'NERVES' AN OSTEOPATHIC SPECIALTY.

That the trouble known as "nerves" reveals entirely too little attention for its victims is the question. It is not only a warning sign that there is something radically wrong, but as the nerves are the governors of our whole being, it is the plainest sort of indication that the sufferer is not in the full completeness of his or her natural competency or the affairs of life. A condition of the ordinary conditions is absolutely necessary in order that there may be a reserve force of nervous energy for emergency.

There are always definite reasons for the trouble; and, even when habits of life are largely responsible as a general cause, there is always some anatomically wrong condition that produces the sufferer to the trouble. If the body structure is in a state of perfect adjustment, if circulation to every part is unobstructed, if every nerve is uninterfered with in its work by pressure, and if nourishment and hygiene are attended to—"nerves" will speedily disappear. The Osteopath is the specialist in detailed body adjustment—and he is the master of the craft.

—Right Way.

DEATH RECORD.

James F. Davis, well known in this city and vicinity as Frank Davis, died at Baker City, September 23, of typhoid fever, and his wife lies in the Baker City hospital ill of the same disease. They had been residing on a farm near Baker City when stricken.

The deceased was born in Iowa, April 21, 1870, and came to Wallowa county over 30 years ago. His parents are buried in Alder Slope cemetery. He married Mary J. Jones, a former resident of this county. Their children are three daughters, Elma, Hester and Phyllis, and a son, Elmer. Other relatives who mourn his death are four sisters, Mrs. Ben Ownbey, Mrs. Edith Stubblefield, Mrs. Susan Thornburg and Mrs. Lena Graves; half-sister, Miss Alta Davis; and brothers, Ira and Eckley Davis—all residents of this county except Mrs. Thornburg who lives in Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. Eckley Davis were with him for a week or 10 days before he died, and Mrs. Graves, Miss Alta and Ira Davis went out to the funeral which was held from the First Baptist church, Saturday forenoon at 10 o'clock. Burial was in Baker City cemetery.

The deceased was a young man of fine character and very highly thought of. His many friends here sympathize deeply with the widow, children and other relatives.

NATIONAL APPLE SHOW AT SPOKANE

Party of lecturers and the train will only be in a ritual college on wheels.

That the passenger train service on the O. R. & N. between Portland and Huntington has increased 10 per cent in the last six months is the statement of General Manager O'Brien. This shows the remarkable gain in passenger travel throughout the Pacific Northwest. From two trains daily each way between the two points named six months ago the railroad company has found it necessary to increase the number to five daily in each direction. Much of this added travel is of course due to the A-Y-P fair but a large part of it is attributed to the increase in population in this state and the influx of new settlers.

One hundred dollars is offered by Philip S. Bates, secretary of the Oregon Threshers' association, for the best bushel of wheat grown in Oregon. An additional $100 will be divided as set on entry prizes. All entries should be shipped to The Dalles, Saturday, November 27, where the entries will be judged and prizes awarded. The contest will make a wheat show that will be held in connection with the annual convention of the Oregon Threshers' association December 2 and 3 at The Dalles. Entries should be sent forward in standard two-bushel grain sacks, with the grower's name attached and stating where the grain was grown.

SAME OLD STORY OF PEDDLER GOUGE

Given an order which her husband was off at harvest, and was left a copy of the order and told if she at a decided she did not want the goods, she could command the order to be given in time, by writing into the house. But lo and behold there was not a thing on the copy to tell where the house supplying the goods was located. Another gentleman stated, when the agent came to his house, he put up a nice sack, and stated that he was not going to charge for the lies he told while taking the order, and then "It'll be done if he didn't go and charge me for every damned lie he told," stated the gentleman. But then, why string this story out. It is the same old thing. These traveling fellows are under a heavy expense traveling over the country, and some only has got to be gaged in order to meet them. Moral—Trade with home merchants, merchant whom you know, and if your goods are not satisfactory, you can take them back and get your money back.

Osteopathy's Aim and Object.

The authorized definition of osteopathy is as follows: "Osteopathy is a method of removing the cause of disease by adjustment. Its purpose being to restore the structural condition of the body to its normal state thereby enabling it through normal activity to restore health."

"Osteopaths hold that the human body contains all the remedial agencies necessary for the maintenance of health, and that these curative fluids are distributed when and where needed, except when such distribution is interfered with by structural disorder. The province of the osteopath is, therefore, to restore structural harmony, so that the inherent healing power of nature itself may regain control, making the administration of drugs unnecessary."—The Osteopath Magazine (September).

A SPLENDID COMPANY COMING.

Commencing Friday night Oct. 1st Miss Josephine Deffry, in an excellent selection of high-class plays comes to this city for an engagement of two nights. The first night offering will be "The Grass Widow" and if you fail to see it you will have missed a wonderful performance of a very interesting comedy. It is one of the distinguished and immediate successes which swept its way. It will be the first time this brilliant comedy has been seen in this city. There is a suggestion of psychological surprises, an intense undercurrent that keeps one quite a part from the delight in the scorching satire, the double edged humor in the sparkling lines. Judging from conventional dramatic standards as it is written in the recognized key of pure comedy is one of the best of modern times. The play will be beautifully staged and the most magnificently acted production yet attempted by Mr. Eckhardt's splendid company. The gowns worn by Miss Josephine Deffry and Mrs. Georgia Nichols are the handsomest and richest ever seen on the stage and are said to be wonderful creations.

THE NATIONAL STOCK.

The National Stock company, composed of a part of the members of the Ethel Tucker Stock company, re-organized by others, played the first bill of its engagement in this city on Saturday evening last and to say that it made good is putting it altogether too mild. Enterprise theatre audience have enjoyed the re-organization, in the past, of being exceedingly responsive, certainly that re-organization was not deserved on Saturday evening.

The play was "Who's Baby is It?" an adaptation of the old and very popular comedy "A Family Affair."

The play is founded in funny complications and absurd situations and the players entered into its spirit with a zest and abandon that was contagious, the audience, from the middle of the first act until the final curtain, being in a continual uproar.

The company for the next three weeks will be touring throughout the cities of Southern Idaho expecting to return to this district the latter part of October.

If upon their return they will give the people something as satisfying as the play of Saturday evening, they may feel assured of a warm welcome.

"The S. Mumsey, just five cents" begged Johnnie.

"Bil, Johnnie, it was only five cents morning that I gave you five cents."

"I know, Mumsey, but"—putting his arms around her neck—"I'm so hard on money!—Everybody's Magazines.
