TRIP TO THE NORTH COUNTRY

The road from Flora to Troy has been greatly improved during the last year. Supervisor Mench has cut down the big trees that obstructed the highway in his district; the Troy hill grade has been reduced until loads twice as heavy as formerly may be hauled up it, and the cutoff at the Yager hill saves both distance and a heavy pull up one hill.
There is room for big improvement still, especially in widening the road bed and providing turn-outs on the road along the canyon side west from the foot of the Yager hill; also in the top half of the Troy hill. It certainly looks that a better road and grade could be made at the top of the Troy hill and thus avoid the precipitous descent over the rocks.
Speaking of roads, what we have to say at this time may as well be finished in this place. To the News Record it seems the time is ripe and the need pressing for some county aid to the road going up to Grouse from Troy. A few hundred dollars would materially reduce grades there. That road was one of the first laid out in that country and the time is approaching—in almost here—when it will be a heavily traveled highway. Right now, it is the only road that gives the prosperous farmers of Grouse and Bartlett access to the remainder of Wallowa county.

There is a proposition afoot to build another "Troy hill" road up out of Grande Ronde river canyon a few miles above Troy. Without entering in the merits or demerits of that particular road, it would seem full time to stop building roads up precipitous sides of mountains where roads of easy grades reaching the same objective points, could be constructed up the canyons at the same or less cost. Every person the writer has talked to in the North Country, who is acquainted with Courtney, Mud Creek and other canyons running up from the Grande Ronde river, says they are practical road ways. Courtney, especially, is cited as a way provided by nature for egress from the Grande Ronde canyon to the divide running from Wallowa Valley on the south to the Washington state line on the north.
It is claimed a good wagon road with easy grades, nowhere over 7 or 8 per cent, can be constructed from the Grande Ronde river to or near Red Fir, for $100 a mile. If this is true, it would seem the height of folly to spend thousands of dollars to blast out a zig-zag up a mountain side. If the people of Grouse Bartlett, Eden, Lost Prairie, the valleys of the Wenaha and Grande Ronde are given an easy grade out let to Red Fir or Sled Springs, they will be nearly equally distant from all Wallowa valley points, thus serving the greatest good to the greatest number.

THREE VICTIMS OF

DEADLY TOY PISTOL

Elma, Wash., July 14—Two deaths from lockjaw and a third boy dying as the result of toy pistol wounds on the fourth of July is the record of a week in the state of Washington.

The dead:

Arthur Bauer, of Ritzville, 8 years old.

Harold Solrah of North Yakima, 14 years old.

Dying: The 10-year-old son of W.
B. Moores of this city.

On July 4 the Moores boy injured his hand in shooting a toy pistol.
The burn occasioned no anxiety, as it was very slight and nothing serious was thought of it until Friday, when symptoms of lockjaw became manifest. Doctors in attendance have given up all hope of saving the boy's life and he is suffering intense agony that nothing but death can relieve.

In the case of Arthur Bauer of Ritzville, the lad received a powder burn from a blank cartridge. The next day he became ill, suffered from lockjaw, and on the third day was dead.

lived 11 days after wadding was fired into the palm of his hand by a toy pistol. On the tenth day he was taken sick, seized with lockjaw and in a few hours was dead.

THE WALLOWA COUNTRY

COMING INTO HER OWN

There was a finely descriptive article of the Wallowa valley in the Portland Journal of July 19, written by Lulu R. Lorenz of Pendleton.
Miss Lorenz, who is a reporter on the East Oregonian, visited during her vacation several weeks ago, at the Streeter-Bryan camp just above Enterprise. She was enraptured with the scenery and climate of this valley, and tells the Journal readers in charming style of its beauty and predicts a great industrial and commercial future. After reciting the wealth of the country in agriculture, livestock and minerals, she closes with the following about the towns which aside from a mistake as to the kind of building stone used in Enterprise, and erecting the courthouse ahead of time, is all true to fact:

"There are some very enterprising citizens living in the towns of Joseph, Enterprise, Wallowa and other towns in the county, most of the business men in these towns have lived there for years and have grown wealthy in many instances.
Enterprise, the county seat, has some of the most beautiful buildings in the state, the courthouse, high school and other buildings having been constructed from granite which is found a short distance from Enterprise, and it is suitable for building purposes.
Quarries of marble, as well as gold and copper mines, all wait the incoming of the railroad, and these towns which will all be on the line of the road, will become centers of industry and population of importance to the state of Oregon."

tion of the game or fish laws of the

State of Oregon:

B. Bellinger and William W. Colton be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 4346. It shall be the duty of all persons having wire fences to keep the same in good repair, and or owners be a resident of said county, which said notice shall require to forthwith repair said fence, and place the same in a safe condition.

And if such fence is not so repaired and placed in a safe condition with-such notice by the sheriff, it shall then be the duty of the county judge of said county, upon report made to him by the sheriff of said county district of which said fence, or any part of it may be located, or any deputy sheriff of the county, to remove dition that it will not be a menace said wire in the manner in which personal property is sold upon execution, and the cost and expenses incurred in said wire and repairing said fence shall be paid by the coun-
