MOTHER TERRIBLY BURNED WHILE SAVING HER CHILD

Mrs. Putman Yeck lies in this city at the home of relatives, says the Elgin Recorder, in a burned and painful condition as a result of a fire which destroyed the Yeck home on Gordon creek Wednesday noon. The hair is burned from her head and the scalp is seriously and painfully burned.

Wednesday noon Mrs. Yeck was at home alone with her baby, which was lying on a bed in the sitting room, and in which room she had placed some wet blankets around the stove to dry. Closing the door of the sitting room she went into the kitchen to attend to household duties and after many minutes had passed she discovered that the house was on fire. Immediately she rushed into the room where the baby had been left, to find the entire room a mass of flames which started from the stove igniting the blankets. She grabbed the child, together with the bed clothes under it and started to escape from the room, but stepped on one of the quilts and fell into the burning blankets. A large celluloid back comb which she wore immediately caught fire and before she could save the child and protect herself the hair was burned from her head and her scalp badly burned. She received various other burns but none so bad as those of the scalp. Dr. Whiting was summoned and after rendering what surgical assistance was possible the mother was brought to this city. At last reports she was getting along as well as could be expected and her recovery is expected.

Everything that the family possessed was destroyed and they have the heartfelt sympathy of the community

Head Cheese.

Take a pig's head (upper parts only, using the lower halves for roasting), thoroughly clean, and let lie in salt water over night. Put on to boil in plenty of water, and boil until the meat drops from the bones. Strain the liquor it was boiled in, and set away to cool. When cold, remove the fat, when the liquor will be ready to add to the meat, which must be looked over carefully, to remove any small bits of bone, and chopped very fine. Season to taste with salt, pepper and sage. Put on again to boil for about five minutes. Then pour into dishes and set away to cool. If sage is not liked, add any favoring desired.—October Woman's Home Companion.
