(From Walla Walla Union.)

Mrs. F. A. Ware, wife of Rev. Francis A. Ware, died at a local hospi-deceased had resided in this city for many years and the Ware family is one of the best known in eastern Washington. Her husband is an evangelist and traveling missionary in eastern Washington for the Central Christian church. Besides the husband three children, Genevieve, Ralph or that they had plenty of hay and plenty of stock to feed it to. So we drove on to the next one, and then to the next one, every one telling us about the same thing. So we all began to think the little story about Californians being selfish and un-accommodating to be true. So about 9 o'clock we came to a little town called Yuba, but the men folks among us called it U-be-damned, and we all thought it was U-be damned.

Anyway we found feed and stable room. Mr. Littleton had a letter written to his wife to mail as we went through Yuba, but some how he seemed to get somewhat absent minded while driving to the next one, and then to the next one, that he forto leave. We also took in the large ostrich farm, in which there are over 3000 ostriches.

October 7 we left Sacramento and drove to Mr. Littleton's home in Lodi, California, 35 miles from Sacramento, and will have to say he has a fine little home, so cozy looking, and not only did his home look nice, but the people and his neighbors all around were there ready to greet us as if they were old acquaintances.
We felt much at home here. After resting a day or so here Mr. Littleton and wife, and L. J. Davis and wife went out to the large wineries and canneries, which they went all through, and saw many interesting sights, the girls joining them. We all visited the beautiful cemetery, which we noticed was well taken care of.
The people all seemed to take interest and pride in keeping their little town and cemetery clean. We are now in San Joaquin county. I want to speak of the Flame Tokay grape for which the country is noted.
We enjoyed eating these very much; they are very large and have a beautiful color. There are acres and acres of them on every side you look. Mr. Littleton had picked a box in which he had a bunch weighing 16 pounds and one weighing 11 pounds.

October 9th we left Lodi and drove to French camp, between Lodi and Modesto.

October 10th we left French Camp and drove to Modesto.

October 11th we drove to Turlock, which you Wallowa people are stuck on, and which is boasted up so highly, but we have seen many other countries we like better than that.
It is too dry and deserty looking for us. We drove on after noon from Turlock and camped at the bridge crossing the Merced river to Merced county. There we had to camp for the night and till noon the next day before the bridge was fixed so we could cross.

October 12. In the afternoon we pulled on for Atwater, our stopping point, which consists of a hotel, store, livery, postoffice, butcher shop, and several dwellings. We traveled on 1 1/2 miles and landed at Leola Stone's, a daughter of L. J. Davis. She and husband and family arrived here from Washington last spring. We are all very busy now preparing to build on our new houses. We like the country pretty well here. The weather is fine. We are all getting our fill on watermelons, string beans, to-matos, sweet potatoes and grapes.
Mrs. L. J. Davis' weight was 120 pounds when we left Enterprise and when we landed here she weighed 110 pounds, so you see her trip did not agree with her, but Arva, her daughter, weighed 139 pounds when we left Enterprise and stuck the scales at 153 pounds. Sweet potatoes agree with her fine. The distance from Enterprise, Oregon, to Atwater, California, is 999 miles, a long trip to travel with wagons and teams.
This ends our story.

OSTEO-PATHY

Contraction of the chest capacity through drooping of the ribs from normal position is one of the chief causes of lung and heart troubles. It creates crowding, and every organ must have its allotted room if it is to perform its functions properly and able to resist disease-breeding influences.

Chronic constipation and chronic dyspepsia are alike amenable to osteopathic treatment. "Treatment regulates the apparatus and through this means supply, demand, functional activity, and vital process—all become obedient unto the previously existing laws which govern them—laws which man did not ordain, nor can he alter."—Osteopathic Health.
