oskaloosa, Ia., also was visiting with Mr. Johnson's father in La Grande, and the Fourth was in the nature of a partial family reunion.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bertel Sargeant was buried Monday of last week in the Prairie Creek cemetery. The little one had suffered from stomach trouble which finally proved fatal. Both Mr. and Mrs. Sargeant have the profound sympathy of their many friends in the county in their sad loss. The baby was aged one year and five days.

Dr. Moore and Dr. Zudie Purdum left Sunday morning for Portland where the latter, who is a sister of Mrs. Dr. Moore, will take the Oregon state examination in Osteopathy. Puzzled the Packer.

The first organized work of women in a relief corps was led by Florence Nightingale in the Crimean war of 1855. So unaccustomed were people to that service at the time that it called out some curious comment. Writing of "Chinese" Gordon, Dr. Butler tells in his book, "Ten Great and Good Men," how the boys at Cambridge met the call upon them for hospital stores.

One day a letter came suddenly from the war office telling us that any warm clothes for the invalids at Scutari would be prized by Miss Florence Nightingale. At once in every college a committee was extemporized of leading undergraduates, charged to collect presents of flannel jackets, trousers, "blazers," rugs, greatcoats, furs, even sealskins.

In a few hours box after box was filled with these treasures, and all the boxes were kindly and gratuitously packed for us by the leading upholsterer of the town, his foreman simply remarking to me in a tone which General Gordon would have enjoyed: "A nice consignment for a lady, sir."

Cause of Twilight.

Twilight is a phenomenon caused by atmospheric refraction. When the sun gets below the horizon we are not immediately plunged into the darkness of night. Although the sun is below our horizon, rays of solar light are bent or refracted by the terrestrial atmosphere and continue to furnish some slight illumination. The process continues with diminishing intensity until the sun is so far below the horizon that the refracting power of the atmosphere is no longer able to bend the rays enough to produce a visible effect. The time after sunset that the sun reaches such a position varies with the latitude of the place. There is less twilight at the tropic zone than at the temperate or frigid zone. This is due to less time taken by the sun's rays to pass through the atmosphere, at the tropic zone the sun's rays being perpendicular and at the temperate and frigid zones oblique.—New York American.

With a Grain of Salt.

The earliest record of the saying "with a grain of salt" dates back to the year 63 B. C., when the great Pompey entered the palace of Mithridates and discovered among his private papers the description of an antidote against poisons of all sorts, which was composed of pounded herbs. These, according to the recipe, were to be taken with a grain of salt. Whether this was meant seriously or as a warning sarcasm is not known, but thenceforth it became the custom to say that doubtful preparations should be taken with a grain of salt. From this the meaning got transferred to sayings of doubtful truth. "Attic salt" was a Greek synonym for wit or penetration, and the Latin word "sal" had somewhat of the same meaning. It is thus easy to see how the saying "cum grano salis" could have come to mean the necessity of accepting doubtful or suspicious statements "with a grain of salt."

Molokai and the Lepers.

The general idea of the leper settlement on the island of Molokai is wrong, says a writer in Harpers Weekly. Instead of the entire island being used for the leper colony the settlement comprises only eight square miles out of a total area of 201 square miles. It occupies a tongue of land on the northern side of Molokai. The north, east and west shores of this tiny spit are washed by the Pacific, while on the south side rise precipitous cliffs of from 1,800 to 4,000 feet, which make the isolation seem even more hopeless than the beautiful deep blue waters of the sea ever could. The most difficult and dangerous trail, constantly manned by government guards, foils escape. If it were ever contemplated, by the land side.

London's Big Ben.

Why is the large bell in the tower of the house of parliament in London called Big Ben? The average Londoner himself seems to have no idea how it got its name. When the building was designed Sir Benjamin Hall had a great deal to do with carrying out the plans of the architects, being high commissioner of public works, and his coworkers appreciated the fact that to him the city of London was largely indebted. So when the question came up in parliament as to the name of the enormous bell that was to be hung in the tower a member shouted, "Why not call it Big Ben?" This suggestion was received with much applause as well as with roars of laughter, for Sir Benjamin was an enormous man, both in height and girth, and had often been called Big Ben. From that day on the bell whose peal every Londoner knows has been known only as Big Ben.—Harper's Weekly.
