Maintain Strict Quarantine

Wallowa is taking every precaution against the spread of smallpox. The cases and all persons in any way exposed are closely quarantined. No new cases have developed. The assertion in the Sun that the News-Record made caustic allusions to Mayor Morelock and Dr. Gregg, in its report of the cases last week, is a figment of Editor Jonas' thinking, and he has another thing coming. The News-Record hadn't the least idea the report of smallpox at Lostine originated in the Sun office and did not say or intimate so. Why deny so vigorously, Mr. Sun, before even accused?

EDITOR DECLINES DEBATE.

The editor of the News-Record has received an epistle from C. H. Allen of Flora, whose challenge to County Judge O. M. Corkins was referred to in a pleasant way in this paper recently. A copy of the letter was published in the Flora Journal last week. Mr. Allen evidently does not relish remarks about his original orthography. Notwithstanding his very low opinion of the News-Record editor he invites us to debate with him. While he holds out the alluring promise to outdo Grover Cleveland in phrases that bring joy to the heart of the paragrapher, yet his letter as a whole so plainly shows the need of a high school in at least one case that the expenditure by the county court for that institution is vindicated; therefore the debate is respectfully declined.

Mills Fined $20

Roy Mills was arrested Wednesday by Marshal J. C. Reavis and taken before City Recorder Taggart, who fined him $17 and costs, amounting in all to $20, for operating without a license a refreshment room with a billiard table in it. A city ordinance fixes a license fee of $400 a year for such a place, and a maximum fine of $50 for its violation. Mills has been running his business in the room formerly occupied by the Enterprise bar.

Stubblefield, and Miss Minnie Jones were the attendants. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Stubblefield. The groom's parents reside in Union county, but he is an employe at the White Front livery. Both have many friends who extend congratulations.

Miss Laura E. Rucker and Mr. George B. Bales, both of Lostine, were married in the Enterprise Hotel parlors, Wednesday afternoon, Rev. M. J. Thompson performing the ceremony in the presence of a few friends of the couple. Mr. and Mrs. Bales have rented one of the Littleton houses and will make their home in Enterprise. In Lostine Wednesday night they were given a reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Fred G. Hewett. The former is an uncle of the bride.

This feature is added at considerable expense but we believe will be appreciated by all our readers. The price remains the same, $1.50 a year. Many who are not subscribers receive this week's paper. If you like this sample and want more like it send your name and address and the News-Record will come to you regularly.

Course of Study for County High

how to do something better than anybody else, or should be made to become master of some trade or proficient in a profession. This can only be accomplished by means of higher institutions of learning. Is there any reason why the boys and girls of Wallowa county should not enjoy the advantages of a fully equipped and well maintained high school? There is just as much need of higher education in this county as in any other. The children are just as deserving and just as much in due time as is due the children of any other part of the state. The children of this county will grow up to manhood and womanhood, and will scatter out and settle down in different localities, counties or states and it is then that their educational qualifications will reflect for good or for naught upon the locality in which they were schooled.

We must admit that the standard of our community, the strength of our government and the future greatness of our people will depend upon the training we give the boys and girls of today and those yet to come. The responsibility of the future rests upon those for whom our schools are conducted. We may go where we will and wherever we find a community that maintains a well equipped and thorough school, there we will find law-abiding, industrious and progressive people. There is no better means by which we can determine the standing of a community than by its educational facilities.

The establishing of the Wallowa county high school marks the beginning of a new period in the educational affairs of the county. The boys and girls are now given an opportunity to receive their secondary schooling at home, and, when they shall have finished the work here, they will be ready for college or professional training.

The work of the county high school is broad in its scope. Four courses are offered—the classical, the scientific, the English and the commercial. The school will be equipped with a laboratory for the study of the sciences, and a good library for use in connection with the teaching of history and literature will be installed as rapidly as the requirements demand. Manual training will be made a part of the commercial course, and music will be offered to all those who wish to take it.

In cities where good high schools are maintained, the per cent of eighth grade graduates who pursue higher education is much greater than in towns where inadequate high school facilities are offered. The same is true of a county. Offer your boys and girls a good high school where there is an opportunity for some selective work and few will fail to pursue it.

The people of Wallowa county must have confidence in the county high school. They must take pride in the school and manifest an interest in it. They must impress upon the minds of the children that the county high school offers the same courses and just as good instruction as does any academic school in the state. Unless this is done the home school will be run down and the distant school built up. If our boys and girls are sent away to high school, or its equivalent, it means a reduction in the home enrollment, and more it means a lack of confidence in the people to support in their midst that which they must send elsewhere to get at a greater cost.

It costs money to maintain good schools. It is quite expensive to put up a laboratory for the study of physics and other sciences. It takes money to establish a library for the proper study of history and literature, and there is no small expense attached to equipping a school for carrying a commercial course, for it must be thorough. Yet these are expenses necessarily attached to equipping and maintaining a high school of reputable rank and character. The expense of building up such a school is too great for any ordinary town or district. The subject of higher education should be of interest to every parent and patron of the schools of Wallowa county. It should be freely and thoroughly discussed and a wide-awake interest made manifest. Public sentiment has much to do with the building of good schools. Every citizen must feel an interest in the high school and insist that the course of study and the teaching be thorough and up-to-date in every respect. Every parent must say "I am going to send my children to the Wallowa county high school and I want them to receive the best training that a modern school can give." When this kind of spirit is manifested, then will confidence be established, attendance increased, and the educational standard of the county raised.

Samms formed a party of Enterprise citizens who visited the city schools and the county high school Tuesday. They were chaperoned by County Superintendent Kerns, and all were pleased with the excellent work of the classes.

IT'S A SHADOW

All photographs are shadows, but some shadows are better than others. It takes experience and careful study to get shadows that look right. Good shadows please you. If they are not good your friends don't want them, neither do you; poor stuff is dear no matter how cheap. We don't sell the poor kind of photograph—it is not how cheap, but how good we can do the work for you.
