Prices ranged from 21 to 22 1/2 cents. R. R. Hilton, whose clip amounts to about 100,000 pounds, was offered 21 cents, but refused to sell.

The average price realized was about 8 cents above the average price of last year's clip, and runs from 1 to 3 cents above the best prices paid on contracts.

The wool-growers of this section who introduced into the state the sealed bid system of selling wools, are delighted with the result, and feel confident that contracting will be abandoned entirely in the future by members of the growers association.

The second auction sale day is set for June 1, the third for June 15, and the fourth sale for June 29.

The Wool Buyers association has agreed to respect these dates and not to make offers privately for any lots tributary to this section.
