

Candidates at June Election.

Names of Men Who Want Your Votes And Why You Should Vote For Them.

REPUBLICAN.

For Assessor.

C. H. Allen of Flora, Republican nominee for County Assessor, believes in a "square deal" assessment, and judges, if elected, to fulfill the duties of the office to the best of his ability, fairly and impartially toward every property owner.

INDEPENDENT

To the Voters of Wallowa County.

I will be a candidate for re-election as County Surveyor on an Independent ticket as usual. On account of my qualifications and my experience of the last four years in the position, there is no other man on earth who can better serve the interests of the people of Wallowa county as County Surveyor for the next two years, and if elected the permanency of laws and corners already properly established are assured.

Respectfully,
H. F. MERRYMAN,
County Surveyor.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(The News Record will print communications on topics of public interest, providing they are brief, not abusive and the article is signed.)

Wallowa County's Supreme Issue.

In this county the question of supreme moment is not where shall the county seat be located, as much as all are interested in that question. What concerns every man woman and child in this county is, shall Wallowa county go back to an open saloon and legalize the traffic whose work has always been to destroy both men and money. Can we afford for a few dollars of revenue or for any amount of revenue, to give legal sanction to an institution which is the cause of the majority of murders, the majority of police arrests, which has put most of the prisoners in the jail? The saloon is responsible for much of county expense as well as for much of the poverty and unhappiness in the homes. The saloon is like the bed-bug. It lives by sucking the blood of those who are much more worthy to live than itself. As good house-keepers work persistently for the extermination and prevention of that household pest, let every good citizen work, talk and vote to, banish and persistently bar from our county that parasite on society—the saloon. We can't afford to feed the grog-shop on the products from our soil, much less on the boys from our homes. And these the saloon must have if it is to live. But it has shown itself unworthy to live. It is an outlaw. The thing of supreme importance in this county at present is to see that an open saloon in our midst shall not be made lawful. We believe the county will vote strongly against it.

ELK CREEK JOTS.

N. E. Hammack and Grandpa Baker spent Sunday night with Mr. and Mrs. Sam Baker.
Miss Alice Russell has been attending to the housekeeping and the incubator while her mother was away attending the sick.
Miss Eula Russell went to Lostine on a visit to her aunt, Mrs. Fitzpatrick.
Charley Simmons and his sister, Miss Della, are visiting with their sister, Mrs. Arch Alford.
S. P. Weaver was a caller at Sam Baker's the first of the week.
A. P. Flannery, who is overseer at Baker and Flannery's lambing camp, reports sheep in fine shape and good luck with lambs so far.
Mrs. Jennie Griffin spent Monday night with her daughter, Mrs. J. P. Averill.
Mr. and Mrs. Knodell and children of Enterprise were driving in this vicinity Sunday. They expected to call on Mr. and Mrs. Sam Baker, but unfortunately they were not at home, but Mrs. Baker says she hopes they will not be discouraged but will call again in the near future.

Milking Machine First In County

Thomas Morgan says the milking machine recently installed on his Prairie Creek ranch is a success, and he is well satisfied with his investment. The milker and all its accessories, engine etc., form quite a complicated machine. No expert was sent to set it up, Mr. Morgan depending on the assistance of Mr. Hamilton of Joseph. No one who had ever seen a milker was there to teach its operation, yet when the machine was first tried it worked like a charm, and it hasn't balked once since the start. After on a few days use Mr. Morgan with assistance of his wife a part of the time, milked 28 cows in an hour and a half. When a herd becomes well broken, one person can easily attend to over a hundred cows.

It is useless to attempt description of the apparatus in all its parts. It must be seen to be really understood. The suction attachments for teats and the pulsating throb of the milker, so like natural sucking by a calf, are the chief points that has made this milker a success. Mr. Morgan says he had a letter from Dr. Withycombe, saying it was a success, and also the result of tests at the Kansas experiment station. Speed and economy are the chief advantages of the machine over hand milking but are not the only ones. The milk is cleaner, making it better for a sanitary point of view, and for some reason the milk will not sour so quickly.

Old cows are much harder to break in but Mr. Morgan's herd, containing a number of old ones, already submit to the milker about as well as a like number would to hand milking, while the Jersey heifers are docile from the start. Mr. Morgan is expecting in a few weeks a young man from the O. A. C. to run the milker, who has had experience with the machine.

Electric Lines Develop Country

Traveling on the electric line between Portland and Salem is rapidly equalling the anticipations of the builders of the Oregon Electric company's trolley system, says the Catholic Sentinel. Along the line near to Portland there is being established a community of small farmers, who are supplying the city with fruit, vegetables, berries and other produce in ever increasing quantities.

Within a comparatively short time the lands available for this class of industry will be completely subdivided and the large holdings in the hands of individual farmers will be succeeded by many small orchards, gardens and berry fields—each for a home for a family.

Intensive farming is more and more employed by the new owners of these acre tracts. Values of land will increase in the next two years to double the price prevailing at this time, and as in all other instances of electric railroad construction, population will flow along the line of the trolley route.

GROUSE.

Grouse April 23 08—Farming has been at a standstill during the last three days owing to the excessive amount of rainfall. Very few farmers have finished sowing wheat; and no corn planted yet.

All varieties of early fruits are in full bloom; which appears very favorable for a fine fruit crop this year, if no late frost.

John Herman of Mud Flat passed through the vicinity of Grouse Sunday stopping about daylight at Geo. D. Boston's. It was soon discovered that his mind was unbalanced; as he said there was a p. e. of men pursuing him and that they had been after him all night; Mr. Boston prevailed with him to stay for breakfast, which he did; and lay down and sleep a few minutes. As soon as he woke up he said he was going to Moscow, Idaho. J. W. Macaulay living in a few hundred yards of Mr. Boston's and an old acquaintance; he stopped there and said he was on his way to Moscow and was very tired and he would like to borrow a horse to ride across the Wenatchee canyon saying that he would send the horse back the same evening or next morning; the horse has not been returned yet but is safe. Mr. Herman had a Winchester gun and made some threats what he would do if still pursued. The people became alarmed and a few citizens got together in the neighborhood took his gun, arrested him kept him over night at Alex. McNeill's Sunday night and started Monday morning with him to Asotin.
