Talking Lions by Tobacco.

We have all heard the old wheeze of talking a lion or tiger by steadily keeping your eye fixed on him. According to one of the keepers at Boston's, a more effective method is a cigar or cigarette.

"Nearly ever," wild beast that I ever come across," said this official to the writer the other day, "is fond of tobacco in some shape or form. I made this discovery quite accidentally. Once, when I was in America with this show, one of the visitors, who was smoking a cigar, puffed some of the smoke into the lion's face as he lay asleep in the cage. I expected to see a real riot, but instead of that the lion, after giving a couple of sneezes, moved quietly up to the bars and raised his nose sniffing as if a king for a second dose. I have made the experiment on all sorts of wild animals since, and I have found that most of them enjoy thoroughly a big sniff of tobacco. We had a bear here once that used to rub his nose and back against the bars of his cage, just like a cat asking to be stroked, whenever any one smoking a cigar came near him. Antelopes and wild goats aren't satisfied with the mere whiff. If you give them a cigar or cigarette they will swallow it eagerly and, what is more, seem to suffer no bad effects from their meal."—London Scraps.

The Emperor's Orderly.

Frenchmen of every rank and class dearly love titles. The manager of a Paris insurance company was decorated with the Legion of Honor a few days ago, and the clerks in the employ of the company presented him with a piece of plate to which their visiting cards were attached. On looking over there he was a good deal puzzled and amused by the visiting card of the office "boy," an old soldier from the Invalides, who was employed to open the office doors from 9 to 4. Under the man's name was the title "the emperor's orderly." He sent for the old soldier, who stumped in and saluted.

"Of what emperor are you the orderly, and how?" he asked. The old Invalid drew himself up to attention. "I am the orderly of the emperor," he said, "Napoleon, le Petit Corporal." "But he is dead. He has been dead some time," answered the puzzled manager.

"I dust his tomb for him," growled the old soldier.—London Express.

No Merals in Dreamland.

If, as many writers have suggested, it is the soul itself that guides the imagery of dreams, how are we to explain the fact that in this chaos of ideas and feelings there is so little distinction between right and wrong that when dreaming we commit acts for which we should weep tears of blood were they as real as they seem to be. As Professor Hoffman has said, "The familiar check of waking hours, I must not do it because it would be unjust or unkind," never once seems to arrest us in the satisfaction of any whim which may blow about our wayward fancies."

From all of which we must conclude that the dream realm is a world that is entirely oblivious to any moral sense and that, though it may be true that a troubled conscience may produce or affect our dreams, the dreams themselves are never burdened with a conscience.—Bohemian Magazine.

Going Some.

Being pursued by a farmer and his three sons after being caught in the chicken yard, a young colored person had just made up his mind that he was not eluding his followers as quickly as might be when a long eared jack rabbit jumped up from the roadside and started down the road ahead of him. The would be chicken thief had run a few hundred feet farther when the farmer and his boys were astonished to hear the negro shout in a voice that quavered with fright, though unrestrained, "Say, for de Lord sake, you rabbit, get out ob de way and let some one run who can run."—Argonaut.

Household Hints.

The quickest cleaner for a sticky bread or cake pan is a crust of stale bread.

A dish of water kept on the radiator will improve the air of a steam heated room.

A scratch on polished furniture can be almost obliterated by rubbing vigorously with linseed oil.

Fringed dollies are kept in better condition if the fringe is brushed with a small nail brush rather than with a comb.

The darkest stain on mirror or window pane can generally be routed with a flannel dipped in spirits of camphor. Rub until dry.

A good silence cloth for the dining table can be made with a double thickness of white flannel laid with the soft side on the inside and quilted on the machine. Edge with a binding of white tape.

Facts From France.

France has more than 217 miles of pneumatic tubes for conveying the mail, divided between Paris, Lyons and Marseilles.

There are 85,840 trees in Paris, and each tree has its number, age, history and condition recorded in the books at the Hotel de Ville. The appropriation for this department is 450,000 francs a year.

Two French army dogs have drawn light ambulances, the invention of a lieutenant, with a load of 100 pounds each, for some 375 miles without a breakdown, showing how they can be used in war.

B. W. ### Knew His Name.

The man was jealous, insanely jealous, though heaven knows the girl gave him no cause.

Girls never do.

He knew the name of the man he feared.

He did not tell her so, however, but beat about the bush, as they do on the stage.

At the same time, when this story opens, they were having an emotional tussle.

"Oh, George," she said, "what is the matter?"

"You know well enough," he replied bitterly.

"I assure you I do not," she insisted.

"But you do, and you do nothing to make our life sweeter."

"Tell me what I should do," she pleaded, for, though she might be frisky with George, she did not wish to lose her grip on him entirely.

"Oh, George, George, why are you not frank with me?" she pleaded again.

George's face became ashen gray at her fateful words.

"That is it!" he hissed, the awful fire of jealousy blazing in his eyes. "That is it, Miss Smithkins. If I were Frank with you instead of George, you'd be all right."

The girl would have replied, but she could not. Her tongue clave to the roof of her mouth.

The other fellow's name was Frank.—London Answers.

An Artist's Mustache.

The mustache was not viewed with favor in England in the middle of the last century. An anecdote is told of the late Thomas Cooper, the English artist, to illustrate. He was brought before a magistrate in 1846 on some minor charge and was described in the police report as being "fashionably dressed, with large mustaches." The Art Journal of the date, commenting on it, said that "no member of the Royal academy perpetrates the atrocity of mustaches, a most un-English affectation." Mr. Cooper became a member of the academy a few years later.

Sunshine and Long Life.

Some towns on the Italian side of the Swiss Alps are noted for the great number of sunny days. Carabietta and Pentilino, near Lugano, head the list with 327 and 331 sunny days respectively in one year. Possibly because of this liberal amount of sunshine the percentage of old people is exceptionally high in the canton of Tessin, forty-four per thousand being over seventy years old and ten per thousand over eighty.—New York Post.

Discourteous.

"What do you think?" exclaimed the theatrical star proudly. "They are going to name a new cigar after me!"

"Well," rejoined the manager, "here's hoping it will draw better than you do."—Exchange.

After addressing an Edinburgh meeting for ninety minutes once Mr. Bernard Shaw remarked that the time was a quarter to 10, and he had intended to finish at 9 o'clock. He did not seem in the least fatigued; the audience were also quite fresh, and when the speaker was about to sit down loud cries of "Go on!" were raised on all sides. "Do you really wish me to go on?" Mr. Shaw asked. He was answered by renewed cheering and more shouts of "Go on!" Great was the disappointment, therefore, when he replied, "That is the exact point at which an experienced speaker sits down," which he accordingly did.
