Mr. Puller was a kind father and good neighbor and beloved by those who were acquainted with him.

ELK MOUNTAIN.
Badgers are numerous and exceedingly busy burrowing in the ground. Old residents say this presages a long and very cold winter.
Young folks are chattering about Santa Claus and good things.

Following is the experience of one of our new homesteaders:
Our neighbor had a kicking mule. To carry him was quite a task. Until a plan that mule to food. Was improvised, and how? You ask. The neighbor tied on to a pole. The curdy comb, with leaden tight. And if he didn't—Upon my soul! Curry that mule clean out of sight. In justice to this neighbor, much it is my duty to relate, That his people are full Dutch, And he a Dutchman from that state.
AN BLK.

Erect Monument To Levi J. Rouse

Splendid Memorial for Pioneer, Instructor and Benefactor of Wallowa County.

A beautiful monument marking the resting place of Levi J. Rouse has been erected in the Enterprise cemetery by his friends in Wallowa county.
The Masons started the movement to thus honor the memory of one who did so much good for the county and for the people, but so many outside the fraternity expressed a wish to contribute the matter was thrown open and the monument is a reminder of the general esteem in which Mr. Rouse was and is held by the people of Wallowa county.
The stones of handsome black Maine granite, dressed and carved by Mr. Charles Wilgerodt of this city and contains besides Mr. Rouse's name, years of birth and death, a keystone, High Priest jewel and the following words: "Erected by many friends in Wallowa county in whose memory he still lives as a Pioneer, Instructor and Benefactor."
The monument cost $250. The work of securing the subscriptions was in charge of D. W. Sheahan and Daniel Boyd.

CHARLES G. HOLMES FUNERAL.
The funeral of Charles G. Holmes Wednesday was very largely attended. A number were present from Joseph, Wallowa, Lostine, Imnaha and other points, but the out-of-town attendance would have been larger but for the bad roads.
Forty-six brother Masons were in line. Brief services were held in the home of W. R. Holmes, conducted by Rev. Thomas Johns. The burial was with full Masonic rites by Worshipful Master D. W. Sheahan and Wallowa lodge No. 82.

Mrs. Lily Huff of Edin, Okla., niece of L. Graves of this city, arrived Tuesday, to visit her relatives.
